

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

REPORT OF THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
Washington, D. C., November 30, 1899.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

In obedience to the requirement of section 384 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, I respectfully submit the following report of the business transacted by the Department of Justice for the last preceding fiscal year:

SUPREME COURT.

The accompanying table shows the result of last year's work of the Supreme Court of the United States so far as the number of cases can show it. There was an increase of 218 in the number of cases docketed on the appellate docket, and an increase of 157 in the number disposed of, the number remaining having been reduced thereby from 313 to 304.

| | Appellate docket—October term. | | | | | | | | |
| | 1890 | 1891 | 1892 | 1893 | 1894 | 1895 | 1896 | 1897 | 1898 |
| Cases at close of previous term not disposed of | 1,177 | 1,190 | 1,073 | 984 | 714 | 640 | 533 | 383 | 313 |
| Cases docketed at the term..... | 623 | 379 | 275 | 280 | 332 | 382 | 284 | 302 | 520 |
| Total | 1,800 | 1,569 | 1,348 | 1,214 | 1,046 | 1,022 | 817 | 685 | 833 |
| Cases disposed of at the term..... | 610 | 496 | 414 | 500 | 406 | 499 | 434 | 372 | 529 |
| Cases remaining undisposed of | 1,190 | 1,073 | 934 | 714 | 640 | 533 | 383 | 313 | 304 |

The appellate docket at the close of the last term shows a decrease of 9 pending cases since the close of the preceding term. At the close of the October term, 1897, there remained undisposed of on the appellate docket 313 cases, and upon the original docket 3 cases, making a total of 316. The number of cases docketed at the October term, 1898, was 523, 520 of which were on the appellate docket, and 3 on the original docket, which, with the 3 cases pending on the original docket, make the total number of cases pending at that term 839, of which 833 were on the appellate and 6 on the original docket. Of this number, 531 were disposed of during the October term, 1898, of which 529 were on the appellate and 2 on the original docket, leaving undisposed of at the close of the October term, 1898, 308 cases, of which 304 were on the appellate and 4 on the original docket.

The number of cases actually considered by the court was 468, of which 255 were argued orally and 213 submitted on printed arguments. Of the 529 appellate cases disposed of, 294 were affirmed, 61 reversed, 65 dismissed, 39 settled by the parties and dismissed, in 8 questions certified were answered, and 62 were denials of petitions for writs of certiorari under the act of March 3, 1891.

The total number of cases on the appellate docket in which the United States was a party or had a substantial interest disposed of at the October term, 1898, was 77. The United States was appellant, etc., in 34 of these cases, and appellee, etc., in 43, and 8 cases were certifications of questions by the circuit court of appeals.

Of the 34 cases appealed, etc., by the Government, 4 were decided in its favor and 15 adversely; 12 cases were dismissed by it, 1 was dismissed per stipulation, and 2 were dismissed by the court. In addition, in 6 cases in which questions were certified, 3 were answered in favor of the Government, 3 adversely.

Of the 43 cases in which the Government was appellee, etc., 21 were determined in its favor and 9 adversely, 1 was dismissed by the appellant, 4 were dismissed by the court for failure of the appellant, etc., to comply with the rules, 3 were docketed and dismissed, 3 were dismissed per stipulation, and 2 were dismissed by the court.

Of the above 77 cases, 29 were appeals from the Court of Claims, of which 19 were taken by the Government. Of the 19 cases so appealed, 1 was decided in favor of the Government and 7 adversely, 10 were dismissed by it, and 1 was partly in favor of and partly against the United States, while of the 10 cases in which it was appellee, 7 were decided in its favor, 2 adversely, and 1 was docketed and dismissed.

Of the 77 cases disposed of 13 were criminal, of which 4 were decided in favor of the United States and 6 adversely, 1 was dismissed by the court for failure of the plaintiff in error to comply with the rules, and 2 were dismissed by the court.

Five of these 13 criminal cases were capital, of which 2 were decided in favor of the United States and 3 adversely.

Eight cases were appeals, etc., from the circuit court of appeals, of which 2 were decided in favor of and 1 against the United States, 4 were dismissed per stipulation, and 1 was dismissed by the court.

Seven cases were from the Court of Private Land Claims, 1 of which was appealed by the Government and 6 by the other side. The 1 case appealed by the Government was decided in its favor, while of the 6 cases in which the United States was appellee 3 were dismissed for noncompliance with the rules, 1 was dismissed by the appellant, and 2 were docketed and dismissed.

In 1 case in which the United States was petitioner and in 5 cases in which the United States was respondent, in applications for writs of certiorari, under the act of March 3, 1891, the petitions were denied.

Of the whole number of cases in which the Government had a substantial interest heard and decided by the court, 30 were decided in favor of and 26 against the United States.

Among the many cases heard and decided by the Supreme Court of the United States during the October term, 1898, the following are the more important:

UNITED STATES v. THE JOINT TRAFFIC ASSOCIATION. (171 U.S., 505.)

In the Trans-Missouri Freight Association Case (166 U. S., 290), the Supreme Court held that the Federal antitrust law applies to railroads, and that it prohibits all agreements in restraint of interstate trade and commerce, whether the restraint be reasonable or unreasonable. In the Joint Traffic Association Case the court followed the decision in the Trans-Missouri case, and held in addition that the Federal antitrust law is valid and constitutional, and that Congress has the power to say that a contract or combination shall not be legal which restrains commerce among the several States by shutting out the operation of the general law of competition. The agreement in the Joint Traffic case covered nine trunk-line systems, namely, the Baltimore and Ohio, the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Erie, the Grand Trunk, the Lackawanna, the Lehigh, the Pennsylvania, the Vanderbilt, and the Wabash, which practically controlled the business of railroad transportation between Chicago and the Atlantic seaboard. The agreement held invalid was formed for the purpose of maintaining rates and fares on all competitive traffic between these systems. The salient features of the decision are set forth in the syllabus of the case, which follows:

Thirty-one railroad companies engaged in transportation between Chicago and the Atlantic coast formed themselves into an association known as the Joint Traffic Association, by which they agreed that the association should have jurisdiction over competitive traffic, except as noted, passing through the Western termini of the trunk lines and such other points as might be thereafter designated, and to fix the rates, fares, and charges therefor, and from time to time change the same. No party to the agreement was permitted to deviate from or change those rates, fares, or charges, and its action in that respect was not to affect rates disapproved, except to the extent of its interest therein over its own road. It was further agreed that the powers so conferred upon the managers should be so construed and exercised as not to permit violation of the interstate commerce act, and that the managers should cooperate with the Interstate Commerce Commission to secure stability and uniformity in rates, fares, charges, etc. The managers were given power to decide and enforce the course which should be pursued with connecting companies not parties to the agreement which declined or failed to observe the established rates. Assessments were authorized in order to pay expenses, and the agreement was to take effect January 1, 1898.

and to continue in existence for five years. The bill filed on behalf of the United States sought a judgment declaring that agreement void.

Held, That upon comparing this agreement with the one set forth in United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Association (166 U. S. 290) the similarity between them suggests that a similar result should be reached in the two cases, as the point now taken was urged in that case and was then intentionally and necessarily decided:

(2) That so far as the establishment of rates and fares is concerned there is no substantial difference between this agreement and the one set forth in the Trans-Missouri case:

(3) That Congress, with regard to interstate commerce and in the course of regulating it in the case of railroad corporations, has the power to say that no contract or combination shall be legal which shall restrain trade and commerce by shutting out the operation of the general law of competition.

HOPKINS v. UNITED STATES. (171 U. S., 578.)

This suit was brought by direction of the Attorney-General against Hopkins and other members of the Kansas City Live Stock Exchange to obtain a dissolution of the exchange as being in violation of the antitrust law. The court held that the business of the members of this exchange was not interstate commerce within the meaning of the anti-trust law, and therefore the agreement creating the exchange did not operate to restrain trade or commerce among the several States.

The syllabus of the opinion of the court in the case is as follows:

The Kansas City Live Stock Exchange was an unincorporated volunteer association of men doing business at its stock yards, situated partly in Kansas City, Mo., and partly across the line separating Kansas City, Mo., from Kansas City, Kans. The business of its members was to receive individually consignments of cattle, hogs, and other live stock from owners of the same, not only in the States of Missouri and Kansas, but also in other States and Territories, and to feed such stock and to prepare it for the market, to dispose of the same, to receive the proceeds thereof from the purchasers, and to pay the owners their proportion of such proceeds, after deducting charges, expenses, and advances. The members were individually in the habit of soliciting consignments from the owners of such stock and of making them advances thereon.

The rules of the association forbade members from buying live stock from a commission merchant in Kansas City not a member of the exchange. They also fixed the commission for selling such live stock, prohibited the employment of agents to solicit consignments except upon a stipulated salary, and forbade the sending of pre-paid telegrams or telephone messages with information as to the condition of the markets. It was also provided that no member should transact business with any person violating the rules and regulations, or with an expelled or suspended member after notice of such violation.

Held, that the situation of the yards, partly in Kansas and partly in Missouri, was a fact without any weight; that such business or occupation of the several members of the association was not interstate commerce within the meaning of the act of July 2, 1890, chapter 647, "to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies;" and that that act does not cover, and was not intended to cover, kind of agreements.

ANDERSON v. UNITED STATES. (171 U. S., 604.)

suit was somewhat similar to the Hopkins case, being brought Government against the members of The Traders' Live-Stock co, of Kansas City, to compel its dissolution because the agreement creating it violated the anti-trust act. The court took the view that, whether the members of this exchange were or were not engaged in interstate commerce, the agreement creating the exchange did not operate as one in restraint of such trade.

The syllabus of the opinion of the court in the case is as follows:

The Traders' Live Stock Exchange was an unincorporated association in Kansas City, whose members bore much the same relation to it, and through it carried on much the same business as that carried on by the members of the Kansas City Live Stock Exchange, considered and passed upon in Hopkins v. United States, just decided. The main difference was, that the members of the Traders' Exchange, defendants in the present proceedings, were themselves purchasers of cattle on the market, while the defendants in the former case were commission merchants who sold cattle upon commission as a compensation for their service. The articles of association of the Traders' Exchange contained the following preamble: "We, the undersigned, for the purpose of organizing and maintaining a business exchange, not for pecuniary profit or gain, but to promote and protect all interests connected with the buying and selling of live stock at the Kansas City Stock Yards, and to cultivate courteous and manly conduct toward each other, and give dignity and responsibility to yard traders, have associated ourselves together under the name of Traders' Live Stock Exchange, and hereby agree, each with the other, that we will faithfully observe and be bound by the following rules and by-laws and such new rules, additions, or amendments as may from time to time be adopted in conformity with the provisions thereof from the date of organization."

The rules objected to in the bill in this case were the following: "Rule 10. This exchange will not recognize any yard trader unless he is a member of the Traders' Live-Stock Exchange. Rule 11. When there are two or more parties trading together as partners they shall each and all of them be members of this exchange. Rule 12. No member of this exchange shall employ any person to buy or sell cattle unless such person hold a certificate of membership in this exchange. Rule 13. No member of this exchange shall be allowed to pay any order, buyer, or salesman any sum of money as a fee for buying cattle from or selling cattle to such party."

Held, That this court is not called upon to decide whether the defendants are or are not engaged in interstate commerce, because if it be conceded they are so engaged the agreement as evidenced by the by-laws is not one in restraint of trade, nor is there any combination to monopolize or attempt to monopolize such trade, within the meaning of the act.

(2) That, following the preceding case, in order to come within the provisions of the statute the direct effect of an agreement or combination must be in restraint of that trade or commerce which is among the several States or with foreign nations.

(3) That where the subject-matter of the agreement does not directly relate to and act upon and embrace interstate commerce, and where the undisputed facts clearly show that the purpose of the agreement was not to regulate, obstruct, or restrain that commerce, but that it was entered into with the object of properly and fairly regulating the transaction of the business in which the parties to the agreement were engaged, such agreement will be upheld as not within the statute, where it can be seen that the character and terms of the agreement are well calculated to attain the purpose for which it was formed, and where the effect of its formation and enforcement upon interstate trade or commerce is in any event but indirect and incidental, and not its purpose or object.

(4) That the rules are evidently of a character to enforce the purpose and object of the exchange as set forth in the preamble, and that for such purpose they are reasonable and fair, and that they can possibly affect interstate trade or commerce in but a remote way, and are not void as violations of the act of Congress.

REPORT OF THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

INSTON v. UNITED STATES, STRATHER v. UNITED STATES, SMITH v. UNITED STATES.
(179 U. S. 266.)

In these cases, which were tried in the District of Columbia, the defendants were found guilty of murder and sentenced to death. Under the act of January 15, 1897, the jury were authorized to qualify their verdict by adding thereto "without capital punishment." The trial judge instructed the jury, however, that the power to qualify might not to be exercised unless there were palliating or mitigating circumstances. The Supreme Court reversed the cases. The holding of the court is stated clearly in the syllabus, as follows:

Under the act of Congress of January 15, 1897, chapter 28, section 1, by which "in all cases where the accused is found guilty of the crime of murder," "the jury may qualify their verdict by adding thereto 'without capital punishment,' and whenever the jury shall return a verdict qualified as aforesaid the person convicted shall be sentenced to imprisonment at hard labor for life," the authority of the jury to decide that the accused shall not be punished capitally is not limited to cases in which the court or the jury is of opinion that there are palliating or mitigating circumstances, but it extends to every case in which, upon a view of the whole evidence, the jury is of opinion that it would not be just or wise to impose capital punishment.

KECK v. UNITED STATES. (179 U. S. 646.)

Keck was tried and convicted of smuggling diamonds into the port of Philadelphia. The case was carried to the Supreme Court and first argued in December, 1896. It was restored to the docket, and reargued in January, 1898. The following March the judgment below was affirmed by a divided court. A motion for a rehearing before a full bench was granted, the case again restored to the docket, and on November 10, 1898, it was argued for the third time. In January, 1899, the judgment of the lower court was reversed, the opinion of the court being delivered by Mr. Justice White. The Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Harlan, Mr. Justice Brewer, and Mr. Justice Brown dissented, the dissenting opinion being delivered by Mr. Justice Brown. The case turned upon the question whether the act of smuggling had been completed; in other words, What is smuggling as defined by the existing statute? The diamonds when seized were in the possession of the captain of the vessel in which they were brought to the United States (who had received them from Keck abroad), in his cabin on the vessel, then anchored in the stream. No attempt had been made to take them ashore or pass them through the custom-house. Under these circumstances the court held that the act of smuggling was not complete. In the dissenting opinion it is insisted that the words "smuggle" and "clandestinely introduce," used in the statute, includes also an importation of goods with an intent to evade the payment of duty. The syllabus follows:

Judgment based upon that portion of Revised Statutes, section 3082, which is an offense to "fraudulently or knowingly import or bring into the United States, without paying duty thereon, any merchandise contrary to law," charging that the defendant, on a date named, "did knowingly, willfully, and unlawfully import and bring into the United States, and did assist in importing and bringing into the United States, to wit, into the port of Philadelphia, 'diamonds of a stated value,' contrary to law and the provisions of the act of Congress in such cases made and provided," is clearly insufficient, as the allegations are too general and do not sufficiently inform the defendant of the nature of the accusation against him.

An indictment for a violation of Revised Statutes, section 2865, which charges that the defendant "did knowingly, willfully, and unlawfully, and with intent to defraud the revenue of the United States, smuggle and clandestinely introduce into the United States, to wit, into the port of Philadelphia, certain 'diamonds' of stated value, which should have been invoiced and duty thereon paid or accounted for, but which, to the knowledge of the defendant and with intent to defraud the revenue, were not invoiced nor the duty paid or accounted for," sufficiently describes the offense to make it clear what articles were charged to have been smuggled.

Under the tariff act of 1894, chapter 349, diamonds were subject to duty.

Mere acts of concealment of merchandise on entering the waters of the United States do not, taken by themselves, constitute smuggling or clandestine introduction.

The offense described in Revised Statutes, section 2865, is not committed by an act done before the obligation to pay or account for the duties arises.

The word "smuggling" had a well-understood import at common law, and in the absence of a particularized definition of its significance in the statute creating it resort may be had to the common law for the purpose of arriving at its meaning.

A review of the principal statutes enacted in this country regulating the collection of customs duties establishes that, so far as they embraced legislation designed to prevent the evasion of duties, they proceeded upon the theory of the English law on the same subject; that is, that they forbade all the acts which were deemed by the lawmaker means to the end of smuggling or clandestinely introducing dutiable goods into the country in violation of law, and which were likewise considered as efficient to enable the offender to reap the benefits of his wrongful acts; and that therefore they forbade and prescribed penalties for everything which could precede smuggling or follow it, without specifically making a distinct and separate offense, designated as smuggling or clandestine introduction.

Whether we consider the testimony of the captain alone or all the testimony contained in the record, it unquestionably establishes that there was no passage of the package of diamonds through the lines of the customs authorities, but, on the contrary, that the package was delivered to the customs officer on board the vessel itself at a time when or before the obligation to make entry and pay the duties arose, and that the offense of smuggling was not committed within the meaning of the statute.

In view of this decision the Department addressed the following communication to the Secretary of the Treasury and was advised by him that he had recommended to Congress an amendment of the section:

JANUARY 16, 1899.

THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

SIR: In the case of Herman Keck v. United States, decided on the 9th instant, the majority of the court, Mr. Justice White delivering the opinion, held that section 2865 of the Revised Statutes, which provides for the punishment of the crime of smuggling or clandestinely introducing goods into the United States, is ineffective in a case where the goods have been clandestinely brought into a port of the United States and seized before they have been landed. The minority of the court, consisting of the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Harlan, Mr. Justice Brewer, and Mr. Justice Brown, the latter delivering the dissenting opinion, held that section 2865 as it now stands covers the case where the accused person has clandestinely brought or introduced dutiable goods into any port of the United States with the intent to land them and evade the payment of duties.

The Keck case was argued three times. In view of the holding of the majority of the court, to leave the statute as it now stands is to make it impracticable to detect and convict smugglers.

For your information, therefore, I inclose copies of the opinions of the court and the dissenting judges in the Keck case, and I also inclose a draft of section 2865 with a suggested amendment, which is underscored, defining the offense of clandestinely introducing goods into the United States or into any port thereof or within any of the waters of the United States for the purpose of evading the payment of duties. A recommendation to Congress of such an amendment to this section as I have indicated may result in legislation which will protect the interests of the revenue in the regard mentioned.

Very respectfully,

JOHN W. GRIGGS,
Attorney-General.

Sec. 2865 R. S. If any person shall knowingly and wilfully, with intent to defraud the revenue of the United States, smuggle into the United States any goods, wares, or merchandise, subject to duty by law, and which should have been invoiced, without paying or accounting for the duties, or, with such intent, shall clandestinely introduce or bring into the United States or into any port thereof, or within any of the waters of the United States, any goods, wares, or merchandise, subject to duty by law, for the purpose of evading the payment of the duty thereon, or shall make out or pass, or attempt to pass, through the custom-house, any false, forged, or fraudulent invoice, every such person, his, her, or their aiders and abettors, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum not exceeding five thousand dollars, or imprisoned for any term of time not exceeding three years, or both, at the discretion of the court.

THE UNITED STATES v. DUELL. (172 U. S., 576.)

This was a test case to determine the constitutionality of the law providing for an appeal to the court of appeals of the District of Columbia from the decision of the Commissioner of Patents in an interference proceeding. The court sustained the validity of the law. The syllabus is as follows:

An appeal to the court of appeals of the District of Columbia from the decision of the Commissioner of Patents in an interference controversy presents all the features of a civil case—a plaintiff, a defendant, and a judge—and deals with a question judicial in its nature, in respect of which the judgment of the court is final so far as the particular action of the Patent Office is concerned; and such judgment is none the less a judgment because its effect may be to aid an administrative or executive body in the performance of duties legally imposed upon it by Congress in execution of a power granted by the Constitution.

In deciding whether a patent shall issue or not the Commissioner of Patents acts on evidence, finds the facts, applies the law, and decides questions affecting not only public but private interests, and likewise as to reissues or extensions, or on interference between contesting claimants, in all of which he exercises judicial functions.

Butterworth v. Hoe, 112 U. S., 50, held to be directly in point, and the language on page 59 held to be also in point, in which the court, speaking of that clause in article 1, section 8, of the Constitution which confers upon Congress the power "to promote the progress of science and useful arts by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries," says:

"The legislation based on this provision regards the right of property in the inventor as a medium of the public advantage derived from his invention; so that in every of the limited monopoly two interests are involved—that of the public, who are the grantors, and that of the patentee. There are thus two parties to every application for a patent, and more when, as in case of interfering claims or patents, other private interests compete for preference. The questions of fact arising in this field find their answers in every department of physical science, in every branch of mechanical art; the questions of law necessary to be applied in the settlement of this class of public and private rights have founded a special branch of technical jurisprudence. The investigation of every claim presented involves the adjudication of disputed questions of fact upon scientific or legal principles; and is, therefore, essentially judicial in its character, and requires the intelligent judgment of a trained body of skilled officials, expert in the various branches of science and art, learned in the history of invention, and proceeding by fixed rules to systematic conclusions."

HOENINGHAUS v. UNITED STATES. (172 U. S., 622.)

The imposition of certain additional duties by way of penalty for undervaluations under the customs administrative act of 1890 was sustained in this case, the court holding (syllabus):

Under the provisions of paragraph 387 of the act of July 24, 1897, and section 7 of the act of June 10, 1890, as amended by section 32 of the act of July 24, 1897, the merchandise in suit, being certain woven fabrics in the piece, composed of silk and cotton, was subject to an ad valorem duty or to a duty based upon or regulated by the value thereof.

An additional duty of 1 per centum of the total appraised value of such merchandise for each 1 per centum that such appraised value exceeded the value declared in the entry, as applied to the particular article in such invoice so undervalued, accrued according to the provisions of section 7 of the act of June 10, 1890, as amended by the act of July 24, 1897.

NICOL v. AMES. IN RE NICHOLS. SKILLEN v. AMES. INGWERSEN v. UNITED STATES. (173 U. S., 509.)

These cases were brought to determine the constitutionality and construction of that provision of the war-revenue act of 1898 which levies a tax upon each sale, agreement of sale, or agreement to sell any products or merchandise at any exchange or board of trade or other similar place. The cases of Nicol v. Ames, In re Nichols, and Skillen v. Ames grew out of transactions on the Chicago Board of Trade. The court held that the law taxing sales of merchandise on such an exchange was valid. In the case of Ingwersen v. United States the sole question was whether the Union Stock Yards, of Chicago, came within the act as being "an exchange or board of trade or other similar place," and the court held it did. The following is the syllabus of the opinion in the cases:

When an act of Congress is claimed to be unconstitutional the presumption is in favor of its validity, and it is only when the question is free from any reasonable doubt that this court should hold an act of the lawmaking power of the nation to be in violation of that fundamental instrument upon which all the powers of the Government rest.

The tax authorized by the act of June 13, 1898, by the board of trade or exchanges upon the sale of property is not a direct tax, nor a tax upon the business itself which is so transacted, but is a duty upon the facilities made use of and actually employed in the transaction of the business, separate and apart from the business itself, and is a constitutional exercise of the powers of taxation granted to Congress.

A sale at an exchange forms a proper basis for a classification which excludes all sales made elsewhere from taxation.

The means actually adopted by Congress, in the act in question, do not illegally interfere with or obstruct the internal commerce of the States, and are not a restraint upon that commerce, so far as to render illegal the means adopted.

There is no difference, for the purpose of this decision, between the Union Stock Yards and an exchange or board of trade.

The annual revenue which is retained to the Government by the decision of these cases in its favor can not be estimated, but it is undoubtedly very large, amounting to millions of dollars.

COSGROVE v. WINNEY. (174 U. S., 64.)

This suit involved a construction of the extradition treaty between Great Britain and the United States. The case itself and the holding of the court is sufficiently stated in the syllabus of the opinion, which is as follows:

The appellant, a Canadian, was extradited from Canada under the extradition treaty between Great Britain and the United States, and being brought before a police court of Detroit was charged with larceny, gave bail for his appearance at the trial, and returned to Canada. Returning from Canada to Detroit voluntarily before the time fixed for the trial, he was arrested on a capias issued from the district court of the United States for the eastern district of Michigan before his extradition, charging him with an offense for which he was not extraditable, and was taken into custody by the marshal of that district. He applied to the district court of the United States for a writ of habeas corpus, which was allowed. After hearing and argument his application for a discharge was refused by the district court.

On appeal to this court it is Held, That under the circumstances the appellant retained the right to have the offense for which he was extradited disposed of, and then to depart in peace, and that this arrest was in abuse of the high process under which he was originally brought into the United States, and can not be sustained.

UNITED STATES v. RANLETT & STONE. (172 U. S., 133.)

This case arose out of an importation of about 3,000,000 grain bags in 1893 and 1894, which were claimed to be entitled to free entry to the United States because of American manufacture, under paragraph 493 of the tariff act of 1890, but which on examination were found by the United States appraiser to be composed in part of American and in part of foreign made bags. The court held that the decision of the appraiser after examination must stand until reversed; that the burden is upon the importer to show the character of the merchandise which he claims to be entitled to free entry; and that the collector has a right to assume, where merchandise liable in large part to duty is entered as exempt therefrom, that the mingling of such dutiable and nondutiable merchandise was intentional, and designed to evade the payment of duty. The syllabus of the opinion is as follows:

Section 7 of the act of February 8, 1875, chapter 36, 18 Stat., 307, 308, was repealed by the tariff acts of 1883 and of 1890.

When a later statute is a complete revision of the subject to which the earlier statute related, and the new legislation was manifestly intended as a substitute for the former legislation, the prior act must be held to have been repealed.

When bags are imported, part of which are returned bags of American manufacture and part foreign, if the appraiser, after examination, decides that the goods are not as described, his judgment must stand unless reversed.

Section 2901, Rev. Stat., was intended for the benefit of the Government, and is not mandatory.

Where merchandise, liable in large part to duty, is entered as exempt therefrom, the collector has the right to assume that the mingling was intentional and with design to evade the revenue laws, and it devolves upon the importer to show what part of the whole he contends should not be taxed.

In the light of the rulings of the Treasury Department, and the special circumstances of the case, the court is not disposed to hold that if the proportion of dutiable bags sufficiently appeared or might reasonably have been ascertained, the circuit court could not have adjudged a recovery of that proportion, or directed a reliquidation.

In view of the testimony, and considering that the statute was not strictly pursued in the examination (though the court perceives no reason to doubt the faithfulness of the officials in the discharge of their duties), and the difficulties in the way of determining the make of the bags disclosed by the evidence, and bearing in mind that the taxation of so many of the bags as were of American manufacture operated as a penalty in spite of the concession that no fraud on the revenue was intended, the court thinks it unnecessary to remand the cause for another hearing, and the ends of justice will be best subserved by directing a decree for the refunding of one-fourth of the duties paid.

UNITED STATES v. RIO GRANDE DAM AND IRRIGATION COMPANY. (174 U. S., 690.)

In 1897, by direction of the Attorney-General, the Government filed a bill in equity in the district court of New Mexico against the Rio Grande Dam and Irrigation Company and the Rio Grande Irrigation and Land Company, the former a corporation organized under the laws of New Mexico and the latter a corporation organized under the laws of Great Britain, to restrain these companies from constructing a dam across the Rio Grande River at Elephant Butte and appropriating its waters for irrigation purposes, on the ground that such appropriation would interfere with the navigability of the river below the dam. A temporary injunction was granted, which was afterwards discharged by the court and the bill dismissed, on the ground that it did not state a case entitling the Government to the relief asked, the court taking judicial notice and determining that the Rio Grande River is not navigable within the Territory of New Mexico.

From the decision of the supreme court of the Territory to which the case was appealed an appeal was taken to the Supreme Court, by which the decision below was reversed and the cause remanded with instructions to set aside the decree of dismissal and to "order an inquiry into the question whether the intended acts of the defendant in the construction of a dam and in appropriating the waters of the Rio Grande will substantially diminish the navigability of that stream within the limits of present navigability, and if so, to enter a decree restraining those acts to the extent that they will so diminish." The syllabus of the opinion in the case is as follows:

The river Rio Grande within the limits of New Mexico is not a stream over which, in its ordinary condition, trade and travel can be conducted in the customary modes of trade and travel on water.

The unquestioned rule of the common law was that every riparian owner was entitled to the continued natural flow of the stream ; but every State has the power, within its dominion, to change this rule and permit the appropriation of the flowing waters for such purposes as it deems wise. Whether a Territory has this right is not decided.

By acts of Congress referred to in the opinion Congress recognized and assented to the appropriation of water in contravention of the common-law rules, but it is not to be inferred that Congress thereby meant to confer on any State the right to appropriate all the waters of the tributary streams which unite into a navigable water course, and so destroy the navigability of that water course in derogation of the interests of all the people of the United States.

The act of September 19, 1890, chapter 907, on this subject, must be held controlling, at least as to any rights attempted to be created since its passage.

MORRIS v. UNITED STATES. (174 U. S., 196.)

This well-known case, involving the title to "Potomac Flats," after more than a decade of litigation has been decided in favor of the United States. The questions involved are set out with sufficient fullness in the syllabus of the opinion below. The decision of the case saves to the Government more than $20,000,000.

The grant by Charles I to Lord Baltimore on the 20th of June, 1632, included in unmistakable terms the Potomac River, and the premises in question in this suit, and declared that thereafter the province of Maryland, its freeholders and inhabitants, should not be held or reputed a member or part of the land of Virginia; and the territory and title thus granted were never divested, and upon the revolution the State of Maryland became possessed of the navigable waters of the State, including the Potomac River, and of the soils thereunder, and, by the act of cession to the United States, that portion of the Potomac River with the subjacent soil, which was appurtenant to and part of the territory granted, became vested in the United States; and the court, in consequence, affirms the judgment of the court below in respect of the Marshall heirs, denying their claims.

It was not the intention of Congress by the resolution of February 16, 1839, to subject lands lying beneath the waters of the Potomac, and within the limits of the District of Columbia, to sale by the methods therein provided; and the recent decisions of the courts of Maryland to the contrary, made since the cession to the United States, and at variance with those which prevailed at the time of the cession, can not control the decision of this court on this question; but as the invalidity of the patent in the present case was not apparent on its face, but was proved by extrinsic evidence, and as the controversy respecting the patent was not abandoned by the defendants, they are not entitled to a decree for the return of the purchase money or for costs.

It was the intention of the founders of the city of Washington to locate it upon the bank or shore of the Potomac River, and to bound it by a street or levee, so as to secure to the inhabitants and those engaged in commerce free access to the navigable water, and such intention has never been departed from.

As to land above high-water mark in Washington, the title of the United States must be found in transactions between the private proprietors and the United States.

proprietors of such land, by their conveyances, completely divested themselves title to the tracts conveyed, and the lands were granted to the trustees.

The Dermott map was the one intended by President Washington to be annexed by act of March 2, 1797; but the several maps are to be taken together as representing the intentions of the founders of the city; and, so far as possible, are to be reconciled as parts of one scheme or plan.

From the first conception of the Federal city, the establishment of a public street, running the city on the south and to be known as Water street, was intended, and this intention has never been departed from; and it follows that the holders of lots and squares abutting on the line of Water street are not entitled to riparian rights, nor are they entitled to rights of private property in the waters, or the reclaimed lands lying between Water street and the navigable channels of the river, unless they can show valid grants to the same from Congress, or from the city on the authority of Congress, or such a long-protracted and notorious possession and enjoyment of defined parcels of land as to justify a court, under the doctrine of prescription, in transferring grants.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company, having entered Washington long after the adoption of the maps and plans, can not validly claim riparian rights as appurtenant to the lots or parts of lots which it purchased in Water street, as it was the persistent purpose of the founders of the city to maintain a public street along the river front; and Congress and the city only intended to permit that company to construct and maintain its canal within the limits of the city and to approve its selection of the route and terminus.

No riparian rights belonged to the lots between Seventh street west and Twenty-seventh street west.

There is no merit in the claim of the descendants of Robert Peter.

It is impossible to reconcile the succession of acts of Congress and of the city council with the theory that the wharves of South Water street were erected by individuals in the exercise of private rights of property.

The failure of the city to open Water street created no title in Willis to the land and water south of the territory appropriated for that street.

The court does not understand that it is the intention of Congress, in exercising its jurisdiction over this territory, to take for public use, without compensation, the private property of individuals, and therefore, while affirming the decree of the court below as to the claims of the Marshall heirs, and as to the Kidwell patent and as to the claims for riparian rights, it remands the case to the court below for further proceedings.

DUNLAP v. THE UNITED STATES. (173 U. S., 65.)

This case was a proceeding in the Court of Claims by a user of alcohol in one of the industrial arts for a rebate of the tax paid on alcohol under the tariff act of 1894. The act provided that regulations for the purpose of carrying its provisions into effect should be prepared by the Secretary of the Treasury. The Secretary found it impracticable to formulate and put in force such regulations in the absence of any appropriation by Congress to defray the expenses of the administration of the act. Under the instruction, therefore, of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue no application for such rebate was permitted to be entertained by collectors of internal revenue. The court held that the act did not give a right in præsentia to a rebate, but that the grant was conditioned upon the use of alcohol in compliance with regulations to be prescribed.

There were about $4,000,000 worth of claims arising under this act, pending in the Court of Claims, and it is understood that about $2,000,000 additional were to be filed, had the decision been favorable to the claimants. There was, therefore, saved to the Government by the decision in this case about $6,000,000. The syllabus of the opinion is as follows:

The act of August 24, 1894, chapter 349, does not grant a right in presenti to all persons who may, after the passage of the law, use alcohol in the arts, or in any medicinal or other like compounds, to a rebate or repayment of the tax paid on such alcohol, but the grant was conditioned on use, in compliance with regulations to be prescribed, in the absence of which regulations the right did not so vest as to create a cause of action by reason of the unregulated use.

THE OLINDE RODRIGUES. (174 U. S., 510.)

This was the first prize case of the Spanish-American war which was considered by the Supreme Court. It grew out of the capture by the cruiser Ven Orleans of the French vessel Olinde Rodrigues for an attempted violation of the blockade of the port of San Juan, Porto Rico. The principal question determined by the court was that the blockade of San Juan was an effective blockade, although maintained by one modern cruiser alone. The syllabus of the case is as follows:

A blockade, to be binding, must be known to exist.

There is no rule of law determining that the presence of a particular force is necessary in order to render a blockade effective, but, on the contrary, the test is whether it is practically effective, and that is a mixed question, more of fact than of law.

While it is not practicable to define what degree of danger shall constitute a test of the efficiency of a blockade, it is enough if the danger is real and apparent.

An effective blockade is one which makes it dangerous for vessels to attempt to enter the blockaded port, and the question of effectiveness is not controlled by the number of the blockading forces, but one modern cruiser is enough as matter of law, if it is sufficient in fact for the purpose and renders it dangerous for other craft to enter the port.

The blockade in this case was practically effective, and until it should be raised by an actual driving away by the enemy, it was not open to a neutral trader to ask whether, as against a possible superiority of the enemy's fleet, it was or was not effective in a military sense.

After the captors had put in their proofs, the claimant, without introducing anything further, moved for the discharge and restitution of the steamship, on the ground of the ineffective character of the blockade, and because the evidence did not justify a decree of condemnation; and, in addition, claimed the right to adduce further proofs, if its motion should be denied. Held, that the settled practice of prize courts forbids the taking of further proofs under such circumstances.

The entire record in this case being considered, the court is of opinion that restitution of the Olinde Rodrigues should be awarded, without damages, and that payment of the costs and expenses incident to her custody and preservation, and of all costs in the case, except the fees of counsel, should be imposed upon the ship.

BROWN v. HITCHCOCK (173 U. S. 473.)

* the act of September 28, 1850, chapter 84, 9 Stat., 519, known as the swamp-the legal title to land passes only on delivery of a patent, and as the record in this case discloses no patent, there was no passing of the legal title from the United States, whatever equitable rights may have vested. Until the legal title to land passes from the Government, inquiry as to all equitable rights comes within the cognizance of the Land Department.

Although cases may arise in which a party is justified in coming into the courts of the District of Columbia to assert his rights as against a proceeding in the Land Department, or when that department refuses to act at all, yet, as a general rule, power is vested in the department to determine all questions of equitable right and title, upon proper notice to the parties interested, and the courts should be resorted to only when the legal title has passed from the Government.

This case should be noted as of marked importance in fixing the jurisdiction of the Executive in the administration of the swamp-land grant, as well as in laying down a general rule by which it may be determined when the authority of the Interior Department over the disposition of public lands terminates.

The case arose on a bill filed in the supreme court of the District of Columbia asking for an order restraining the Secretary of the Interior from carrying into effect a decision of his predecessor directing the cancellation of certain approved swamp-land selections made on behalf of the State of Oregon; it being alleged that through a sale by the State of certain of said selected lands the plaintiff had become the owner thereof, and that the defendant is without authority to carry said decision of his predecessor into effect.

The court held that under the swamp-land grant the legal title passes only on delivery of the patent; that in the case at bar the record discloses no patent, and consequently whatever equitable rights or title may have vested in the State the legal title remains in the United States. The court then proceeds to say that until the legal title to public land passes from the Government, inquiry as to all equitable rights comes within the cognizance of the Land Department, which may, upon proper notice to the parties interested, determine all questions of equitable right or title, and that the courts must as a general rule be resorted to only when the legal title has passed from the Government.

PRIZE CASES.

Since my last annual report the prize cases therein noted in Exhibit Z as pending in the district courts have been disposed of, all of the vessels with their cargoes pending in the Southern district of Florida being condemned, except in the case of the Greenan Castle, which was restored. In the cases of the Anguedita and Cristina a decree pro confesso was entered, and final decree has not yet been rendered. Subsequent to my report additional prize proceedings were instituted in the Eastern district of New York, by designation of the Navy Department, for the determination of the questions arising in reference to the capture or destruction of the Spanish armed merchant vessel, the Santo Domingo, near Isle of Pines, off the southern coast of Cuba, and the capture of a certain steel lighter named Alphonso XII, near Manzanillo. Proceedings have also been instituted in the supreme court of the District of Columbia, sitting in prize, on behalf of the officers and men serving in the respective fleets of Admiral Dewey and Rear-Admiral Sampson, to determine questions of prize or bounty relative to the destruction or capture of the various Spanish national vessels of war overcome by our forces.

Auxiliary to or connected with these proceedings, certain proceedings have been instituted on behalf of the said officers and men in the Court of Claims for the recovery of bounty, if bounty shall be found due under the facts and law as they exist.

As was noted in my previous report, appeals to the Supreme Court from the decrees of condemnation below have been taken on the part of the claimants in various cases, and in one case, where the decree below was against the Government and captors, an appeal was duly taken on behalf of the United States. Upon motion of the United States all of these cases were advanced by the court for hearing, and the one last noted, that of the Olinde Rodrigues, was heard by the court and decided at the last term, the decision reversing the view of the prize court and holding that a blockade may be established and effectively maintained by a single modern armored vessel of war, but that the facts as to the intent and attempt to violate the blockade at San Juan, Porto Rico, by this vessel were not so clearly shown as to require condemnation of the vessel of a friendly nation, although the costs and expenses were placed upon the claimants.

The cases now pending on appeal in the Supreme Court are those of the Guido, Pedro, Buena Ventura, Panama, Newfoundland, Adula, Lola, and Paquete Habana, all of which will probably be heard by the court before Congress meets in December; and also those of the Benito Estenger (appeal by claimants) and the Carlos F. Roses, in the latter of which the vessel was condemned but the cargo released, and the Government took an appeal as to the cargo. The appeals in the two latter cases will probably be heard during the present term. The appeals in ten cases, known as the "fishing smack cases," are dependent on the determination of the cases of the Lola and Paquete Habana, which latter have been selected as test cases, and raise the question of exemption claimed because of the character of the property (as too insignificant for prize in international law), and of Cuban ownership by claimants resident in Cuba and assumedly favorable to the insurgents.

As to the other cases noted above, those of the Guido, Pedro, Buena Ventura, and Panama involve the question of the exemption claimed on behalf of enemy property under the President's proclamation of April 26, 1898; the Newfoundland and Adula involve attempts to violate the blockade proclaimed at Havana and that established de facto at Guantanamo, respectively; the Benito Estenger involves the colorable transfer of an enemy vessel to a neutral; and the Carlos F. Roses the question of the neutrality of the cargo on board an enemy vessel which was condemned.

In addition to the sales and sums realized under prize adjudications, as shown by Exhibit Z of my last report, the following sums have been realized by subsequent sales of prize property: Vessels, $6,590; cargoes, $3,040.66.

The question of distribution of prize money to the naval captors is committed by the statutes to the district courts and the Departments of the Treasury and the Navy.

THE COURT OF CLAIMS.

For a detailed account of the business transacted in the Court of Claims for the last fiscal year, reference is respectfully made to the very full and satisfactory report of Assistant Attorney-General Pradt, which is submitted herewith.

This important branch of litigation has been conducted by Mr. Pradt and his corps of assistants with beneficial results to the Government, and with as much dispatch as is possible, taking into account the large number of cases pending and the enormous sums involved. The recommendations made by Assistant Attorney-General Pradt for additional legislation, giving to the United States the same right of appeal to the Supreme Court from judgments of the circuit court of appeals in actions originating in the circuit and district courts that it has in similar cases brought in the Court of Claims; to provide for a more thorough and stringent enforcement of subpoenas issued to witnesses out of the Court of Claims, and for additional clerical assistance, meet with my approval.

INDIAN DEPREDAATION CLAIMS.

The report of Assistant Attorney-General Thompson, to whom is assigned the charge and conduct of the defense of claims filed against the United States on account of Indian depredations, gives the statistics of litigation in this class of cases during the past fiscal year. The result of the trial of these cases continues to be satisfactory, the percentage of recovery to the amount of claims made in cases determined being only 23 per cent. In about half the cases the claims are disallowed entirely and judgment for the United States is recovered.

In this Department also business has been dispatched with promptitude, and the conduct of the cases on behalf of the Government has generally been kept in advance of that on behalf of the claimants.

THE COURT OF PRIVATE LAND CLAIMS.

The report of United States Attorney Matt. G. Reynolds, in charge of cases in the Court of Private Land Claims, is appended. It discloses a gratifying exhibit of the success of the Department in the various cases decided by the court during the past year.

It will doubtless be necessary for Congress to provide for some tribunal similar to this court to hear and dispose of, upon such principles as Congress may specify, claims of an incomplete character to public lands in the recently acquired territory of the United States in Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands. As to Porto Rico especially, early provision for the determination of questions of this kind ought to be made, and legislation ought to be passed to provide methods and restrictions under which rights in public lands and waters in that island can be acquired. The rivers and streams, as well as the water front on the seaboard, in Porto Rico, were formerly vested in the Crown of Spain, and the ownership of them has now passed to the United States and can only be disposed of in accordance with the will of Congress. No structure or improvement for the benefit of the towns or cities which requires the use of the waters of the streams or the shores of the island can now be made, as there is at present no law which authorizes any person to grant the necessary license or permission for even the temporary diversion of the waters, whether navigable or not.

COMBINATIONS IN RESTRAINT OF TRADE OR COMMERCE.

Application is occasionally made to the Department of Justice to have legal proceedings brought in the name of the United States against corporations or combinations of companies that are alleged to be engaged in forming or maintaining monopolies or agreements in restraint of trade or competition. Such actions can be maintained only when the offense comes within the scope of a Federal statute.

The only Federal legislation against combinations in restraint of trade is contained in the so-called Sherman act of July 2, 1890 (26 Stats., 209), entitled "An act to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies."

The first clause of section 1 reads as follows:

Every contract, combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy, in restraint of trade or commerce among the several States, or with foreign nations, is hereby declared to be illegal.

Section 2 provides as follows:

Every person who shall monopolize, or attempt to monopolize, or combine or conspire with any other person or persons to monopolize any part of the trade or commerce among the several States, or with foreign nations, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

Section 7 provides as follows:

Any person who shall be injured in his business or property by any other person or corporation by reason of anything forbidden or declared to be unlawful by this act may sue therefor in any circuit court of the United States in the district in which the defendant resides or is found, without respect to the amount in controversy, and shall recover threefold the damages by him sustained, and the costs of suit, including a reasonable attorney's fee.

It will be observed that this statute is directed only at combinations or monopolies in restraint of trade or commerce among the several States or with foreign nations. It does not pretend to go into other branches of business or commerce, or attempt in any way to interfere with those transactions which are carried on exclusively within the confines of a State, or which do not amount to what, under the decisions of the United States Supreme Court, is understood by the term "interstate commerce." And this is because the statute was passed by Congress under the power conferred upon it by the Constitution (section 8, clause 3) "to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States." The Federal Government has no constitutional right to supervise, direct, or interfere with the transaction of ordinary business by the people of the several States unless such business relates directly, and not incidentally, to interstate commerce, and such has been the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States. (United States v. E. C. Knight Co., 156 U. S., 1.)

It appeared in the Knight case that by the purchase of the stock of four Philadelphia refineries, with shares of its own stock, the American Sugar Refining Company acquired nearly a complete control of the manufacture of refined sugar in the United States. The Government charged that the contracts under which these purchases were made constituted combinations in restraint of trade, and that in entering into them the defendants combined and conspired to restrain the trade and commerce in refined sugar among the several States and with foreign nations contrary to the act of Congress of July 2, 1890. The relief sought was the cancellation of the agreements under which the stock was transferred; the redelivery of the stock to the parties, respectively, and an injunction against the further performance of the agreements and further violations of the act.

The court held that, conceding the result of this transaction was the creation of a monopoly in the manufacture of a necessary of life, it could not be suppressed under the provisions of the Sherman act, because the contracts and acts of the defendants related exclusively to the acquisition of the Philadelphia refineries and the business of sugar refining in Pennsylvania, which bore no direct relation to commerce between the States or with foreign nations. The object was manifestly private gain in the manufacture of a commodity, but not through the control of interstate or foreign commerce. There was nothing in the proofs to indicate an intention to put a restraint upon trade or commerce, and the fact that trade or commerce might be indirectly affected was not enough to entitle complainants to a decree.

In the course of the opinion delivered by the Chief Justice, he considers the line of delimitation between the right of the Federal Government, under the interstate-commerce clause of the Constitution, to exercise control of that branch of commerce and the right of the States to exercise exclusive jurisdiction over all matters pertaining to the lives, health, property, and business of its citizens which do not directly involve interstate commerce. The following quotations from the opinion are pertinent:

The fundamental question is whether, conceding that the existence of a monopoly in manufacture is established by the evidence, that monopoly can be directly suppressed under the act of Congress in the mode attempted by this bill.

It can not be denied that the power of a State to protect the lives, health, and property of its citizens and to preserve good order and the public morals—"the power to govern men and things within the limits of its dominion"—is a power originally and always belonging to the States, not surrendered by them to the General Government, nor directly restrained by the Constitution of the United States, and essentially exclusive. The relief of the citizens of each State from the burden of monopoly and the evils resulting from the restraint of trade among such citizens was left with the States to deal with, and this court has recognized their possession of that power even to the extent of holding that an employment or business carried on by private individuals, when it becomes a matter of such public interest and importance as to create a common charge or burden upon the citizen—in other words, when it becomes a practical monopoly to which the citizen is compelled to resort, and by means of which a tribute can be exacted from the community—is subject to regulation by State legislative power. On the other hand, the power of Congress to regulate commerce among the several States is also exclusive.

The Constitution does not provide that interstate commerce shall be free, but, by the grant of this exclusive power to regulate it, it was left free except as Congress might impose restraints. Therefore it has been determined that the failure of Congress to exercise this exclusive power in any case is an expression of its will that the subject shall be free from restrictions or impositions upon it by the several States, and if a law passed by a State in the exercise of its acknowledged powers comes into conflict with that will the Congress and the State can not occupy the position of equal opposing sovereignties, because the Constitution declares its supremacy and that of the laws passed in pursuance thereof; and that which is not supreme must yield to that which is supreme. "Commerce, undoubtedly, is traffic," said Chief Justice Marshall, "but it is something more; it is intercourse. It describes the commercial intercourse between nations and parts of nations in all its branches, and is regulated by prescribed rules for carrying on that intercourse." That which belongs to commerce is within the jurisdiction of the United States, but that which does not belong to commerce is within the jurisdiction of the police power of the State. (Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat., 1, 189, 210; Brown v. Maryland, 12 Wheat., 419, 448; The License Cases, 5 How., 504, 599; Mobile v. Kimball, 102 U. S., 691; Bowman v. Chicago and N. W. Railway, 125 U. S., 465; Leisy v. Hardin, 135 U. S., 100; In re Rahrer, 140 U. S., 545, 555.)

The argument is that the power to control the manufacture of refined sugar is a monopoly over a necessary of life, to the enjoyment of which by a large part of the population of the United States interstate commerce is indispensable, and that, therefore, the General Government, in the exercise of the power to regulate commerce, may repress such monopoly directly and set aside the instruments which have created it. But this argument can not be confined to necessities of life merely, and must include all articles of general consumption. Doubtless the power to control the manufacture of a given thing involves in a certain sense the control of its disposition, but this is a secondary and not the primary sense; and, although the exercise of that power may result in bringing the operation of commerce into play, it does not control it and affects it only incidentally and indirectly. Commerce succeeds to manufacture and is not a part of it. The power to regulate commerce is the power to prescribe the rule by which commerce shall be governed, and is a power independent of the power to suppress monopoly; but it may operate in repression of monopoly whenever that comes within the rules by which commerce is governed or whenever the transaction is itself a monopoly of commerce.

It is vital that the independence of the commercial power and of the police power and the delimitation between them, however sometimes perplexing, should always be recognized and observed, for while the one furnishes the strongest bond of union, the other is essential to the preservation of the autonomy of the States as required by our dual form of government; and acknowledged evils, however grave and urgent they may appear to be, had better be borne than the risk be run, in the effort to suppress them, of more serious consequences by resort to expedients of even doubtful constitutionality.

It will be perceived how far-reaching the proposition is that the power of dealing with a monopoly directly may be exercised by the General Government whenever interstate or international commerce may be ultimately affected. The regulation of commerce applies to the subjects of commerce and not to matters of internal police.

As an appropriate illustration and discussion of the exclusiveness of State jurisdiction in all matters except those involving interstate commerce, the Chief Justice quotes the opinion of the court in the case of Kidd v. Pearson, 128 U. S., 1:

No distinction is more popular to the common mind or more clearly expressed in economic and political literature than that between manufacture and commerce. Manufacture is transformation—the fashioning of raw materials into a change of form for use. The functions of commerce are different. The buying and selling and the transportation incidental thereto constitute commerce; and the regulation of commerce in the constitutional sense embraces the regulation, at least, of such transportation. * * * If it be held that the term includes the regulation of all such manufactures as are intended to be the subject of commercial transactions in the future, it is impossible to deny that it would also include all productive industries that contemplate the same thing. The result would be that Congress would be invested, to the exclusion of the States, with the power to regulate not only manufactures, but also agriculture, horticulture, stock raising, domestic fisheries, mining—in short, every branch of human industry. For is there one of them that does not contemplate, more or less clearly, an interstate or foreign market? Does not the wheat grower of the Northwest or the cotton planter of the South plant, cultivate, and harvest his crop with an eye on the prices at Liverpool, New York, and Chicago? The power being vested in Congress and denied to the States, it would follow as an inevitable result that the duty would devolve on Congress to regulate all of these delicate, multiform, and vital interests—interests which in their nature are and must be local in all the details of their successful management. * * *

The demands of such a supervision would require, not uniform legislation generally applicable throughout the United States, but a swarm of statutes only locally applicable and utterly inconsistent. Any movement toward the establishment of rules of production in this vast country, with its many different climates and opportunities, could only be at the sacrifice of the peculiar advantages of a large part of the localities in it, if not of every one of them. On the other hand, any movement toward the local, detailed, and incongruous legislation required by such interpretation would be about the widest possible departure from the declared object of the clause in question. Nor this alone. Even in the exercise of the power contended for, Congress would be confined to the regulation, not of certain branches of industry, however numerous, but to those instances in each and every branch where the producer contemplated an interstate market. These instances would be almost infinite, as we have seen, but still there would always remain the possibility, and often it would be the case, that the producer contemplated a domestic market. In that case the supervisory power must be executed by the State; and the interminable trouble would be presented, that whether the one power or the other should exercise the authority in question would be determined, not by any general or intelligible rule, but by the secret and changeable intention of the producer in each and every act of production. A situation more paralyzing to the State governments and more provocative of conflicts between the General Government and the States, and less likely to have been what the framers of the Constitution intended, it would be difficult to imagine.

Contracts, combinations, or conspiracies to control domestic enterprise in manufacture, agriculture, mining, production in all its forms, or to raise or lower prices or wages, might unquestionably tend to restrain external as well as domestic trade, but the restraint would be an indirect result, however inevitable and whatever its extent, and such result would not necessarily determine the object of the contract, combination, or conspiracy.

Again, all the authorities agree that in order to vitiate a contract or combination it is not essential that its result should be a complete monopoly; it is sufficient if it really tends to that end and to deprive the public of the advantages which flow from free competition. Slight reflection will show that if the national power extends to all contracts and combinations in manufacture, agriculture, mining, and other productive industries, whose ultimate result may affect external commerce, comparatively little of business operations and affairs would be left for State control.

It was in the light of well-settled principles that the act of July 2, 1890, was framed. Congress did not attempt thereby to assert with monopoly directly as such, or to limit and restrict the rights of corporations created by the States or the citizens of the States in the acquisition, control, or disposition of property, or to regulate or prescribe the price or prices at which property or the products thereof should be sold, or to make criminal the acts of persons in the acquisition and control of property which the States of their residence or creation sanctioned or permitted. Aside from the provisions applicable where Congress might exercise municipal power, what the law struck at was combinations, contracts, and conspiracies to monopolize trade and commerce among the several States or with foreign nations; but the contracts and acts of the defendants related exclusively to the acquisition of the Philadelphia refineries and the business of sugar refining in Pennsylvania, and bore no direct relation to commerce between the States or with foreign nations. The object was manifestly private gain in the manufacture of the commodity, but not through the control of interstate or foreign commerce.

It is true that the bill alleged that the products of these refineries were sold and distributed among the several States, and that all the companies were engaged in trade or commerce with the several States and with foreign nations; but this was no more than to say that trade and commerce served manufacture to fulfill its function. Sugar was refined for sale, and sales were probably made at Philadelphia for consumption, and undoubtedly for resale by the first purchasers throughout Pennsylvania and other States, and refined sugar was also forwarded by the companies to other States for sale. Nevertheless it does not follow that an attempt to monopolize, or the actual monopoly of, the manufacture was an attempt, whether executory or consummated, to monopolize commerce, even though, in order to dispose of the product, the instrumentality of commerce was necessarily invoked. There was nothing in the proofs to indicate any intention to put a restraint upon trade or commerce, and the fact, as we have seen, that trade or commerce might be indirectly affected was not enough to entitle complainants to a decree. The subject-matter of the sale was shares of manufacturing stock, and the relief sought was the surrender of property which had already passed and the suppression of the alleged monopoly in manufacture by the restoration of the status quo before the transfers; yet the act of Congress only authorized the circuit courts to proceed by way of preventing and restraining violations of the act in respect of contracts, combinations, or conspiracies in restraint of interstate or international trade or commerce.

In the recent case of Hopkins v. United States, 171 U. S., 578, the court reiterated its opinion that the Sherman Act had reference only to that trade or commerce which exists or may exist among the several States or with foreign nations, and has no application whatever to other trade or commerce.

And it held that in order to come within the prohibition and remedy of the Sherman Act the combination, business, or occupation sought to be condemned must be one which directly affects interstate commerce, and that combinations in a business which affect interstate commerce only in an indirect and incidental manner are not within the statute.

If the Federal Government has constitutionally the power to regulate by legislation all contracts and combinations in manufacture, agriculture, mining, and all the vast field of productive industry, including the employment of labor and the investment of capital, where not the direct but only the incidental or ultimate result may affect interstate commerce, then, as pointed out by Chief Justice Fuller, it is impossible to say what, if anything, of the ordinary business of life would remain for State regulation or control.

The ordinary affairs of business and trade, of industry and production, are governable by the laws of the several States. The State legislatures can say what methods of bargain and sale, what forms of commercial or labor contracts, what kinds of corporations or partnerships, shall be permissible within their several jurisdictions. The power of control or regulation by the Federal Government exists only in exceptional instances where actually conferred by the Constitution of the United States. Such an exception is the regulation of interstate commerce. But unless authority for the control of a branch of industry or business by the United States can be found in the Constitution it can not rightfully be exercised, but must be left where it rested before the Union was founded—with the people of the several States.

Of course I do not refer here to that kind of incidental regulation sometimes exercised by the Federal Government in aid of acts levying taxes. In all such cases the object of the law is the raising of revenue and not the regulation of the business or branch of production which is taxed. It is to secure the honest payment of taxes, not to furnish salutary safeguards for the general public.

In every instance, therefore, where resort is sought to Federal jurisdiction against combinations in restraint of trade, the first question to be decided is, What kind of trade is affected? If not that sort known as interstate commerce, then the Federal courts are without jurisdiction. It is also obvious on principle and from reference to the decisions of the Federal Supreme Court that a direct subject of the combination must be commerce; not simply production, not simply manufacture, not the mere application of labor or skill, but that composite transaction known as commerce, which involves the buying, selling, and exchange of commodities, and their transportation and delivery.

It is also well settled and perfectly clear on principle that it is not all commerce which is subject to Federal regulation and control, but only such as is carried on between the several States or with other nations—what is familiarly and accurately called interstate commerce.

If, therefore, any particular trade, business, enterprise, system of manufacture or production of any kind, not having the elements of commerce as legally defined; or any such business possessing the quality of commerce, but not extending as such between the States or with other nations, but confined in commercial operation to the limits of a State, is so organized or operated as to form a total or partial monopoly which injuriously restrains trade and competition, it can not be reached under the Federal jurisdiction, but is subject only to the laws of the particular State in which it operates. There is no question of the right and power of every State to make and enforce laws in restraint of monopoly; that is the normal and proper sphere of State autonomy; while the United States, not having been formed as a government for the regulation of the internal affairs and businesses of the States, is limited in its authority to the regulation of that kind of business described as commerce between the States and with foreign nations.

In all cases where the facts presented to the Attorney-General, capable of legal proof, have established satisfactorily such an agreement or combination in restraint of interstate commerce as is contemplated by the Sherman act, legal proceedings have been taken by him in the name of the United States either to dissolve the combination or to punish the offenders by indictment.

The following list comprises the suits hitherto instituted on behalf of the Government under that act against business combinations:

(SEE 43 FED. REP., 898.)

Proceeding against all of the coal companies doing business in the city of Nashville as members of the "Coal Exchange," for a preliminary injunction to restrain the operations of the exchange.

Preliminary injunction denied.

UNITED STATES v. GREENHUT ET AL., 1892 (MASS. AND OHIO). (SEE FED. REP., 469.)

Proceeding by indictment against the officers of the Distilling and Cattle Feeding Company (whisky trust), to restrain the operations of the alleged combination.

Indictment quashed.

1892. The same case is reported in 51 Fed. Rep., 205, 213, on an application for a warrant of removal to Massachusetts, where the indictment had been found.

Removal denied and prisoners discharged.

UNITED STATES v. NELSON ET AL., 1892 (MINN.). (SEE 52 FED. REP., 646.)

An indictment against members of a combination of dealers in lumber.

UNITED STATES v. PATTERSON ET AL., 1893 (MASS.). (SEE 55 FED. REP., 605; 59 FED. REP., 280.)

Indictment of members of a combination organized to control commerce in cash registers.

Certain counts of indictment quashed. It does not appear that there were any subsequent proceedings in this case.

UNITED STATES v. MOORE, 1898 (UTAH). (SEE 85 FED. REP., 465.)

Indictment against members of an association of dealers in coal. The circuit court of appeals for the eighth circuit held that under the act admitting Utah as a State the Federal court was without jurisdiction.

Indictment dismissed.

UNITED STATES v. COAL DEALERS' ASSOCIATION, 1898 (CAL.). (SEE 85 FED. REP., 252.)

Bill for an injunction to restrain the operations of a combination of coal dealers organized as the "Coal Dealers' Association of California."

UNITED STATES v. HOPKINS ET AL., 1897 (KANS.). (SEE 82 FED. REP., 529; 171 U. S. 578.)

Injunction proceeding against the members of an unincorporated exchange or association known as the "Kansas City Live Stock Exchange," organized to control the business of the shipment and sale of live stock.

An injunction was granted, and on appeal to the Supreme Court the decree below was reversed and the bill ordered dismissed.

UNITED STATES v. ANDERSON ET AL., 1898 (MO.). (SEE 171 U. S., 604.)

A case similar to the former case of United States v. Hopkins, but brought against the "Traders' Live Stock Exchange." The main difference was that the members of the Traders' Exchange were themselves purchasers of cattle on the market while the defendants in the former case were commission merchants, who sold cattle upon commission.

Bill dismissed on appeal.

UNITED STATES v. TRANS-MISSOURI FREIGHT ASSOCIATION, 1892 (KANS.). (SEE 53 FED. REP., 440; 58 FED. REP., 58; 166 U. S., 290.)

A bill in equity to enjoin the operations of a combination of railroads engaged in interstate commerce, formed for the purpose of maintaining just and reasonable rates, preventing unjust discriminations, etc.

The bill was dismissed by the circuit court, but on appeal by the United States to the Supreme Court the decree below was reversed, and the association was dissolved.

UNITED STATES v. JOINT TRAFFIC ASSOCIATION, 1896 (N. Y.). (SEE 76 FED. REP., 895; 171 U. S., 506.)

Bill in equity to enjoin violations of the interstate commerce law by a combination of Eastern railroads.

The bill was dismissed in the lower court, but on appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States the decree below was reversed, and the association was dissolved.

UNITED STATES v. E. C. KNIGHT CO., 1894 (PA.). (SEE 60 FED. REP., 306, 934; 156 U. S., 1.)

Bill in equity to enjoin the operations of a corporation alleged to have acquired a practical monopoly of the refining of sugar.

UNITED STATES v. ADDYSTONE PIPE AND STEEL COMPANY, 1897 (TENN.). (SEE 78 FED. REP., 712; 85 FED. REP., 271.)

A bill in equity to enjoin the operations of a combination of manufacturers in different States of cast-iron pipe, under which it was agreed not to compete with each other in regard to work done on pipe furnished in certain States and Territories, etc.

Bill dismissed by circuit court, but on appeal to the circuit court of appeals the decree was reversed. The case is now pending in the Supreme Court of the United States. It has been argued and submitted, but remains undecided.

UNITED STATES v. CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO FUEL COMPANY, 1899 (OHIO).

A proceeding to enjoin certain dealers in and distributors of coal in Ohio which is brought into that State from West Virginia. The bill was filed in the circuit court for the southern district of Ohio on May 8, 1899. A hearing has been had, but no decision has yet been rendered.

In every case where the action of the defendants was found to be directly in restraint of commerce between the States the jurisdiction of the Federal courts has been sustained, and the combination dissolved or the offenders appropriately punished.

Notable among the successful prosecutions are the cases against the Trans-Missouri Freight Association and the Joint Traffic Association.

On the other hand, cases like that against the E. C. Knight Company—the so-called Sugar Trust—and the cases against Anderson and Hopkins, relating to the control of the sale and exchange of live stock at Kansas City, have failed because the court has held that the transactions sought to be prohibited did not affect directly interstate commerce, but only incidentally and indirectly affected that subject.

There are cases where the facts lie close to the border line, and it is only possible after a trial and submission to the judgment of the court to be sure whether interstate commerce is directly affected. Such is the case of the Addyston Pipe and Steel Company et al. v. The United States, which has been argued in the Supreme Court and is now awaiting decision. The question submitted to the court in this case is whether a combination of corporations engaged in the manufacture of cast-iron pipe, located in different States, which divided up the territory of the United States, leaving a portion of it open to the law of competition and suppressing competition in all the rest, permitting prices to be fixed by natural laws in certain States and arbitrarily fixing the prices in other States, is condemned by the anti-trust law.

In all instances the Department has been governed only by a sincere desire to enforce the law as it exists and to avoid subjecting the Government to useless expense and the law officers of the Government to humiliating defeat by bringing actions where there was a clear want of jurisdiction under the well-defined limits of Federal jurisdiction so clearly laid down by the Supreme Court in cases already decided.

That the action of the Department has been substantially correct in its dealings with the various applications referred to is apparent from the fact that, although the Sherman act expressly permits any person injured in his person or property by reason of anything forbidden or declared unlawful in that act, to sue and recover threefold damages, with costs and compensation for his counsel, no such action has ever been brought by anyone whose application to have the United States sue has been refused.

Whatever may be the evils arising from corporate or other aggregations of capital, or from the comprehension under one management of various industrial or manufacturing establishments that would otherwise be engaged in competition; whatever may be the disadvantage of having one carry on several branches of business which might be carried on by separate persons, all these things are done by virtue of the appropriate and constitutional authority of the several States under State law, and except where they invade the territory of Congressional jurisdiction by interfering with interstate or international commerce in a direct manner, they are subject and subordinate to the restraint and control of the individual States where they are carried on.

INSULAR QUESTIONS.

In the administration of the government and affairs of the Hawaiian Islands, Porto Rico, and the Philippines as American territory, and of Cuba as territory subject to our control pending the establishment of a stable government by the people of that island, numerous questions of difficulty and embarrassment have arisen from time to time on which the advice and opinion of the Attorney-General have been asked by the President and the heads of Executive Departments. These questions involved, among other things, the determination by me of the right to collect tonnage tax on vessels coming from ports in the various islands; the status of Chinese in the Sandwich Islands; the rights and status of telegraph and other companies claiming franchises and a right to subsidies under Spanish grants and concessions; the power to grant franchises and to dispose of the public property and the public domain in the islands; the power of municipalities over improvements and public works.

I have appended to my report copies of the opinions rendered by me upon several of these questions, in order that Congress may be apprised of the legal principles upon which the administration of our insular affairs has been conducted by the Executive Departments in the absence of special legislation for the government and regulation of the islands.

The opinions, so appended, are the following:

July 22, 1898.—To Secretary of the Treasury: Collection of tonnage tax on vessels coming from Hawaiian ports.

October 21, 1898.—To Secretary of the Treasury: Status of Chinese in Hawaii; their entrance and exit therefrom. (Joint resolution of Congress, July 7, 1898.)

December 2, 1898.—To the President: Copyright by inhabitants of Cuba, Hawaii, and Porto Rico.

January 19, 1899.—To Secretary of War: Contract of Michael J. Dady & Co. for sewerage and paving Havana, Cuba.

February 1, 1899.—To Secretary of State: Claim of British Eastern Extension Australasia and China Telegraph Company.

February 21, 1899.—To Secretary of War: Claim of Doroteo Cortes et al. for return to them of property in possession of military governor of United States at Manila.

February 21, 1899.—To Secretary of the Treasury: Joint resolution of Congress annexing Hawaii.

March 17, 1899.—To Secretary of State: Concessions to British companies for cables at or near Cuba or the Philippines.

July 27, 1899.—To Secretary of War: Application of Ramon Valdez y Cobian for concession of right to use water power of River Plata, Porto Rico.

July 28, 1899.—To Secretary of War: Power of Secretary of War to confirm alleged concession for construction of tramway from Ponce to Port Ponce, claimed by Messrs. Usera, Ponce, Porto Rico.

September 9, 1899.—To the President: Power of local authorities of Hawaiian Islands to dispose of the public domain.

November 21, 1899.—To the President: Further consideration of power of Hawaiian Government to dispose of public domain.

PACIFIC RAILROAD MATTERS.

The deficiency appropriation act of July 7, 1898, appointed the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of the Interior, and the Attorney-General a commission with full power to settle the indebtedness to the Government growing out of the issue of bonds to aid in the construction of the Central Pacific and Western Pacific bond-aided railroads upon such terms and in such manner as might be agreed upon by them or by a majority of them and the owners of said railroads, subject to the approval of the President.

An agreement for the settlement of this indebtedness was entered into between the said commissioners with the railroad companies on February 1, 1899. At that date the amount due the United States for principal and interest upon its subsidy liens upon the Central Pacific and Western Pacific railroads was $58,812,715.48, more than one-half of which was accrued interest upon the principal debt. The agreement of settlement provided for the funding of this amount into 20 promissory notes bearing date February 1, 1899, payable, respectively, on or before the expiration of each successive six months for ten years, each note being for the sum of $2,940,635.78, or one-twentieth of the total amount due. The notes bear interest at the rate of 3 per cent per annum, payable semiannually, and have a condition attached to the effect that if default be made either in the payment of principal or interest of either of said notes or in any part thereof, then all of the said notes outstanding, principal and interest, shall immediately become due and payable notwithstanding any other stipulation of the agreement of settlement.

It was further agreed that the payment of the principal and interest of the notes shall be secured by the deposit with the United States Treasury of $58,820,000 of face value of first refunding mortgage 4 per cent gold bonds, to be thereafter issued by the Central Pacific or its successor having charge of the railroads then owned by said company, such bonds to be part of an issue of not exceeding $100,000,000 in all, and to be secured by mortgage upon all railroads, equipments, and terminals owned by said Central Pacific Railroad Company, such mortgage to be a first lien upon such property, or to be secured by the deposit as collateral of certain percentages of the outstanding bonds upon such property or on the different divisional parts thereof.

The notes provided for by this agreement were duly executed and delivered to the Treasurer of the United States in conformity with the terms of the agreement. In pursuance of another provision of the agreement, the four earliest maturing notes were purchased by Speyer & Co., March 10, 1899, and the proceeds, amounting to $11,762,543.12, and accrued interest to the date of payment $35,771.02, in all $11,798,314.14, were received and covered into the Treasury March 27, 1899, as part payment of the indebtedness of the Central Pacific and Western Pacific Railroad companies. The properties of the various companies comprising the Central Pacific system were subsequently conveyed to a new corporation called the Central Pacific Railway Company, which latter company executed the mortgage and bonds provided for by the agreement of settlement. On October 7, 1899, bonds were delivered to the Treasury Department by the Pacific Railway Company to secure the outstanding notes held by the Treasury in conformity to the terms of the agreement of settlement. The United States therefore holds the notes of the Central Pacific Railroad Company guaranteed by the Southern Pacific Railroad Company to the amount of $47,050,172.36, bearing interest payable semiannually at the rate of 3 per cent per annum and secured by the deposit of an equal amount of first-mortgage bonds of the Pacific Railway Company, thus providing, beyond doubt or peradventure, for the sure and gradual payment of the whole of this subsidy debt, and providing in the meantime for the payment of interest at the rate of 3 per cent upon the unpaid balances.

In my report for the year 1898, I advised the Congress that the whole amount of principal and interest due on the Union Pacific subsidy had been realized and paid into the Federal Treasury, and that of the amount due upon the Kansas Pacific subsidy the whole amount of the principal, namely, $6,303,000 had been paid in, leaving due to the Government only the accrued interest on the Kansas Pacific amounting to about $6,500,000. I further reported that I had caused to be filed a claim on behalf of the United States on account of this deficiency against certain funds remaining in the hands of the receivers of the Union Pacific Railway Company, which claims, along with many others aggregating a large sum, were subject to investigation and subsequent adjudication. This matter has since been brought to a conclusion with the very satisfactory result that the United States procured a decree directing the receivers to pay on account of its deficiency debt out of the moneys in their hands as pro rata dividend upon its deficiency claim the sum of $821,897.70, which sum has recently been paid into the Treasury of the United States and is to be credited against the deficiency above mentioned.

The proceedings referred to in my last report pending against the American Loan and Trust Company of Boston as trustee for the purpose of securing on account of the Government's deficiency claim certain moneys in the hands of such trustee which represent the proceeds of securities mortgaged for the benefit and further security of first-mortgage bonds of the Kansas Pacific Railway, and for the benefit, protection, and further security of the United States in respect to their subsidy bonds and interest thereon, have not yet been brought to a conclusion, but are being pressed with all due diligence, and before long I hope to be able to report the collection of a very substantial sum from this source in further reduction of the deficiency due the Government on this account.

The amounts paid or secured to be paid to the United States on account of Pacific Railroad subsidy claims since November 1, 1897, will appear from the following table:

| Union Pacific, cash | $58,448,223.75 |
| Pacific, cash | 6,303,000.00 |
| Western Pacific | |
| | 11,798,314.14 |
| | 47,050,172.36 |
| fic, dividend on deficiency due United States, cash..... | 821,897.70 |
| | 124,421,607.95 |

So that it appears that out of an indebtedness of about $130,000,000, more than one-half of which consists of accrued interest, the Government has realized in cash or its equivalent the sum of $124,421,670.95 within a period of less than two years.

Taking into account the enormous material benefits that have accrued to the country from the construction of these transcontinental lines of communication, and the advantage which the Government has had by way of reduced rates of transportation and service over them, the participation of the Government in the construction and maintenance of these enterprises has been fully justified, and the faith of the original promoters and projectors of these great lines has been proven to have had a substantial basis.

JUDICIAL SALARIES.

Facts have come under my observation in the course of the administration of this Department which justify my calling the attention of Congress to the salaries paid by the United States to its judicial officers.

The compensation of the Chief Justice and the associate justices of the Supreme Court was fixed more than a quarter of a century ago and has not since been increased.

The earning capacity of the legal profession in common with other businesses and professions has increased greatly during that period.

It is not an uncommon thing to find a lawyer appearing before the court in a case where his fee for one argument exceeds the annual salary of the judge.

The judges of the circuit and district courts are also inadequately compensated. The same is true of those of the Court of Claims.

The courts of the United States are everywhere in the civilized world held in the very highest repute; yet their judges are paid smaller salaries than are allowed by the States to State judges in very many jurisdictions. I believe that an increase of the salary of the Chief Justice and associate justices of the Supreme Court to $20,000 a year, of the circuit court judges to $10,000, and the district judges to $7,500 a year would be a simple measure of justice and approved by every just-minded citizen.

REFORM IN CERTAIN CRIMINAL PROCEDURE.

The attention of Congress has heretofore been called by Attorneys-General to the importance of providing by legislation for an appeal on behalf of the United States from a judgment of the trial court in favor of the defendant upon demurrer to an indictment in a criminal proceeding under United States laws. The importance of this modification of existing law is strongly illustrated by two instances which have been before this Department during the past year. In one an indictment was found against persons charged with an offense under the statutes relating to pure food and the Bureau of Animal Industry. Thereupon the defendants filed a demurrer, and after the hearing upon admitted facts the court held that the facts constituted no offense or crime under the laws, and thereupon the defendants were discharged with the same effect as if there had been a verdict of acquittal by a jury after trial. Again, a Chinaman charged with the offense of falsely and fraudulently engraving and forging one of the blank forms of certificates used under the Chinese exclusion laws took a demurrer, admitting the facts alleged by the bill of indictment, and contending that such a forged and false instrument was not a "writing" within the meaning of section 5418 of the Revised Statutes punishing certain specified forms of forgery as an offense against the United States; and thereupon the court found for the defendant and discharged him.

Inasmuch as such questions are purely questions of law and raise no issue of fact, I earnestly urge that Congress should provide by suitable legislation at an early day for an appeal by the United States in case of adverse decision by the court upon defendant's demurrer to the indictment. Under such circumstances the United States is clearly entitled to review by an appellate court.

CRIMINAL CODE COMMISSION.

The annual report of the commission to revise and codify the criminal and penal laws of the United States presents a statement of the work already performed and a revision of the statutes relating to the organization and jurisdiction of Federal courts. This latter work is in pursuance of an act of Congress "making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1900, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1899, chapter 188, as follows:

It shall be the duty of the commission appointed to revise and codify the criminal and penal laws of the United States to revise and codify the laws concerning the jurisdiction and practice of the courts of the United States, including the judiciary act, the acts in amendment thereof and supplementary thereto, and all acts providing for the removal, appeal, and transfer of causes.

The changes embodied in the revision are, in brief (1) that the original jurisdiction now exercised by the circuit courts shall be devolved upon the district courts; (2) that the appellate jurisdiction conferred upon the circuit courts of appeals shall be vested in the circuit courts under that designation; (3) that an additional circuit judge shall be appointed each for the first and fourth circuits, they being the only circuits having less than three; (4) that the circuit courts shall consist of three circuit judges, or two circuit judges and the justice of the supreme court assigned to the circuit, and (5) that the district judges shall be relieved of duties as members of the intermediate courts of appeals.

Accompanying the report are exhibits showing (a) the area and population of the several circuits and the judicial business in the circuit court of appeals for each during the past fiscal year; (b) the number of suits commenced and terminated in each of the judicial districts of the United States during the period mentioned, and (c) the residence of the circuit judges now incumbent.

Attention is invited to the disproportion that now exists among the judicial divisions of the United States as illustrated in these exhibits, and such a reformation is recommended as controlling considerations will permit.

CUSTOMS ADMINISTRATION ACT.

In the practical working of sections 14 and 15 of the customs administrative act of June 10, 1890, it is found that some delay in obtaining a decision of the circuit court, on appeals taken from the decisions of the Board of General Appraisers, is caused from the fact that the importers do not avail themselves of the opportunity given them under section 14 to produce before the board full testimony as to the facts involved in their cases. The result is that when the importer takes an appeal from the decision of the board to the circuit court, as provided in section 15 of the act, he has not completed his record as to the facts. In some instances the importer or his attorney avoids putting in testimony before the Board of General Appraisers as to the facts, knowing that he will have a full opportunity to do so under section 15, after the board has decided his case and he has taken his appeal to the circuit court.

It therefore becomes a matter of indifference to the importer, under the practical working of sections 14 and 15, whether he puts in any testimony before the board or not. When the return of the Board of General Appraisers in such a case is filed with the clerk of the circuit court it is often found that there is but little, if any, testimony attached to the record as to the facts of the case that has been decided by the board. Now, section 15 gives the importer the right to appeal from the decision of the board at any time within thirty days after such decision. Within that time he can apply to the court for an order requiring the Board of Appraisers to return to said court the record and the evidence taken by them, together with a certified statement of the facts involved in the case and their decisions thereon.

Here there is an omission in section 15 as to the time in which the Board of General Appraisers may file their return in the circuit court. It may be done within a day or within a year, or within two or three years, or any other time. The section fixes no time whatever within which the board must file their return in response to the order of the court.

The filing of the return with the clerk of the circuit court furnishes the first opportunity that the United States attorney has of knowing anything whatever about the case. The importer then has twenty days after the filing of the return within which he may obtain an ex parte order to refer it to an officer of the court to take and return to the court such further evidence as may be offered within sixty days thereafter, in such order and under such rules as the court may prescribe.

Right here there often comes a long delay by reason of the fact that if the importer has not produced and taken such further evidence within sixty days after his order for the same, he may procure from the court a further extension of time within which to take and return such further evidence of sixty or ninety days, or any number of days the court may see fit to grant. When finally the importer does take such further evidence, he for the first time begins to fight his case and to produce his evidence in full from trade witnesses or experts, or others, as to the facts of the case. In other words, in many cases the importer or his attorney then for the first time begins to develop his case fully, which he had not done before the board. The taking of this further testimony by the importers often covers many adjourned hearings and consumes considerable time where there is any serious contest as to the facts.

After the importer has thus taken his full and complete testimony as to the facts, it often happens that the Government is confronted by a mass of testimony in the case that was not before the board at all, and has to be met as if it were a new case on the facts. This situation requires that the United States attorney should send out, find, discover, and produce witnesses to rebut or contradict the additional testimony thus taken by the importer. This requires time and effort. If the United States attorney is able, after diligent effort, to find necessary witnesses to rebut or contradict the importer's additional testimony, this necessitates other hearings before the referee where such rebutting testimony can be taken. After both sides have thus taken full testimony as to the facts, the same is filed with the clerk of the court, and becomes a part of the record in addition to the return already filed by the board, and the whole is the record upon which the review is heard and argued in the circuit court for its decision.

After the case is heard and argued in the circuit court, which can only be at some stated term of the court assigned for that particular class of cases, there is sometimes a delay before the court renders its decision, after which the whole case has to be reported in detail, with a statement of the questions involved therein and the decision of the circuit court, by the United States attorney to the Attorney-General, Solicitor of the Treasury, and Secretary of the Treasury. Within thirty days after the decision of the circuit court either party may appeal to the United States circuit court of appeals, and in that event the entire record has to be printed and printed briefs prepared and filed upon both sides, and the appeal in said appellate court has to await its place upon the calendar before it can be heard and decided.

It will be noted, therefore, that after these cases leave the Board of General Appraisers many of them virtually start anew, and the labor of finding the facts as well as arguing upon questions of law is thrown practically upon the United States attorney's office.

In view of this situation it seems proper to suggest that section 14 should be so amended as to make it obligatory upon both sides to take and complete all testimony as to the facts of the case before the Board of General Appraisers, and to strike out of section 15 the clause relating to the taking of further testimony after the return of the Board of General Appraisers has been filed.

The board of three general appraisers on classification should in section 14 be given power to issue subpoenas for the attendance of witnesses, on the application of either the importers and their attorneys or of the counsel for the Treasury Department before the board, and also power to require both sides to appear and present all their evidence as to the facts before them, so as to avoid the necessity of making any new record after appeal to the circuit court.

It is unfair to the board to call upon them to decide any case until all the facts are before them. By the application of the ordinary legal rules of evidence before the board the rights of both parties can be protected as fully as if the proofs were taken in court.

Again, there is not only much time necessarily spent, for the reasons before stated, in reaching a circuit court decision of the questions both of fact and law involved in these appeals from the decision of the Board of General Appraisers, but there is further time exhausted in appeals allowed by section 15 to the circuit court of appeals.

In my opinion, the practice should not only be shortened and simplified by compelling the interested parties to present all their facts before the board as hereinbefore suggested, but section 15 should also be amended by striking out the provision therein made for an appeal from the decisions of the board to the circuit court, and such appeal should be directly to the circuit court of appeals. This amendment would save much time and labor and give customs litigants a reasonably speedy decision of the questions involved by an appellate court of high character. It would be less cumbersome than the present system, under which, I think, too many appeals are allowed. As a rule, the simpler the machinery the better it works. This is as true in law as in mechanics.

As the title of the customs administrative act of June 10, 1890, indicates that it is "An act to simplify the laws in relation to the collection of the revenues," this amendment would seem to be within the general intent and original purpose of the act.

EXCLUSION OF CHINESE.

The statutes upon this subject have been enforced with especial vigor during the past year. The results, shown by the number of deportations of Chinese adjudged to be unlawfully within this country, and by an increased number of exclusions over the preceding year, will be found in the relative portion of the report of the Secretary of the Treasury. The methods by which Chinese applicants for admission evade or ignore the law are various. They involve many fertile expedients of fraud concerning the alleged status of Chinamen upon original entry or upon return to this country as merchants or travelers. They involve also the asserted condition of applicants as citizens of the United States by birth and the illegal and criminal use of the certificates of entry, residence, and character provided for by the statutes, and entail as a result not only proceedings under the statutes relating to the Chinese, but criminal prosecutions against the Chinamen and their witnesses for forgery and perjury. "Chinese laborers [it might now be added, 'who profess to be citizens of the United States by birth, or Chinese merchants'] came into the country by water and by land; they came through the open ports and by rivers reaching the seas, and they came by way of the Canadas and Mexico. New means of ingress were discovered, and in spite of the vigilance of the police and custom-house officers great numbers clandestinely found their way into the country. Their resemblance to each other rendered it difficult, and often impossible, to prevent this evasion of the laws." (Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U. S., 751.)

The "smuggling" of Chinamen into the country has thus become an offense of grave magnitude and numerous instances, and appears to be carried on in pursuance of a widespread conspiracy, not only among the Chinese themselves but among other individual and corporate confederates and agencies who find their profit in the nefarious business. The Government is compelled to meet an active and persistent movement which attacks the ports of entry on our land border at one point as soon as the Government has shown its ability to meet and repel the illegal efforts at another; and thus the forbidden Chinese immigration moves successively from the northeastern boundary line to the middle northern, and the western, and then reappears along the Rio Grande and the Mexican boundary to the west thereof. The intention and practice of the Government is to enforce the Chinese exclusion laws stringently and continuously according to the plain intent and meaning of the language of Congress therein as it has been construed by the courts and in the administration of the Departments.

r to carry these statutes into fuller effect upon points which mendments to the law, I am informed that the Treasury t, to which is committed the administrative enforcement of the Chinese exclusion laws, will bring before Congress for action a bill providing for an appeal by the United States from the decision of a justice, judge, or commissioner discharging a Chinaman or other alien brought before those judicial officers upon the charge that such alien person is in the United States contrary to law, and providing that in any case where an alien is excluded from admission into the United States under the law, the decision of the appropriate immigration or customs officer, if adverse to the admission of such alien, shall be final unless reversed on appeal to the Secretary of the Treasury, and that this conclusion shall be controlling upon any justice, judge, or commissioner before whom such alien may afterwards be brought upon the charge of being unlawfully in this country.

NEW DEPARTMENT BUILDING.

By the act of March 3, 1899, it was provided that a fireproof building should be erected for the accommodation and use of the Department of Justice upon the ground belonging to the Government at the corner of Pennsylvania avenue and Madison place, in the city of Washington, under the charge of the Attorney-General, who was authorized and directed to select and adopt plans for the building, and to make contracts for its construction and for the removal of the old building. For the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the act and completing and furnishing the new building the sum of $1,000,000 was appropriated.

As soon as possible after the approval of the said act, a competition for designs of the new building was instituted and ten of the foremost architects of the United States were invited to submit competitive designs. A jury composed of the Attorney-General, the Supervising Architect of the Treasury, Mr. James Knox Taylor, and Mr. Joseph C. Hornblower, of Washington, D. C., a member of the American Institute of Architects, was appointed to examine and judge the designs and to select from those submitted the three sets of plans of highest merit. The designs were submitted in accordance with the program on or about July 1, and after careful consideration the jury selected the designs prepared by George B. Post, Bruce Price, and Warren & Wetmore as the most suitable and meritorious, and thereupon directed that the authors of these designs should submit further details and studies of their plans on or before the 15th day of August. The additional details were submitted and upon further consideration the jury fixed the order of merit of the three designs so selected as follows: First, that of George B. Post; second, that of Bruce Price; third, that of Warren & Wetmore. The design submitted by George B. Post was therefore adopted for the proposed building, and in accordance with the provisions of the said act there was awarded to Bruce Price the sum of $1,000 as compensation for the preparation of his design, and to Warren & Wetmore the sum of $500 for the same purpose. These sums have been accordingly paid.

The architect selected to prepare the plans and specifications for the building is now at work upon the detailed drawings which are necessary before advertisements can be made for the submission of bids for the work.

In the meantime I advertised for bids for the sale and removal of the old building. The highest bid received was that of the Capital Building and Repair Company who offered the sum of $1,200 for the old building and agreed to remove it. The building has now been demolished and substantially removed from its site and the ground is ready to begin operations for the construction of the new building as soon as the contract is awarded.

The act authorizing the erection of the new building appropriated the sum of $1,000,000 as the limit of cost for the construction and furnishing. The designs called for by the program of competition were directed to be for a building which would cost, exclusive of furniture and incidental expenses, not more than $900,000, and the design of the successful architect, Mr. Post, was based on that limitation. I am now advised by him, and am well assured of the truth of his assertion, that on account of the extraordinary increase in the cost of building materials and labor it will not be possible to complete a building of the design selected within the appropriation, but at least 50 per cent more money will be required than would have been necessary if the building could have been contracted for when the act was passed. I therefore recommend that the additional sum of $500,000 be appropriated to enable me to construct a building of the capacity and style contemplated at the time the act was passed and the design called for.

The said act also provided that the building should be so constructed as to provide a court room and necessary accommodations for the Court of Claims, and authorized the Attorney-General in the meantime to hire temporary quarters for the use of said court and to remove it and its records and archives thereto. To carry out this provision of the act I have leased of the trustees of the Corcoran Art Gallery the building on Pennsylvania avenue formerly occupied by them, and have fitted it up in a very substantial and comfortable manner for the use of the court, and the court and its officers are now housed in that building.

For the temporary use of the Department of Justice during the erection of the new building, I have leased the building and premises on K street, formerly known as the "Baltic," at an annual rental of $10,000, and the premises No. 8 Lafayette square at a rental of $1,800, which buildings are now occupied by the Department, and its records and archives have been removed thither. I have found it necessary, however, to remove the greater portion of the library of the Department to the old Corcoran Art Gallery building, as there was not sufficient room in the Baltic for its accommodation.

In taking down the old building of the Department its dilapidated and dangerous condition was more fully revealed than was possible upon any inspection that could be made while the building was intact. It was found that the cracks in the walls and partitions which were visible before the work of demolition was begun had extended farther and were much more serious even than was supposed, more than justifying the prompt action of Congress in providing for the removal of the officers and employees of the Department in accordance with the recommendation made in my last report.

The design for the new building provides that three-fourths of the floor space upon the ground floor shall be assigned for the use of the Court of Claims and the other one-fourth part used for the library of the Department. The suggestion has been made in many quarters, and I submit it to Congress, that the United States should have in some appropriate building quarters suitably fitted up for the use of international and other tribunals and commissions that may from time to time be called to meet in the city of Washington. If the provision of the act requiring the Court of Claims to have quarters provided for them in the new building were repealed, and the court established permanently where it is now located, it would be possible to fit up a portion of the first floor of the new building to be used for the reception and meeting place of such public bodies of an international or quasi-judicial character as might hereafter assemble at Washington under the direct or indirect auspices of the Government. My own judgment is that such a provision would be a wise and a prudent one. The building of the Department of Justice is an appropriate place for such purposes, and the want of proper accommodations for bodies of the nature referred to has heretofore been most keenly felt.

ALASKA.

The administration of affairs in Alaska, and especially the administration of justice through the courts and court officers assigned to that Territory, is not satisfactory.

There has been during the past year a very great increase in the amount of legal business in Alaska. The report of the district attorney shows that the criminal business has doubled within a year and the civil business has multiplied five times over.

Complaints of the inadequacy of the provisions established for maintaining law and order and enforcing the criminal statutes are almost universal. At present there is only one United States judge, one marshal, and one district attorney for this whole vast extent of territory. Special duties have, by act of Congress, been imposed upon the district judge which required him, during the past summer, in company with the governor and marshal of the Territory, to take a tour of nearly 5,000 miles down the Yukon River and along the western coast of the district in order to discharge special duties imposed upon him, such as the appointment of commissioners at various settlements, the collection of licenses from those licensed to engage in the sale of intoxicating liquors and businesses upon which a tax is imposed by the recent statute.

The district judge advises me that because of a lack of time not one-tenth of the business presented can be disposed of. Officers of the Army, exercising command in the Territory, report that the insufficiency of appropriations for the Department of Justice and the lack of a sufficient force of court officials render the administration of justice along the Yukon abortive, and that the average citizen dwelling in that region has but little respect for it. I very strenuously urge upon Congress the necessity of providing for the appointment of an additional district judge and an additional United States district attorney and marshal for this Territory. The Territory can be divided into two judicial districts, and a judge, district attorney, and marshal assigned to each district, or these additional officers can be appointed for the Territory at large, and the two judges authorized to assign to themselves, respectively, the portion of the Territory in which they will severally act.

The compensation of $2,500 a year provided by law for the district attorney is utterly inadequate. It is impossible to procure for this office lawyers of such high character and ability as are requisite in the discharge of the very onerous duties of that position, under the embarrassing circumstances that prevail, for less than $5,000 a year. The cost of living in the Territory is high, and an attorney who devotes himself to the full and faithful discharge of his duties, and who has the requisite high character to represent in an adequate manner the dignity and integrity of the office, will not consent to subject himself to the rigors of the climate, the inconveniences of living, and the other deterrent circumstances that exist in that country. I therefore recommend that the salary of the district attorney, or of the district attorneys, if another be provided, be fixed at $5,000 a year. In a region where the opportunities for lawlessness are very great and the temptations strong, more than usual care should be taken by the Government that the agencies of justice should be well equipped and sufficiently numerous to inspire respect and secure a prompt and vigorous enforcement of the law.

PARDONS.

Under the rules established by the President, all applications for executive clemency, except in cases arising in the Army or Navy, are referred to the Attorney-General for investigation and a report of opinion thereon before receiving the attention of the President.

Under the rules referred to, no application is to be reported to the President unless favorably recommended either by the district attorney of the district where the applicant was tried or by the trial judge.

The report of the attorney in charge of pardons gives the statistics of pardon cases for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1899. That report is printed as an appendix hereto.

It will be found, on reference to that report, that in each case the reasons justifying the exercise of clemency are stated in writing by the Attorney-General to the President, so that it is possible to know the precise grounds which induced Executive action in every case.

UNITED STATES PRISONERS.

The table of statistics (Exhibit I) shows a slight decrease in the number of prisoners received and in confinement during the last fiscal year as compared with the year ending June 30, 1898, but hardly sufficient to warrant the belief that it may be attributed to any decided decrease in crime generally. On July 1, 1898, there were 3,211 United States convicts in the various prisons and reformatories of the country as against 3,137 at the close of the last fiscal year, on June 30, 1899, showing a decrease of 74. The report for 1898 showed an increase of 189 over the previous year, from which it would appear that the general average has remained nearly the same year after year for a period of several years at least. Of the total number in confinement (3,137) on June 30, 1899, 779 were in the United States penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., and 87 in the United States penitentiary at McNeils Island, Washington. The remainder, 2,271, were scattered among the various prisons and reformatory institutions of the States and Territories. Exhibit I, with this report, shows where United States convicts have been confined during the year, the district from which they were received, the number received from each district, and the total number in each institution.

UNITED STATES PENITENTIARY AT FORT LEAVENWORTH, KANS.

The fourth annual report of the warden appears as Exhibit K. On June 30, 1898, there were confined in the institution 560 prisoners, the maximum number which could at that time be accommodated. Since then, however, the additional cells provided for by the recent appropriation of Congress for that purpose have been completed, with capacity for at least 200 convicts, thus enabling the warden to receive and care for that number in excess of the former average. On June 30, 1899, there were in confinement 779 prisoners as against 560 at the same date in 1898.

As wisely provided by law, the prisoners have been chiefly engaged during the year in erecting the wall at the new penitentiary site, making brick, quarrying stone, etc., having thus been furnished employment and occupation, with positive results to the benefit of the Government.

The total expense of maintaining the institution during the year ended June 30, 1899, has been $128,148.28, and the average daily per capita cost about 57 cents, which compares favorably, all things considered, with the rate at other similar institutions. The average daily cost per capita for subsistence alone was a trifle over 11 cents.

The general health of the convicts has been excellent, owing largely, as reported by the attending physician, to the outdoor employment and exercise, as well as to the properly prepared food and comfortable clothing furnished.

THE NEW UNITED STATES PENITENTIARY, FORT LEAVENWORTH, KANS.

Up to June 30, 1899, there has been expended for all purposes on the new prison site the sum of $21,307.31, which includes the cost of a first-class brick-making plant, which has been in successful operation since its erection.

As the work progresses, carried on almost wholly by the prisoners themselves, it becomes evident that considerable time must elapse before the new buildings, or any portion of them, can be completed and ready for occupancy. So far it has been the practice to march the prisoners from the old prison to the new site daily—a distance of about 2½ miles—where they are employed on the walls and in the quarry or brickyard, and returned to their quarters after the day's labors are ended. In this way a considerable portion of the working day is lost in going to and fro, and this loss of time in marching and on account of the frequent abandonment of work because of unfavorable weather is injurious in many ways and seriously interferes with the proper discipline of the institution. It is therefore deemed necessary and for the best interest of the Government that the original plan of erecting this penitentiary shall be so far modified as to provide for the erection by contract, as speedily as possible, of a cell wing with accommodations for at least a portion of the prisoners, with the requisite additions for heating, lighting, dining rooms, etc. In this way the prisoners engaged in the erection of the walls and buildings can be housed and cared for on the grounds of the new prison, thus avoiding the danger involved in marching them to and fro, as is now done, as well as loss of time and injury to discipline, referred to above.

It is estimated that it will require about $300,000 to complete the buildings thus described. If this arrangement can be effected, the erection of the remaining prison buildings, workshops, and wall can then be readily accomplished by the prisoners themselves under the supervision of the officials. Exhibit U, accompanying this report, is a communication from the warden of the institution, indorsed by the board, setting forth the urgent necessity for this modification of the original plan, with an estimate of the expense involved. The reasons set forth in this communication seem to me to be entirely convincing, and I earnestly urge that the appropriation may be made as asked.

UNITED STATES PENITENTIARY AT ATLANTA, GA.

In compliance with the provisions of the act providing for the erection of a United States penitentiary in the South, the city of Atlanta, Ga., was, after due consideration, selected as the place where the prison should be built. Quite a number of sites were offered to the Government, but after a personal visit and inspection by myself, the architects, and other officials, the tract known as "Dickey site" was selected as the most suitable for the purpose. It has been purchased by the city of Atlanta, at a cost of $60,000, and presented to the Government free of expense. The tract contains about 300 acres and is admirably situated for the purpose, being about one-half mile from the city limits, upon the principal thoroughfares leading from the center of the city, and convenient to railroad, water, and other facilities.

The survey of the tract for the information and use of the architects is nearly completed, and the plans and drawings for the buildings have been submitted and approved. These plans as approved contemplate the erection of a prison, complete, as provided in the act, to consist of a cell house with accommodations for about 500 prisoners, administration building, dining room, offices, steam and electric plant, etc. It has been ascertained that this is probably the utmost which can be accomplished within the limits of the present appropriation, but the plans are prepared with a view to the addition, at any time the Government may deem necessary, of an additional building large enough to afford accommodations altogether for at least 1,200 convicts. It is purposed, on the completion of the survey and the other necessary preliminary steps, to enter as soon as possible into a contract for the erection and completion of the buildings in accordance with the approved plans.

UNITED STATES PENITENTIARY AT M'NEILS ISLAND, WASHINGTON.

The United States marshal for the district of Washington has, under the direction of the Department, expended the $5,000 appropriated by Congress for repairs to this institution, with most satisfactory results. The buildings have been made more secure, additional quarters have been erected for the use of guards, etc., and other repairs and modifications, the necessity for which has long been apparent, have been completed. The institution can now accommodate 150 prisoners, and is used for convicts from the districts of Washington and Alaska. It now contains about 70 prisoners. These are employed in cutting timber and other similar labor on the island.

UNITED STATES JAIL, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The jail continues to be well managed, and is regarded as one of the best institutions of the kind in the country. The report of the warden (Exhibit N) which accompanies this report gives the usual details relative to prisoners, the number confined, offenses, etc.

JAILS IN THE INDIAN TERRITORY.

The funds appropriated by Congress for the erection of three jails in the Indian Territory have not yet been expended. While the need for the buildings is as urgent as ever, it has been found impracticable to proceed with their construction under present conditions. The sites offered for the purpose are in localities not yet surveyed or platted by the Government, and can not, therefore, be accurately located or described until the surveys now being conducted are completed. A still more serious obstacle has arisen in the matter of titles, as, owing to the peculiar conditions existing in the Territory, it seems to be almost impracticable to procure absolute titles to real estate therein. Until this objection can be overcome, therefore, and the proposed sites properly transferred to the Government and the validity of the title to them finally approved by the proper authorities, no further steps apparently can be taken looking to the expenditure of public money in the erection of the buildings.

REFORM SCHOOL, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The report of the board of trustees of the Reform School of the District of Columbia (Exhibit L) shows that at the beginning of the last fiscal year there were in the school 249 boys; there were received during the year 64, a total of 313 as against 354 for the previous year. There were discharged during the year 107, leaving in the school June 30, 1899, 206.

The reasons given by the trustees as in their opinion answerable for this diminution of the number of boys in the school are the prosperous condition of business, the increased number of boys taken charge of by the Board of Children's Guardians, put in the Industrial Home School, or sent to the Junior Republic, and the manner in which the judges of the courts of the District exercise their discretion in sentencing.

The report of the warden of the jail in the District of Columbia shows that there were 362 boys between the ages of 8 and 17 years committed to the jail by the courts of the District during the last fiscal year, while only 55 under 16 years of age were committed to the reform school during the same period. The trustees think that the parents of a great many of the boys committed to the jail are responsible for their being there, as they prefer a thirty, sixty, or ninety day sentence to jail to be imposed, at the expiration of which the boy can be released and returned to them and to work, rather than an indeterminate sentence to the reform school, which may extend over several years.

They suggest as a remedy for the present condition of affairs that Congress enact such legislation as will give to the school a parole or limited discharge system, coupled with an increase of the limit of age for admission to the school from under 16 years of age to under 17 years. They think that if it were in the power of the trustees to reclaim and return to the school boys who had been released upon parole or a limited discharge the objection to sentencing to the school because of the length of time to which a boy's confinement might extend would be removed. Boys who give promise of reformation could, when the trustees deem it expedient, be released after such moderate term of confinement as seems to answer the case; but if they relapse into vicious ways could be reclaimed for further working out the term of their sentence.

They also recommend that, as the school is a Government institution, the property of which is owned entirely by the United States, and is a reformatory, not a charitable institution, it be placed upon its former footing—that is to say, entirely under the control of the Attorney-General.

THE REFORM SCHOOL FOR GIRLS OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The attention of Congress is directed to the report of the school, which, with its subsidiary reports and statistical tables, constitutes Exhibit M of this report. The new building of the school, for which Congress has provided, is well advanced in construction, and it is expected will be completed before the 1st of July next. Upon its completion the school will be able to receive an increased number of inmates and to extend its work, which, generally, is considered to promise a continual increase in extent and results, as the field is investigated and methods of administration studied and improved. The past year has been one of successful conduct of affairs, the controlling ideas in the school management seeking a steady gain in the real reform of inmates by educational and industrial instruction, and by discipline and training in the ordinary duties of domestic life; and aiming at carrying into practical effect the theory that the school should not become a home, but should offer a place where the largest possible number of subjects of reform may be benefited, not only by the methods there in use but by providing, as rapidly as may be, homes and places in the outside world under indenture for service, where girls may learn habits of industry and the advantages of conforming to the rules of an honorable and virtuous life.

Three points regarding legislation are especially emphasized in this report, and they are here repeated: First, that the school should be embraced in the acts regarding it under the heading of "Prisons and reformatories," rather than that of "Charities and corrections." It properly belongs under the former heading, and the effort should be to classify correctly such institutions in all legislation and to consolidate the responsibility for the management thereof; second, that the age limit of admission should be reduced and the age limit of dismissal or discharge be committed, to a certain extent, to the discretion of the board of trustees, for reasons given in the report; third, that the approval of the appointments made by the board of trustees of officers, teachers, and agents should be committed to the Attorney-General, as in the case of the Boys' Reform School, rather than to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, as under the existing provision of the law.

The attention of Congress is also called to the desirability and importance of granting to the school, for use as pasturage for stock, a certain allotment of Government land in the vicinity of the school.

EXHIBITS ACCOMPANYING THIS REPORT.

Exhibit 1 is a tabular statement showing the number of cases, civil and criminal, before the United States circuit courts of appeals during the fiscal year 1899, with the number disposed of.

Exhibit 2 is a report of the Assistant Attorney-General in charge of the business of the Government in the Court of Claims.

Exhibit 3 is a report of the Assistant Attorney-General in charge of Indian depredation claims.

Exhibit 4 is the report of the United States attorney for the Court of Private Land Claims.

Exhibit A is a statement of the civil suits to which the United States was a party terminated in the circuit and district courts of the United States during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1899, and of such suits pending in said courts July 1, 1899, as reported by the district attorneys.

In 785 of the 1,739 civil suits terminated during the last fiscal year judgments were for the United States, in 267 against the United States, and 687 were either dismissed or discontinued; 45 were appealed to the circuit court or to the circuit court of appeals and 7 to the Supreme Court.

Many of the civil suits reported dismissed or discontinued were settled by the authority of the Treasury Department and discontinued under its direction. There were pending July 1, 1899, 2,807 civil suits to which the United States was a party.

Exhibit B is a statement of the criminal prosecutions terminated in the circuit and district courts of the United States during the last fiscal year, and of such prosecutions pending July 1, 1899.

Of the 17,341 criminal prosecutions terminated during the last year, 216 were prosecutions under the customs laws, in which there were 136 convictions, 21 acquittals, and 59 were entered nol. pros., discontinued, or quashed; 6,544 under the internal-revenue laws, in which there were 4,021 convictions, 825 acquittals, and 1,698 were entered nol. pros., discontinued, or quashed; 1,206 under post-office laws, in which there were 770 convictions, 92 acquittals, and 344 entered nol. pros., discontinued, or quashed; 10 under naturalization acts, in which there were 2 convictions, 3 acquittals, and 5 entered nol. pros., discontinued, or quashed; 562 under the intercourse laws, in which there were 359 convictions, 31 acquittals, and 172 entered nol. pros., discontinued, or quashed; 214 under the pension laws, in which there were 109 convictions, 17 acquittals, and 88 entered nol. pros., discontinued, or quashed; 80 for embezzlement, in which there were 31 convictions, 8 acquittals, and 41 entered nol. pros., discontinued, or quashed; 8,509 miscellaneous prosecutions, in which there were 5,082 convictions, 1,089 acquittals, and 2,338 entered nol. pros., discontinued, or quashed.

In many of the prosecutions under the internal-revenue laws entered nol. pros., discontinued, or quashed a compromise and settlement were made in the Internal Revenue Bureau of the Treasury Department.

Of the 10,228 criminal prosecutions pending July 1, 1899, 112 were for violation of customs laws, 4,889 for violation of internal-revenue laws, 755 for violation of post-office laws, 90 under the election laws, 8 under naturalization laws, 272 under the intercourse laws, 196 under the pension laws, 88 for embezzlement, and 3,818 miscellaneous prosecutions.

Exhibit C shows the amount arising and realized from civil suits to which the United States was a party, and from criminal prosecutions in the circuit and district courts of the United States during the last fiscal year.

The aggregate amount of the judgments rendered in favor of the United States in civil suits during the last year was $322,546.27, and the amount actually collected on these judgments was $97,455.97, while $18,129.22 was obtained during the year on judgments rendered in former years for the United States, and $118,606.88 was otherwise realized in civil suits.

EXHIBIT 2.—Report of the Assistant Attorney-General in charge of the business of the Department of Justice in the Court of Claims.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
Washington, D. C., November 1, 1899.

SIR: I have the honor to submit the following report for the year ending October 31, 1899, of business pertaining to matters within my official charge:

BUSINESS OF THE COURT OF CLAIMS.

GENERAL JURISDICTION CASES.

Since my last report there have been filed 341 cases, claiming about $22,469,521.75. The total number of cases pending, exclusive of those known as "letter carrier cases"—to which reference is made herein—after—is 2,309. The amount involved is very large, but can not be accurately stated on account of the indefiniteness of certain of the petitions filed.

During the year 123 cases, exclusive of suits of letter carriers, were disposed of, the amount claimed being $3,301,804.12. In 26 of them, claiming $387,047.50, judgments of dismissal were secured. In 97 cases, claiming $2,914,756.62, judgments were for claimants for $2,176,625.05. Particular attention is here called to the suit of the New York Indians against the United States for $2,393,600, in which judgment of dismissal was rendered by the Court of Claims within the year included in my last report. This judgment was, however, reversed by the Supreme Court during the past year and judgment entered upon the mandate of that court for the claimants in the sum of $1,967,056—forming the greater part of the above stated amount of judgments for claimants.

|--|----------------|
| Whole number of cases disposed of (exclusive of letter-carrier cases) .. | 123 |
| Amount claimed in them | $3,301,804.12 |
| For defendants, 26 cases, claiming | 387,047.50 |
| For claimants, 97 cases, claiming | 2,914,756.62 |
| Amount recovered by claimants therein | 2,176,625.05 |

In addition to the above there was one Indian case, claiming the value of certain lands (brought under the act of March 2, 1895), decided in favor of claimant, from which decision an appeal has been taken to the Supreme Court, and is now pending.

CONGRESSIONAL CASES.

Under the acts of March 3, 1883, c. 116 (1 Supp. R. S., 403), and March 3, 1887, c. 359 (1 Supp. R. S., 559), authorizing the reference to the Court of Claims of certain claims pending before Congress, or any of its committees, or of any Executive Department for an advisory finding of facts, there have been transmitted to the court since my last report 115 cases, claiming upward of $1,036,300.46.

The total number of cases so transmitted to date is 9,986, of which there are now pending 6,774 cases.

Number disposed of.—During the year 165 cases, claiming $1,692,242.93, were acted on by the court and have been or will be reported to Congress. Of this number 84 cases, claiming $672,836.17, were dismissed because claimants or those they represented were disloyal, or for other causes. In 15 cases, claiming $128,489.21, findings on the merits favorable to the United States were filed by the court, and in 66 cases, claiming $890,617.55, findings favorable to the claimants were filed for $105,504.

| Whole number of cases disposed of | 165 |
| Amount claimed in them | $1,692,242.93 |
| Number of cases dismissed | 84 |
| Amount claimed in them | $672,836.17 |
| Number of cases favorable to defendants on merits | 15 |
| Amount claimed in them | $128,489.21 |
| Number of cases favorable to claimants | 66 |
| Amount claimed in them | $890,617.55 |
| Amount awarded in them | 105,504.00 |

DEPARTMENTAL CASES.

Under the act of March 3, 1883, c. 116 (1 Supp. R. S., 403), there have been referred by the Executive Departments to date 62 cases, in which the court is asked to pass upon certain disputed questions of law or of fact. Of these there are now pending 21 cases.

Among the cases referred during the year are claims from six different States for reimbursement of interest alleged to have been paid on moneys borrowed and expended by them in equipping troops for the suppression of the rebellion, aggregating in amount $6,422,149.59. These claims are now being examined into by auditors appointed for the purpose by the Court of Claims, with a view to ascertaining the facts relating thereto.

CLAIMS AGAINST THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

These suits are brought under the acts of June 16, 1880, and February 13, 1895. Since the last report two cases have been disposed of, one in favor of the District and one in favor of claimant in the sum of $4,180.40. But seventeen cases remain undisposed of, and these are either in the hands of referees for statement of account or are prepared and ready for trial.

FRENCH SPOILIATIONS.

The following statement shows the present status of the cases filed in the Court of Claims under the French spoliation act of January 20, 1885:

| Number of vessels the cases on which are in the hands of the court.. | 49 |
| Number of vessels as to which both parties are ready for trial | 104 |

The proviso of the act of March 2, 1891, requiring the Court of Claims to certify as to the next of kin was repeated in the act of March 3, 1899, and the following proviso was added:

That any French spoliation claim appropriated for in this act shall not be paid if held by assignment or owned by any insurance company.

Practically all of the cases appropriated for in 1891 and about four-fifths of those appropriated for in 1899 have been certified to the Secretary of the Treasury for payment. Certifications are still being made under the act of 1899.

The findings which the court has made and certified to Congress in favor of insurance companies to be reimbursed for their payments on insurance risks and losses were omitted from the appropriations. They are included in the above 116 cases, amounting to $754,013.12, not appropriated, but pending in Congress, and chiefly make up said amount. The claims of insurance underwriters were included in the appropriations and are not excluded by the amended proviso.

Since the appropriation of 1899 for payment of findings heretofore made by the Court of Claims the prosecution of these claims, which had become virtually dormant, has been vigorously revived, demanding the attention of two assistant attorneys to prepare the defense.

SUITS PENDING AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT IN THE CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT COURTS OF THE UNITED STATES.

These suits are brought pursuant to the provisions of the act of March 3, 1887, entitled "An act to provide for the bringing of suits against the Government of the United States." (1 Supp. R. S., 559.)

During the year 20 suits were brought in various circuit and district courts throughout the United States, the amount claimed in 19 of the same being $36,218, while in one the amount was not stated. The matters involved in these various suits may be tabulated as follows:

|--|---|
| Labor, materials, etc., on public buildings and works..... | 5 |
| Breach of contract..... | 5 |
| Wages or salary | 4 |
| Salvage..... | 1 |
| Disbursement as Government officers | 2 |
| Miscellaneous..... | 5 |

The number of suits brought under this jurisdiction has been largely reduced by reason of the acts of June 27, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 495), and July 1, 1898 (id., 649), repealing the jurisdiction of circuit and district courts over suits of Governmental officers for fees or salary.

During the year 10 suits brought under this jurisdiction were decided in the circuit and district courts, there being judgments of dismissal in 5 and the remainder resulting in favor of the claimants. In the circuit courts of appeals 6 suits were decided, in which the judgment of the lower court was affirmed in 3 cases and reversed in whole or in part in the remainder. Two cases appealed by the Government were decided by the Supreme Court, in one of which the judgment of the lower court was affirmed and in the other reversed.

Since this jurisdiction was created 1,349 suits have been brought against the United States, of which 141 are pending in the circuit and district courts, 2 in the circuit courts of appeals, and 1 in the Supreme Court of the United States, which has been argued but not yet decided.

By the acts of June 27, 1898, and July 1, 1898, above referred to, the jurisdictional statute was amended by taking away the jurisdiction of the circuit and district courts to consider cases for fees or salaries of governmental officers. The circuit and district courts, as well as the circuit courts of appeals, have differed radically in their construction of this repealing act, some holding that the jurisdiction was taken away in pending as well as future cases. As a consequence, many such suits which were pending in the circuit courts of appeals have been dismissed.

SPECIAL CASES UNDER THE ACT OF AUGUST 15, 1894.

By the act of August 15, 1894, c. 290, par. 5 (2 Supp. R. S., 246), the circuit courts of the United States were given jurisdiction to try and determine any action, suit, or proceeding arising within their respective territories, involving the right of any person, in whole or in part of Indian blood or descent, to any allotment of land under any law or treaty. Under this jurisdiction 9 suits were brought during the past year and 8 in the year previous, making 17 in all now pending. A demurrer was filed by the United States in a test case, but has been overruled.

APPEALS IN SUPREME COURT.

There have been 16 appeals from judgments of the Court of Claims determined in the Supreme Court within the year. The United States was appellant in 9 of these cases, in which the decision of the Supreme Court was favorable to the appellant in 2 and adverse in 5, while 2 were dismissed on motion of the United States. Of the 7 appeals in which the United States was appellee the Supreme Court decided 4 in favor of and 2 adversely to the United States, and upon its motion 1 was docketed and dismissed.

There are 9 appeals from the Court of Claims now pending in the Supreme Court, of which 3 have been argued and submitted; but 1 has been remanded for reargument.

CLASSES SPECIALLY MENTIONED.

The following classes of cases merit special consideration by reason of their present or threatened magnitude or number, or by reason of the importance of the questions involved:

LETTER-CARRIER CASES.

These suits are brought to recover compensation for time claimed to have been worked in excess of eight hours per day, under the act of May 24, 1888 (1 Supp. R. S., 587). The number of individual claims that have been brought under this act is between 19,000 and 20,000.

The method heretofore adopted of referring these suits to a commissioner for the purpose of visiting the various cities and there examining the post-office officials and others and then submitting his report to the Department for its action, and finally to be presented to the court for judgment, has been followed.

During the year judgments have been rendered in 259 suits, embracing 1,250 individual claimants, and based on reports from 215 cities. The amount claimed in these petitions was $367,020, and the amount allowed $90,113, or 24.5 per cent.

In addition to the foregoing the commissioner has made reports on 67 cities which now await judgment. These comprise 274 individual claimants, of which an allowance is recommended in favor of 161, and in the remaining 113 a finding is made that nothing is due. It is estimated that there are still pending in the court suits covering about 1,500 individual claimants.

It is probable that this class of cases will be practically disposed of within the present fiscal year.

REBATE OF TAX ON ALCOHOL USED IN THE ARTS, ETC.

These suits are brought under section 61 of the tariff act of 1894, providing that manufacturers using alcohol in the arts, or in any medicinal or like compound, under regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury, should, on furnishing certain proof, receive a rebate or repayment of the internal-revenue tax paid on such alcohol. In this class of cases there are now pending about 1,154 suits, the amount involved being about $4,100,000.

The test case which was pending in the Supreme Court at the time of my last annual report, on appeal from the judgment of the Court of Claims dismissing the petition, has been decided by the Supreme Court, the judgment appealed from being affirmed. (Dunlap v. United States, 173 U. S., 65.) Since that decision, however, an amended petition has been filed in another of these cases in the Court of Claims, to which I have demurred on the authority of the Dunlap case.

LA ABRA AND WEIL CASES.

It is gratifying to report that the cases of the United States v. Alice Weil and others, and the Same v. La Abra Silver Mining Company and others, are awaiting judgment, the former in the Court of Claims and the latter in the Supreme Court of the United States, where it was twice argued at the last term, once on certain propositions of law and again on the merits. The Weil case was argued in the Court of Claims in April last. Decisions in both cases are expected soon.

NAVAL BOUNTY CASES.

In the early part of the past summer the Navy Department referred to the Court of Claims, under the Tucker Act, "for an authoritative and final determination by the court of the rights of all parties interested," the claims of the naval forces of the United States for bounty for the destruction of armed vessels of the enemy at the battles of Manila Bay, Santiago Harbor, and various minor naval engagements of the recent war with Spain. In making this reference the Secretary of the Navy declared that—

It may be proper to add that the attitude of the Department toward these claims is not in any sense one of hostility, it being considered that the claimants belong to a meritorious class upon whom the Government had by statute directed the bestowal of bounty for the performance of patriotic service. The Department does not, therefore, desire to antagonize these claims, but seeks merely, by the reference herein made, to secure the judicial ascertainment of the rights of all parties concerned in order that the nation's bounty may be promptly and equitably dispensed.

This spirit of generous and grateful recognition of patriotic and heroic deeds has, by your express wish, been heartily responded to in the preparation of the defense, with a view to the speedy and certain adjustment of these claims, the court cooperating to the fullest extent consistent with its judicial duty. As a result, arrangements have been perfected by which the general questions of law and fact arising out of each of the various engagements shall be first decided by the court, thus determining the gross amount of bounty to be paid in each engagement and the persons to whom it is payable in the proportion provided by statute. Thereupon the amount due to each individual claimant will be ascertained and reported to the court by an auditor appointed for the purpose, and judgments pursuant to such report entered forthwith. It is also contemplated, with the sanction and approval of the Navy Department, to give to such individual claimants as have not yet made personal claim in the court for their share of these bounties an opportunity to do so by presenting their claims in petitions, which will be forwarded to them by the Navy Department for the purpose, without the intervention of an attorney.

It is hoped that the result of these arrangements will be the determination of a large majority of the individual claims under these references by judgments which can be reported to Congress for appropriation at its coming session.

Claims not so determined can hereafter be audited in the Navy Department upon the basis of the report of the court made pursuant to law upon these references.

The total amount of bounty to be thus determined can now only be estimated, but will range from $600,000 to $1,000,000, depending upon the question whether, in the two most important engagements, the force of the enemy was equal or inferior to our own. The total number of individual claims is about 5,000, of which 3,150 have already been filed.

GENERAL REMARKS.

In my last report I made the following suggestions:

I recommend amendment of the act of March 3, 1891, c. 517 (1 Supp. R. S., 901), so as to give to the United States the same right of appeal to the Supreme Court from judgments of the circuit courts of appeals in actions originating in the circuit and district courts that it has in similar cases brought in the Court of Claims. At present, owing to what seems to be inadvertent legislation, the rights of the United States in this respect are not the same in the courts named.

I also recommend such legislation by Congress as will provide for the more thorough and stringent enforcement of the subpoenas issued by the Court of Claims.

At the last session of Congress bills were introduced, with your approval, to carry out these recommendations, but were not finally acted upon, although favorable reports were made on each. I recommend that similar bills be early presented to the coming Congress.

The large amount of clerical work resulting from the direction of proceedings under the national bankruptcy law, the details of which have been placed in charge of this office, especially the collating and tabulating of the biennial reports of the referees in bankruptcy, together with the greatly increased volume of work attending the defense of suits brought in the Court of Claims, renders it imperative that the permanent clerical force of this branch of the Department should be increased. That force at present consists of my secretary, who has been given supervision of bankruptcy proceedings, and a file clerk. Accordingly, I earnestly request the appointment of a clerk, who should also be a stenographer, for assignment to this office.

Very respectfully,

LOUIS A. PRADT.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

EXHIBIT 3.—Report of the Assistant Attorney-General in charge of Indian depredation cases.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
Washington, D. C., November 1, 1899.

SIR: I submit herewith for your consideration my annual report of the business of the Department relating to the defense of Indian depredation claims.

Since the date of my last report gratifying progress has been made in the disposition of the suits pending. The following tabulated statement shows the results accomplished during the last year, together with a summary of the number and amount of the cases adjudicated from the time of the passage of the act conferring jurisdiction upon the Court of Claims in this class of cases:

|--|-----------------|
| Total number of cases filed | 10,841 |
| Amount claimed | $43,515,867.06 |
| Cases reduced to judgment | 2,214 |
| Amount claimed | $9,568,162.28 |
| Judgments in favor of claimants | 1,186 |
| Amount claimed | $4,617,189.86 |
| Amount of judgments in favor of claimants | 2,236,844.11 |
| Judgments in favor of defendants | 1,028 |
| Amount claimed | $4,950,972.42 |
| Judgments for claimants from November 1, 1898, to November 1, 1899. | 315 |
| Amount claimed | $1,362,085.50 |
| Amount of judgments for claimants | 603,011.50 |

|--|-------------------|
| Judgments for defendants from November 1, 1898, to November 1, 1899 . | 306 |
| Amount claimed | $1, 232, 022. 83 |
| Number of cases in which depositions have been taken (reported) from November 1, 1898, to November 1, 1899..... | 872 |

Of these the depositions in 71 cases were for the defendants, and in 801 for the claimants.

The figures show a considerable increase, both in the number of judgments rendered and in the amount involved, over the results in previous years. This increase, which was foreshadowed in my last annual report, is due in part to the fact that the questions of construction have been for the greater part settled and that the large number of test cases decided has not only facilitated the work of adjudicating other cases on the merits, but has at the same time indicated to the claimants and their attorneys the class of cases which it is expedient for them to present for trial.

At the same time the judgments in favor of the defendants have kept pace with those for the claimants, so that a comparison of the total amount involved in all cases adjudicated during the current year with the amount of the judgments against the United States and the Indians shows a result not less favorable to the defendants than in preceding years, the proportion of recovery being about 23 per cent. In a considerable number of cases the petitions have been dismissed on the defendants' pleas based on decisions heretofore rendered, and many cases remain in which the same course will be followed. It is believed that the proportion of recovery will not increase hereafter but will rather diminish, for the reason that, as intimated above, the cases now being presented to the court are those selected by the attorneys as the most favorable to the claimants.

During the past year two cases in this jurisdiction have been passed upon by the Supreme Court on appeal, the decision of the Court of Claims (which sustained the contention of the defense) being affirmed in both cases. In the first of these cases, that of Collier against The United States (173 U. S. 79), the court held that under the act of March 3, 1891, the Court of Claims may receive and consider any document on file in the departments of the Government or in the courts having a bearing upon any material question arising in the consideration of any claim for compensation for Indian depredations. In the other case, that of Yerke against The United States (173 U. S. 439), it was held that under the same act a claim which was pending in the Interior Department at the time of the passage of the act of 1885 on behalf of a claimant who was not then a citizen of the United States but who had prior to that time declared his intention to become a citizen, is not within the jurisdiction of the Court of Claims.

During the past year the assistants under my direction have kept pace with the attorneys for the claimants in the preparation of cases for trial; so that, as stated in my last report, practically no delay is experienced in bringing cases to trial when the testimony has been taken and the cases closed on the part of the claimant. In the matter of taking testimony, while it is not yet possible with the force provided to meet all demands as promptly as might be desired, yet at the present rate of progress a point will soon be reached when every claimant may have a speedy opportunity to be heard.

Respectfully,

JOHN G. THOMPSON,

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

EXHIBIT 4.—Report of the United States attorney for the Court of Private Land Claims.

SANTA FE, N. MEX., October 6, 1899.

SIR: I have the honor to submit the following annual report as to the business transacted by the Court of Private Land Claims from October 5, 1898, up to and including October 5, 1899.

During that period three terms of court have been held at Santa Fe and two terms held at Tucson, Ariz., and a large number of cases have been tried and submitted and a number of these finally disposed of. I have endeavored in the schedules hereto attached, numbered, respectively, 1 to 5, to set forth in succinct form the matters disposed of in both the New Mexico and Arizona districts, and to indicate the status of each of the cases still remaining for determination.

Schedules numbered 1 to 3 (both inclusive) pertain to business in the New Mexico district; the others to the Arizona district.

From schedule 1 it will be seen that in the New Mexico district the court has during the past year decided 17 cases, involving 15 grants, with a claimed area of 1,690,235.64 acres. Of this area claimed there has been confirmed 58,511 acres and rejected 1,631,724.64 acres. Among these cases were 2 of especial importance, which were presented to the surveyor-general under the act of July 22, 1854, at an early date, and have ever since been claimed with considerable pertinacity. These are the town of Socorro grant, with an alleged area of 843,259 acres, and the Estancia grant, with an area of 415,036 acres. In each of these cases, which are grants made during the Mexican sovereignty, it was contended for the Government that there was no authority in the granting officer, and in the Socorro case it was further contended that the title paper presented was forged. In both of these cases the decision was adverse to the claimants. An appeal will probably be prosecuted in both of these cases, and indeed one has been already sued out in the Estancia case.

As pointed out in former reports by this office, one of the most important duties confided to the Court of Private Land Claims is that of passing upon surveys of grants confirmed by the court, as directed by section 10 of the act of 1891. The importance of this matter has been constantly kept in mind by this office, and in each instance where a survey has been returned to the court by the General Land Office it has been made the subject of very careful scrutiny, and has in each instance been examined in the field by the special agent of the Department of Justice assigned for that duty to this office. These surveys have recently been executed with a degree of accuracy such that in none of them were objections found that justified a contention by the Government that they should be disapproved by the court. In one or two instances the survey was attacked by the claimants and its correctness thus became a matter for hearing before the court, but in each instance it was approved.

Schedule No. 2 gives a list of the grants, surveys of which have been approved during the past year. From this it will be seen that 11 such, with an aggregate area of 195,445.28 acres, have received the sanction of the court.

Schedule No. 3 is devoted to indicating the status of each case on the New Mexico docket not finally disposed of. From this it will be seen that there still remain for primary trial—that is, a hearing on the merits of the claim as distinguished from a hearing on a motion for a retrial, or on a matter of survey—13 grants, with a total area in excess of 2,826,961 acres. In only a few of these can the area be approximated, the description in most instances being so vague that an estimate is impossible. Among these cases now pending is No. 277, for the confirmation of the Jose de Leyva grant, located in Santa Fe County. This claim was filed only on September 29, 1899, being presented as a perfect grant under section 8 of the act of 1891.

From the next subdivision of this schedule it will be seen that three claims, with a total area of 272,406 acres, are under advisement by the court in the New Mexico district. One case (Subschedule C), involving 16,000 acres, is pending on a motion for rehearing, filed by claimants, the grant having been rejected by the court. In 20 grants (Subschedule D), with an aggregate area of 606,032.60 acres, the decree of confirmation has become final and been certified to the General Land Office for survey under section 10 of the act of 1891. Many of these surveys are now being made. Upon their return to the court they will be passed upon at the earliest date consistent with a proper examination into their accuracy.

Under Subschedule E are set forth the cases which have been decided by the Court of Private Land Claims and are now pending on appeal. These are 21 in number, with a total area of 5,428,876.64 acres. In some of these the appeal will probably not be perfected, and in many of these instances the cases will be reached on appeal in the Supreme Court during the early part of the coming session, so that this portion of the unfinished business of the court will in the main be disposed of within a few months. In some of these instances, however, should the case be reversed on appeal, a further trial on questions of fact will be necessary in the court below.

From Subschedule F it will be noted that there are nine grants, with a total area of 72,454 acres, pending in which decrees of confirmation have been entered, but in which the decree has not yet become final, the time provided for appeal not yet having expired. It is probable that in most of these cases no appeal will be taken, in which event the decrees will be promptly certified to the General Land Office, in order that surveys thereunder may be made with all possible expedition.

Summarizing, it will be noted from the schedules annexed that there are now pending in the New Mexico district, including grants on appeal, 67 claims, with a total area of 9,222,730.24 acres.

Schedules 4 and 5 set forth fully the condition of the Arizona docket. At the two terms of court held at Tucson during the past year all of the cases were submitted except three, already partially tried, two of which were continued for the purpose of permitting claimants to furnish further proof, and the other continued for the purpose of a field examination of a survey made by claimants.

Schedule 4 shows that of the Arizona cases three, with a claimed area of 97,458.82, were confirmed, but to the extent of 52,061.55 only, making an area of 45,397.27 acres rejected. In these confirmations, both as to the validity of the titles and the area confirmed, the court below followed the decisions rendered by the Supreme Court in Camou v. United States (171 U. S.) and United States v. Maish (171 U. S.).

From schedule 5 it will be seen that there are pending for primary determination in Arizona 3 grants, with area claimed of 46,294.29 acres. There are under advisement by the court 5 grants, with a claimed area of 401,759.14 acres. There are in process of survey 2 grants, with an area of 34,707.70 acres, and 1 grant involving an area of 17,353.85 acres has been confirmed, but the confirmation is not yet final. There are thus still pending in the Court of Private Land Claims 11 grants in Arizona, with a total area of 500,114.98 acres. The next session of the court in Arizona has been fixed for next month, at which time it is anticipated decisions will be announced in all of the cases untried and now under advisement.

It becomes my duty and pleasure to reiterate in stronger terms, if possible, the appreciation expressed in my last annual report of the faithful professional zeal exhibited in the performance of his duties by Mr. William H. Pope, special assistant to the Attorney-General, in the preparation and trial of cases before the Court of Private Land Claims, assigned to my office as assistant attorney. The manner in which his duties have been discharged justifies and merits the confidence reposed in him by yourself as Attorney-General and myself as United States attorney for the Court of Private Land Claims.

I desire to acknowledge also with grateful appreciation the zealous technical assistance given me by Messrs. Will M. Tipton, Henry O. Flipper, and Sherrard Coleman, special agents, and the other gentlemen of my office in their respective departments.

Thanking you for the confidence hitherto bestowed, and indulging the hope that my labors in the future may merit its continuance,

I have the honor to be, sir, your obedient servant,

MATT. G. REYNOLDS,

United States Attorney, Court of Private Land Claims.

Washington, D. C.

EXHIBIT H.—Report of the Solicitor of the Treasury.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
OFFICE OF THE SOLICITOR OF THE TREASURY,
Washington, D. C., October 28, 1899.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith seven tabular statements, exhibiting the amount, character, and results of the litigation under my direction and certain other cases not strictly under the direction of the Solicitor of the Treasury, but docketed in this office, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1899, shown by the docket entries of this office.

The tables embrace, respectively:

1. Suits on transcripts of accounts of defaulting public officers, excepting those of the Post-Office Department, adjusted by the accounting officers of the Treasury Department.
2. Post-office suits, embracing those against officers of the Post-Office Department, and cases of fines, penalties, and forfeitures for violation of postal laws.
3. Suits on custom-house bonds.
4. Suits for recovery of fines, penalties, and forfeitures under the customs-revenue and navigation laws.
5. Suits against collectors of customs and other officers or agents of the Government, excepting internal revenue officers, for refund of duties and acts done in the line of their official duty, including appeals from the decisions of the Board of General Appraisers.
6. Suits in which the United States is a party or is interested and not embraced in the other classes.
7. A general summary or abstract of all the other tables.

An examination of the tables will show that the whole number of suits commenced within the year was 3,278, of which 8 were of class 1, for the recovery of $22,495.44; 428 were of class 2, for the recovery of $17,831.38; 14 were of class 3, for the recovery of $2,383.71; 146 were of class 4, for the recovery of $32,108.86; 227 were of class 5; and 2,455 were of class 6, for the recovery of $657,517.06.

Of the whole number of suits brought 2,010 were decided in favor of the United States, 41 were adversely decided, 366 were settled and dismissed, leaving 859 still pending.

Of those pending at the commencement of the year, 851 were decided for the United States, 219 were adversely decided, and 632 were settled and dismissed.

The whole number of suits decided or otherwise disposed of during the year was, 4,121; the whole amount for which judgments were obtained, exclusive of decrees in rem, was $45,872.16, and the entire amount collected from all sources was $1,279,324.79.

The number of cases in which offers of compromise were pending and received during the fiscal year was 173, involving the sum of $1,829,690.34.

The number of offers accepted was 117, involving the sum of $1,482,942.07; amount accepted, $152,750.90.

The number of offers rejected was 35, involving the sum of $256,425.92; amount rejected, $31,933.87.

ing the last fiscal year by direction of this office and more than 4,000 suits were disposed of during the same time, and that 138 written opinions have been given.

It is necessary to keep advised as to what is being done in all this litigation and to advise and direct United States attorneys as to what should be done by them.

Work of this character can not be well done by anyone who is not a well-read lawyer, and $1,600 or $1,800 a year is inadequate compensation for a lawyer capable of doing the work as it should be done.

The Solicitor and Assistant Solicitor can not possibly do the legal work of the office. We must have clerks who are lawyers, and at least one of them ought to be of such ability that he can be relied upon to make briefs in important cases and to assist in preparing opinions.

The many officers of the Treasury Department frequently call on the Solicitor for advice when questions of law give them trouble, and a very large part of the Solicitor's time is occupied in giving opinions that are never reduced to writing.

I do not ask to increase the employees in this bureau, but I earnestly urge that the number of third-class clerks be reduced from four to three, and that a law clerk be provided, with a salary of not less than $2,000. It really ought to be $2,400, but I will be content if a salary of $2,000 is allowed.

Year after year only $300 has been appropriated to keep up the library. We have many partial sets of State reports that are almost worthless, because we have not been able to get reports for many years. Last year I asked for $2,000 to fill out those sets of reports, but only $300 was appropriated. I have to send out for books when examining important questions. It is a mistake to not furnish the means to make this library what is actually required. I sincerely hope that if $2,000 is not appropriated next year that at least $1,000 will be. It will be clear to any competent person who will look into the matter that $300 is wholly inadequate.

I am, sir, very respectfully,

MAURICE D. O'CONNELL,
Solicitor.

Hon. JOHN W. GRIGGS,
Attorney-General United States.

EXHIBIT I.—Report of the librarian.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
Washington, D. C., October 31, 1899.

SIR: I respectfully submit the following report on the library of the Department of Justice for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1899:

The removal of the library in June last from the old Department building to its present quarters has made it unnecessary for me to report on the work done during the early part of the year, or to state anything connected with the needs of the library as they existed prior to the removal. However, the change has not affected one line of work which was accomplished, and will be an advantage to the library not only in the present but in the future as well. I have prepared, and it is now in print, a list of the session laws (State and Territorial) which the library needs to complete its sets of these laws. The session laws now lacking are very scarce, and in many instances the prices asked are necessarily high; so high, in fact, that I have not felt warranted in purchasing many desirable books, some of which in a few years can not be secured at any price. How to obtain these laws at a minimum cost to the Government, has been a question which I have attempted to solve by this list. My plan is to send a copy of the list to each United States attorney and marshal throughout the United States, with a letter requesting that he ascertain from bookstores, lawyers, justices of the peace, etc., in his vicinity where the books of his State which are lacking can be obtained, and stating that the Department is willing to pay a moderate price for the same. I will anticipate my next year's report far enough to say that the list was printed in August last, was distributed, and the result has been gratifying beyond expectation. The list can easily be kept corrected, and a new edition printed when thought desirable.

With regard to the condition of the library since its removal, I would say that it is very comfortably and pleasantly situated, with sufficient shelf room for two or three years to come. This will enable me to classify and shelve a large number of the publications of the several Executive Departments which heretofore it has been impossible to properly arrange. I regret to say, however, that taken from the standpoint of those who have to use the library, its location is extremely inconvenient. With the text-books, digests, encyclopedias of law, the United States and other Federal reports at the Baltic, and the State, English, Canadian, and other reports and statutes, the legal periodicals, etc., comprising the bulk of the library, at the old Corcoran Art Gallery building, it is impossible for any officer of the Department to use the library except at great inconvenience and loss of time. No change in its location appears to be practicable; but matters might be greatly improved by the employment of an additional messenger whose chief, and perhaps only, duty it should be to carry books back and forth from the old Corcoran Art Gallery building to the Baltic. He should not be charged with any other duty that will interfere with his going instantly for books when sent. To be properly equipped, he should be supplied with some means for carrying the books, perhaps with a tricycle.

In addition to this, the library at the Baltic should be provided with a set of the reprinted American reports, composed of the three series—the American Decisions, the American Reports, and the American State Reports. The Department has long been in need of these books, and it is frequently a matter of surprise to lawyers that the books are not to be found in the library. These books are valuable not only because they are a reprint of the important State decisions—although that fact of itself, under present conditions, would warrant their purchase—but they are particularly valuable because of their notes, not elsewhere to be found. The set will cost $570, which, of course, precludes their purchase out of our regular appropriation. This appropriation is always inadequate to meet the positive needs of the library, and each year there has been a deficiency in the neighborhood of $200. This year it amounts to $228.50.

Until the current fiscal year the Department has been unable to buy any kind of books but law books. Histories, dictionaries, encyclopedias, and the biographies and writings of eminent jurists could not be bought. Last year Congress recognized the Department's need of this class of books, and changed the wording of the appropriation so that any book appropriate for a law library can be bought. To meet this additional expense, $250 was taken from the $750 heretofore allowed for statutes and added to the regular $1,500 appropriation for law books, in this way providing $500 for statutes and $1,750 for books generally. The change did not in any way affect the deficiency which necessarily results each year. To provide for this, an additional $250 is required, making a total of $2,000, the sum which I have recommended in each annual report for years past. If you decide that the trinity series above mentioned should be purchased, then $2,500 will be necessary for the coming fiscal year. I recommend, therefore, that Congress be asked to appropriate as follows:

1. The first of these is the fact that the
 2. of the United States is not a single
 3. but a collection of many different
 4. of people, each with their own
 5. of life and thought. This makes
 6. of the country a very complex
 7. of many different interests and
 8. of many different opinions. This
 9. of the country is a very important
 10. of the United States.

CHAPLAIN'S REPORT.

UNITED STATES PENITENTIARY,
Fort Leavenworth, Kans., June 30, 1899.

SIR: I have the honor to submit the following report for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1899.

As the preaching of the Word of God is fundamental in the chaplain's department, your attention is directed first to the religious services held during the year. Sundays, at 10.20 a. m., all had the opportunity to attend divine worship. It is gratifying to state that 65 per cent at least of the prison population were regular attendants upon these services.

As the attendance is voluntary, this is a creditable showing. Most excellent attention was given to the sermons, and at times much interest shown. This contributed to the pleasure of preaching and stimulated the hopefulness of the work. A large chorus, comprised of prisoners under the direction of one of their number, has led the service of praise. This chorus has had the privilege of meeting three times a week for practice. The benefit is apparent to all. While it is not easy to get at the real results of these meetings, it may be said, however, that a few have professed faith in Christ and many have signified a desire to lead new and better lives.

The Bible school.—A school for the study of the Bible was organized last November, with 73 members. This number steadily increased until the average attendance reached 139 on the date of this report.

The school is held Sunday afternoons and continues one hour. The International Lesson helps, as provided by the American Sunday School Union, was adopted as the course of study. It being difficult to obtain suitable teachers, the chaplain has had charge of this entire class.

It is the aim to conduct the study in such a way as to awaken a keen interest in the lessons and to cultivate a desire for a better knowledge of the Word of God.

The prison library.—Reference was made in my former report to an unfinished work in this department. It related to the classification and renumbering of books, repairing damaged ones, and the issuance of a new catalogue. This work was completed last October, when books were issued according to the new arrangement. The new catalogue contains 114 pages and shows 4,981 volumes in the library; books not catalogued, 193; school books, 1,335. There are 83 Bibles, 195 Testaments, and 721 hymn books.

There were issued each week 400 library books, or 20,800 during the year.

The prison school.—It was originally intended to conduct a school for the benefit of prisoners who might wish to pursue such studies as are taught in our public schools. But the management thus far has considered this to be impracticable, and hence the school is such only in name. However, schoolbooks have been issued for private study to those who desire them. Nearly all have taken advantage of this opportunity for self-improvement, and no doubt their unaided efforts will be rewarded.

Our needs.—They are many, but only a few will be mentioned in this report. As we have Bibles and Testaments for only one-third of our population, an addition of at least 200 Bibles would enable us to supply the demand and multiply the good now being done. Another need is slates. As already stated in this report, schoolbooks have been issued to nearly all of the prisoners, yet we have but 215 slates, and many of them are in bad shape. An addition of 300 would be used to a good advantage by these men.

Personal.—The warden has occasionally spoken to the men on historical and ethical subjects, and the deputy warden has given brief talks on questions relating to prison discipline. Miss Edith Campion, a highly respected and cultured lady of the city of Leavenworth, Kans., still presides at the organ. She has been a faithful and efficient helper in our chapel services.

Conclusion.—For the uniform kindness shown me by the warden, deputy warden, and other officials and employees of the prison I am profoundly grateful.

Respectfully,
The WARDEN.

F. J. LEAVITT, Chaplain.

PHYSICIAN'S REPORT.

Fort Leavenworth, Kans., June 30, 1899.

SIR: I have the honor to submit the following sick and sanitary report of this penitentiary for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1899:

The health of the inmates has been very good—much better than would be expected of men confined in prisons. The good health of the inmates is largely the result of the physical outdoor exercise indulged in by the convicts, most of them being employed outside of the walls on the farm, brickyard, or the new prison site.

The clothing furnished the prisoners was comfortable and warm, preventing bronchial and acute pulmonary diseases.

The food furnished the prisoners for the past year was carefully selected, and particular attention was paid to the variety and nutrition of each article of diet. The meals were arranged to afford the different food elements required for the healthy sustenance of the human mind and body.

The men generally are cheerful, active, and robust, showing plainly that their diet has been generous and nutritious.

The increase in the population of the prison has caused a proportionate increased death rate over the preceding year. A large percentage of the deaths were caused by pulmonary tuberculosis contracted, "and in some cases in an advanced stage," before their incarceration.

During the year there was only one case of pulmonary consumption contracted in the prison, the patient contracting the disease while his vital forces were reduced by typhoid fever. This incident shows plainly the necessity of properly isolating tubercular patients.

I earnestly recommend, in order to improve the sanitation of this prison and reduce the chances of patients being infected by their consumptive neighbors, that an isolation ward be constructed, separate from the hospital and all other buildings, for the proper isolation of all tubercular cases.

There was an epidemic of measles during the year—52 cases in all. Each case was properly isolated, and all recovered without permanent complications.

Very respectfully,

F. W. THOMAS,
Prison Physician.

EXHIBIT L.—Report of the board of trustees of the Reform School, District of Columbia.

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 1, 1899.

SIR: In accordance with law, I have the honor to submit the report of the board of trustees of the Reform School of the District of Columbia for the fiscal year 1899.

At the beginning of the fiscal year there were in the school 249 boys; there were received during the year 64; a total of 313, as against 354 for the previous year. Forty-eight of those received were committed by the police court, and 7 by the supreme court of the District of Columbia; 6 by United States courts outside of the District, and 3 by the president of the board of trustees.

There were discharged during the year 77 by order of the trustees, 21 by expiration of sentence (United States courts), 1 by order of court, 1 by death, 3 by pardon of the President of the United States, and 4 escaped and are still absent, leaving in the school, June 30, 1899, 206. There was one death during the year, and the general health of the inmates was and is good.

The accompanying table shows the estimates of appropriations for the next fiscal year, ending June 30, 1901, which, under the law, have been submitted to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia for insertion in the act making appropriation for the District. The amount appropriated for salaries for the present fiscal year was $16,452. The amount of the present estimate for salaries is the same.

The amount estimated as necessary for the support of inmates is the same as was appropriated for the present fiscal year and has been appropriated for a number of years past, although the number of boys has been increasing.

From 1884 to 1888 the amount appropriated annually for the support of inmates was $25,000, the average number of boys being 158. Since 1888 the annual appropriation has been $26,000, and the number of boys has increased until there were 249 at the close of the fiscal year 1898. There are several reasons for the decrease in the number of inmates during the past fiscal year. A prosperous condition of business affairs may be given as one, while another is the increased number of boys taken charge of by the Board of Children's Guardians, put in the Industrial Home School, sent to the Junior Republic, or otherwise disposed of, as to whom it is perhaps a question whether commitment to the Reform School would not have been a preferable mode of treatment.

The board has seriously considered the question of asking Congress to change the age for admission to the Reform School from under sixteen years, as now provided by law, to under seventeen years. Boys are sent to the jail or workhouse because just too old for admission to the Reform School who at the same time are probably not so bad as younger boys who go to the school, and it would seem better to keep them from the associations of those places.

In connection with this comes up the recommendation which the board has made in its report for a number of years past, for such legislation as will make the discharge from the school a limited, not an absolute one, so that boys who have lapsed into vicious ways can be returned to the school when in the opinion of the board that is the best for them and for the public. The law as it now stands would seem to contemplate such action, as the boys are committed to the school until 21 years of age, unless sooner reformed. But certainly a boy who has committed a petty offense for which a quite short residence at the school would seem to be sufficient punishment ought not to be allowed after going from the school to fall into vicious ways and perhaps commit graver offenses without the board having authority to reclaim him for further attempt at reformation.

One reason why boys are sent to the jail and workhouse is that the parents frequently apply to the judge to send them there for the reason that they are not so long deprived of their services, which they claim are necessary to help in the support of the family. A thirty or ninety days sentence to the jail or workhouse seems to them preferable to an indeterminate period in the Reform School.

The board renews its recommendation heretofore made, that, as the school is a Government institution, all the property of which is owned by the United States, and the trustees appointed by the President upon the recommendation of the Attorney-General, it be placed, as it was formerly, entirely under the control of the Attorney-General. As it is now, its control and management are under the Attorney-General, while the supervision of its accounts is given to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia. As it is a reformatory and in no sense a charitable institution, there seems to be no reason why its accounts should not be under the supervision of the Department of Justice, as are those of the United States jail.

There has been turned into the Treasury to the credit of the United States and the District of Columbia, jointly, the sum of $3,653.30, as follows: From the paper-box factory, $2,850; sales from greenhouses, $473.28; sales of surplus farm products, $68.85, and from miscellaneous sources, $261.17.

In addition to the ordinary repairs to buildings and the care of personal property and grounds, not very much has been done in the way of permanent improvement during the year. The steam heating system, which was extended to the carpenter and manual-training shops, and the drainage system from those and the main workshop, which were overhauled and improved, as stated in the last report, have worked very satisfactorily. A new boiler has been placed in the laundry and a new turning lathe in the carpenter shop. The interior of one-third of the buildings at the school has been repainted, the work being done by the boys without assistance from outside. Roofs and fences have been kept in repair, sewers kept in order, roadways resurfaced, rolled, and drained, necessary repairs made to the workshop, barn, boilers, boiler house, pumping apparatus, greenhouses, etc. The piggery, which was burned, was rebuilt, and is now in excellent condition. A new system of telephone connection between the various buildings on the grounds and the superintendent's office has been installed and works satisfactorily. Delays in the office of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia in the adoption of the plans for the assembly hall, for which an appropriation was made at the last session of Congress, with the subsequent rise in the price of building materials, have prevented any work being done upon this new building. Revised plans have been prepared for submittal to the Commissioners, but if the present prices of material continue the board will undoubtedly have to call upon Congress for an increase of the appropriation.

Very respectfully,

CECIL CLAY,
President Board of Trustees.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

Our school work closed for another fiscal year June 30, 1899.

The general trend of the work involved has been much the same as in former years and in many important features has been but a repetition of those already passed.

In answer to all inquiries as to the per capita cost of maintenance during the year I have to say that we neither are above nor below the general average as compared with leading institutions throughout the country. Our population is not large, and hence we are not of those who are expected to make minimum rates, but our expenditures have been carefully guarded, while our supplies have always been ample as to quantity and never of a doubtful quality. This is a safe means for securing a healthful diet, and this, again, for maintaining a uniformly healthful physical condition throughout the school. For all important articles of food and other leading supplies required for daily use monthly bids are received from prominent wholesale merchants. When the quality furnished is satisfactory the lowest bidder is always accepted. This gives the largest opportunity to get the best of everything and at the lowest market rates. We believe this is all the Government requires, whether as a purchasing agent to supply its own needs or in the disposition of its surplus products.

We have the most encouraging results from what has been done during the year in every department of the school. First, and paramount among all others to be named, are the good reports received from boys who have been honorably discharged within the past number of years. These reports come to us direct, and we know they are worthy of belief. Of the larger number we have personal knowledge, as they are now worthy citizens of our own community. From many others who have gone into far distant localities information comes to us in many ways, not only as to how they are employed, but with voluntary tributes also to the school in what it did for them.

In this connection, permit one of these boys to speak for himself, after many years of absence:

MY DEAR MRS. SHALLENBERGER:

I received your welcome letter some weeks ago and should have answered it more promptly, but am literally up to my eyes in work. I hardly know which way to turn, being at the same time secretary, treasurer, and registrar of this diocese, together with duties as chaplain to the bishop, rector of this parish, etc. So you must see I am a very busy man.

Do you know that as the years go by I look with more and more pleasure on the days I spent at the school. The lessons taught there were of great value to me. When I come to Washington will try to make my visit on Sunday afternoon, that I may have an opportunity to speak to the boys. Remember me kindly to the good Colonel and all others.

Ever truly and sincerely, yours,

Our average number has not been as large as during the past two or three years. The small reduction, however, has not materially interfered with the work necessary to be done. With a larger population our means for expansion in many ways would be made possible and our facilities greatly enlarged for a more complete development of our manual-training classes. This is a very practical part of the education we are expected to provide for our boys. In the District public schools there has been a forward movement in this direction for years, and for which there has been provision made by act of Congress, both as to the supply of competent instructors and suitable equipments, together with material required for daily consumption. We are fairly entitled to a like recognition, as our needs are even greater than those already named, and which have been so generously cared for. It may be suggested in this connection that we differ in many respects as to the character of our population from that of our District schools. We are naturally expected to accept and receive those who have been legally deprived of the opportunity provided in these institutions by reason of their moral infirmities.

The larger proportion of our colored population is fitted only for domestic service or for ordinary daily labor, and must secure an honest living, if at all, through the means thus offered them for employment. It should be our purpose, therefore, to educate them along these lines, and endeavor to prepare them as thoroughly as possible to creditably fill such positions after they have received an honorable discharge. The manual-training class has few attractions for this class of boys, and possibly for the reason that they see no promise of success in a contest for supremacy in the higher branches of mechanical labor.

All have equal opportunities provided them for a trial in the mechanical shops, and their daily occupation is largely determined by the interest they manifest, whether it be in domestic, agricultural, or mechanical labor. To care well for a horse and to drive him acceptably to his employer is better for the individual boy than for him to signally fail in any forced effort he may make to accomplish impossibilities in a higher class of labor.

We find many, however, who take naturally to the saw and the plane, who prefer the square and compass to either the milk pail or the hoe, and who are at home in the shop rather than on a farm. Hence it is always safe, when at all possible, to provide them with employment suited to their varied inclinations. This we try to do, believing it to be in their interest and for their present and future benefit.

The schoolroom has not been neglected, and an earnest effort has been made to secure to every boy an equal chance in the mental opportunities therein provided. We do not aim to teach all that is taught in our District public schools, nor do we ever expect to compete with them, even in the higher branches of a purely English education. Sufficient for our average population if we can give to it the benefit of a thorough training in such practical lessons as will best serve to fit it for a good starting point in this everyday business world. We have always with us a number of very clever boys, but have also many others here because they were truants from their home schools, as well as others who are mentally dull and never can come to the front in their studies. These boys are not wanting in habits of industry, often secure their promotions for faithful service and obedience to rules, but fail from want of mental capacity to advance with their classes in school.

Our purpose is, therefore, to take these boys separately, individualize them in a measure, giving them the benefit of a special training as opportunity offers, and thus aid them in every way possible. This necessarily requires much faith as well as patience on the part of the teacher. In the faithful prosecution of such means, however, he is often rewarded beyond his expectations. Education, as may be suggested, is not measured by what we learn from books, and the teacher who stops his work when the book is closed does not fully comprehend his duty, not yet measure the extent of his opportunities. Renewed efforts will be made during the present fiscal year to extend our educational facilities and to enlarge, as far as possible, our work in this direction.

The dining rooms have all received constant and careful attention. Everything of a doubtful character as to quality has been systematically discarded from our tables. Both vegetable and fruit supplies have been a fair average, all raised on the farm and cultivated by labor of the boys; hence they are rightly enough permitted to share in these products, including such luxuries as strawberries in their season and melons of every kind and quality. This encourages them to produce the best specimens of each, and serves also as an agency in the promotion of health and discipline.

The legal holidays were all appropriately observed. Our boys are ever mindful of these episodes in their somewhat monotonous life, and hence are not likely to let them pass without due notice. They may not so much reverence the day, nor even fully understand the occasion for these memorial observances, but they can tell you if the balls and bats provided for their favorite games are of the regulation pattern and of standard quality. Even this kind of knowledge is accepted and placed to the credit of each individual boy who has ambition to put himself in the front when brought into honorable competition with his fellows. It is simply educating him to take the same forward position in the workshop and in the schoolroom when called to these more important positions. As a rule, the boy who has physical and mental ability to succeed on the playground is seldom found at the foot of his class in the schoolroom.

The attending physician, Dr. Charles A. Wells, has made many visits to the school during the year, promptly responding to every demand made upon him. In all sanitary conditions necessary to the general health his word has been implicitly obeyed, and hence we have had few patients requiring extended treatment in our hospital. No epidemic disease has been prevalent. One death, and the only one during four successive years, occurred February 17 in the person of Charles Davis, a colored boy, after a service here of nearly sixteen months. The report of Dr. Wells, given on another page, speaks for itself.

Many transient visitors have been received during the year. We are always ready to welcome those personally employed in work similar to our own as well as others interested in the welfare of erring and wayward boys.

It is but a pleasant duty to acknowledge the receipt of much valuable reading matter from those in charge of the dead-letter branch of the General Post Office. We trust these favors may be continued, as our boys seem to enjoy these stray publications more than they do the heavier reading provided by our school library. Special donations of a similar character have been also received from many good friends of the school, and for which we sincerely thank all who have been thoughtful enough to thus remember our boys.

Our entire official force has maintained a high average of faithful and efficient work throughout every department of the school. Few changes have been made, and never except for cause. I gladly express commendation for timely aid from my assistants, and for the harmony that has prevailed among them.

And now, gentlemen of the board of trustees, after these many years of service, I can truly thank you for your aid and continued confidence. May our united efforts meet the Divine favor throughout the coming year.

Respectfully submitted.

G. A. SHALLENBERGER,
Superintendent.

In accordance with the act of Congress approved February 25, 1885, I have paid the same into the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the United States and the District of Columbia in equal parts.

The BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

REPORT OF THE ATTENDING PHYSICIAN.

REFORM SCHOOL, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA,
Washington, D. C., June 30, 1899.

GENTLEMEN: In making this report I beg leave to extend my thanks to the management of the school for the prompt and ungrudging assent given my every suggestion looking to the physical welfare of these boys. No effort is spared to give every feeble, every ailing, and every ill boy full chance to recover, and the attention bestowed equals and probably exceeds the care given in a majority of the families in this country.

During the past year one boy, Charles Davis, colored, died of consumption.

A large number of the boys suffered with "la grippe" during the epidemic which prevailed in this locality, and "the blizzard" left many reminders in the shape of pneumonia, bronchitis, and tonsilitis.

In the early spring, when the District was menaced with a visitation of the smallpox, I vaccinated every person connected with the institution.

In the matters of ventilation, disinfection, and cleanliness, continual vigilance is insisted on with gratifying results.

Very respectfully,

CHAS. A. WELLS, M. D.,
Attending Physician.

The TRUSTEES REFORM SCHOOL, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

EXHIBIT M.—Report of the board of trustees of the reform school for girls of the District of Columbia.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 1, 1899.

SIR: The trustees respectfully submit herewith the seventh annual report for the year ending June 30, 1899, together with the usual accompanying reports and tables.

REVIEW OF THE YEAR AS TO MOVEMENT OF INMATES, WORK, ETC.

The movement of inmates for the year has been as follows:

At the beginning of the year there were in the school 27 girls, and the same number at the close. The largest number was 29, on July 14, 1898, and the smallest 24, October 14, 1898. Five new inmates have been received, and 4 who were placed in families were returned, 2 of the latter having left their homes voluntarily and returned to vagrancy, were for a few weeks and brought back to school. During the year 5 were expelled, 3 of whom were soon returned, but the other 2 were not. There is reason to believe that they were aided. Six girls have been released to their parents or placed in families on probation. None of these has been efficient and requiring much care and oversight, because she was not a proper subject for placing to provide a good home for her. When in a bad physical condition, and was treated at the school for several weeks, where her health improved. Her mental condition sufficiently proper for feeble-minded children. The latter protested against receiving her, sent to the school to be taken care of, admitted, v, 1899, entered the school, but was not deemed sick enough to be admitted to any hospital for treatment, and it was impossible to isolate her from the other inmates of the school. Her father was entirely indifferent to her, and her aunt, who was asked to take her, declined. These cases are mentioned to show the inclination on the part of some parents and guardians of the class from which the inmates come to shirk entirely the responsibility of caring for their children even when greatly in need of care and not fit subjects for a reformatory.

The general health of the institution has been very good, most of the ailments being of a trifling character not requiring the patient to be confined to her room. One girl, whose sight and hearing were both chronically defective, was treated at the Episcopal Eye, Ear, and Throat Hospital, and helped, but not cured. Each girl is vaccinated upon admission. During the occurrence of smallpox in this city and neighborhood in February each officer and girl in the school was vaccinated and visiting day discontinued for some weeks as a precautionary measure. The teeth of the girls have been properly looked after, and such extracting and filling done as was necessary.

The behavior of the inmates has been exceptionally good during this year. During October there was one instance of insubordination involving two girls, which was promptly punished, and since that time the offenders have been among the best in the school, both as to behavior and work. Otherwise there has been no spirit of mutiny or insurrection.

The work of the school has gone on smoothly and effectively, the girls doing all the housework, laundry work, and sewing, and are also occupied with knitting and in the garden. In the school the ordinary branches are taught, and the girls for the most part take an interest in their studies. Some, who have never been taught, do not apply themselves rightly and naturally make slow progress. Very few are beyond the first or second primary grade when admitted, and some of them have not even learned the alphabet. Much patience is necessary in the sewing room in order to train the girls to do neat work, but they gradually learn. Each girl is required to do her own darning and mending and most of the sewing on her own clothing. The work done by the girls in the kitchen and dining room, where they are taught cooking, service, and waiting, and in the laundry, has been satisfactory.

Religious services are held every Sunday afternoon by workers from the various churches in Washington, and a short religious service is held by the superintendent or teachers every morning and evening. These services are believed to be of great help in inspiring and maintaining the work of the school and in aiding religious and moral development.

The garden suffered from long-continued drought during last summer and fall, but there was a good supply of vegetables and of various fruits. The potato crop, which last year was almost a total failure, will probably be sufficient this year for the needs of the school for the winter. Some small fruit vines were set out this spring, which will bear next year. The poultry yards are doing well, and also the stock.

For further details on these matters, you are respectfully referred to the superintendent's report.

LEGISLATION.

Your attention is again earnestly called to the necessity of amending the legislation regarding the school upon matters which have been repeatedly discussed in previous annual reports.

(1) The legislation affecting the Reform School for Boys has been, as you are aware, applied to this school by the act incorporating the latter, the only material difference (except as to age limitation) being that while the board of trustees of the Boys' Reform School appoint the officials of the school and fix their compensation, subject to the approval of the Attorney-General, in the case of the Girl's School the supervisory power is lodged in the Commissioners of the District of Columbia and not in the Attorney-General. It is, we think, obvious that for various reasons regarding uniformity of control and singleness of responsibility there should be no difference in this respect between the two institutions, and we respectfully request that you urge this matter upon the attention of Congress and obtain an amendment of the Girls' Reform School act by which the approval requisite for appointment by the trustees shall be your own and not that of the District Commissioners.

(2) Upon similar grounds we consider it very desirable that the heading or classification of this institution in appropriation bills and other legislation should be changed to "Prisons and reformatories," and that it should not remain under "Charities and correction," where it now is. It may be difficult in some cases to draw the line between the two classes of institutions for the control or care of defectives, especially as the language used in the two foregoing phrases in legislation itself intermingles the separate ideas; but practically the distinction is a clear one. A charity is rather one of the various agencies which alleviate distress by medical treatment or by providing a home, or which educate and train, such as a hospital, or a home, or a school for feeble-minded children. Practically, too, a charity involves the idea of an institution which is wholly or partially a matter of private initiative and not entirely dependent upon the State. But the prison or reformatory excludes all of these ideas, and while the latter word is less harsh in degree of its implications than the former, they both involve the idea of punishment and discipline, the reformatory dealing with those whose chance for restoration to usefulness need not be viewed as entirely lost, or who are just at the threshold of the downward path and may be prevented from starting along it. There can be no question that this school is in the latter category. It is in intention, and it should be kept in practice, a reformatory, a place of discipline or training, which, while it need not be harsh, has a restraining and punitive element in it. It is not a home, and it is not a charity. We respectfully request that you urge upon Congress in this matter, too, that the terms of the law be changed.

(3) Involved with the proper function of the school as a reformatory and not a charity or home is the question of the age at which inmates should be admitted and dismissed. The law now provides that girls may be admitted, either by the courts of the District of Columbia, or by the president of the school (sec. 8, Boys' Reform School act, May 3, 1876, 19 Stat., 49; sec. 6, Girls' Reform School act, July 9, 1888, 25 Stat., 245), up to 18 years of age upon the statutory conditions as to record and character, and (sec. 9, Boys' Reform School act) that they shall be kept until they are 21 years of age unless sooner discharged or bound out as apprentices. It is not necessary to say to you that, especially with girls, the indelible change by which a person passes from the reformable to the criminal or hopelessly depraved class often comes before 18 years is reached. Such girls are a menace to the school and an influence of contamination and danger to all the other girls and especially to those of the more tender years, which the history of all such institutions shows as one of the perils to be most sedulously guarded against.

Again, it often happens that a girl, admitted within the legal age for admission, very soon after passing it has demonstrated to the complete conviction of the school officers and the trustees that nothing can be done for her in the way of reform, and that her incorrigibility or criminality is so fixed and extreme that she is no longer a proper subject for the school and should rather be transferred to the House of Correction, or, if she entered upon an order of court, be redelivered to court for such further disposition as the court may think proper. Therefore we strenuously urge that Congress should be asked to reduce the legal age limit of admission to the school from 18 to 16 years, as in the case of the boys' school, or should permit the board of trustees, after proper investigation, to exercise their discretion as to the admission of any girl between the ages of 16 and 18 years; and should empower the board to transfer to the House of Correction such girls who are over the age of 18, but have not reached the age of 21 years, as they deem insusceptible of reform and likely to endanger the due administration or morale of the school. It is evidently not the intention of Congress that inmates of the Boys' or the Girls' Reform schools shall be discharged within the statutory age of dismissal unless reformed, and even if the power to discharge in a doubtful case may be said to exist, it is a menace to the community to discharge such a person, boy or girl, as is here indicated. Therefore the alternative of transfer from the school to the House of Correction for the interval until majority appears to be the right way out of the difficulty.

We desire, however, expressly to state that the foregoing does not mean that the trustees wish merely young children and, so to speak, the "easy cases." They are fully prepared to undertake the reform of any proper subject, however incorrigible. The point is that one hopelessly dissolute or criminal girl may endanger the whole scheme of the school as to all the other inmates then present.

In connection with the foregoing it is to be stated that more than one-third of the girls in the school are between 18 and 21 years of age, and most of these have been there four or five years. Some of them have been out on probation once or twice and have been returned because they will not work in their places as they ought to do and will not keep themselves and their clothing neat and clean without constant supervision. In retaining such girls in the school many children who might be benefited by the care and training are, of course, kept out. It is believed that many of the girls who are quite willing to be supported at the school until they are 21 years old would work as they ought in the places found for them if they knew that instead of being sent back to the school they would be sent to jail or the workhouse after they reach the age of 18 years. No girl is or should be finally released or honorably discharged from the school until she is able to earn an honest, respectable living, and this would be the case in many more instances than now exist if the girls had the spur to duty lying in the consciousness of greater punishment than return to the school if they fail.

NEW BUILDING.

The total appropriation is now available for the new building, and accordingly the board have been engaged for several months past in studying location and plans, and have held frequent conferences with the District Commissioners and with Mr. James G. Hill, commissioned by them as architect upon these subjects. The site for the new building has been selected to the north and east of the present building. The structure is to be a basement and three stories of brick, standing on a line and a little above the grade of the present building, about 100 feet distant, and consisting of a façade and a right angle wing. The plans have now been adopted and the specifications drawn, and the advertisements for proposals are being made. Bids will be opened by the District Commissioners and the contract let, we are informed, early in August. It is anticipated that the new building will be ready for occupancy before the close of the current fiscal year, say about May 1, 1900. It is therefore necessary, in asking for an appropriation, to include the increased basis of cost of administration and of maintenance, estimated upon an increase of about two-thirds of the present number of inmates, and the estimate for appropriations accordingly shows these changes.

It will be noted that with the new building the school will be properly prepared to receive white girls of the appropriate classes as well as colored girls.

Before the close of the year the board made a contract for the construction of a small storage and shelter shed attached to the barn.

The vacancy existing in the board from last year was filled on December 20, 1898, by the appointment of Brig. Gen. Chauncey McKeever, U. S. A. (retired), and the vacancy arising by reason of the resignation of Hon. John Murray Mitchell was filled on May 22, 1899, by the appointment of Rear-Admiral Francis M. Ramsay, U. S. N. (retired).

In reference to the details as to improvements made during the year and those needed, you are respectfully referred to the accompanying report of the superintendent.

The estimate for the next annual appropriation here follows:

NOTE.—This estimate is based upon an average addition of two-thirds the present number of inmates for the appropriation year in question.

Attention is again called to the desirability of additional pasturage, especially as with the enlarged school the number of cattle to be maintained will be increased. There is not sufficient pasture land on the school property. We respectfully request that Congress be asked to grant for the use of the school 15 or 20 acres of the Government land in the neighborhood for this purpose.

It gratifies the board to report continued efficient management and faithful service on the part of the superintendent and her subordinate officials. Especial note is made of the long and faithful service of the former engineer, who during the year was obliged to resign his post owing to ill health.

Respectfully submitted.

REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT.

REFORM SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA,
Washington, D. C., June 30, 1899.The PRESIDENT AND BOARD OF TRUSTEES,
Reform School for Girls, District of Columbia:

The following report of this institution for the year ending June 30, 1899, is respectfully submitted:

July 1, 1898, there were present in this school 27 girls; June 30, 1899, 27 girls. The largest number at one time was 29 girls, July 14, 1898; and the smallest number, 24 girls, October 14, 1898.

Five new girls have been received and 4 who had been placed in families were returned. Of these latter, 2 voluntarily left their homes and returned to their old life of vagrancy, and after a few weeks when returned to the school were in a very bad condition.

During the year 5 have escaped; 3 we reason to believe that the other two were

Six girls have been released to their probation. No girl released during the year

One girl, who was mentally deficient and oversight as a small child, was released to her father promised to provide a good home for her, and she could not be benefited by remaining here, and her discipline of the school. This girl was in a wretched condition physically when admitted to the school, and was under the care of our physicians for some time, and was treated at the Freedmen's Hospital for several weeks. She improved in health, but the physicians would not agree that she was a fit subject for an institution for the care of feeble-minded youth. When this girl was delivered to her parents the mother protested, saying she had had her daughter sent here to be taken care of, as she had her other children to look after.

Another girl, who was admitted to the school in April, 1898, was taken to the hospital in January, 1899, where she died of consumption in April, 1899. This child was ailing from the time she entered the school, but not sick enough to be admitted to any hospital for treatment, and we could not keep her isolated from the other inmates. Her father paid no attention to the child, and an aunt who was asked to take her into her home said she could not afford it. I mention these two cases only to show the inclination on the part of some parents and guardians to throw off all responsibility for caring for their children, even when they most need care, and are not fit subjects for a reformatory.

The general health of the girls has been very good. We have had a few cases of sore throat and cold, but not enough to confine the patients to their rooms, except in one case of ulcerated sore throat, when the patient was kept in bed three days.

One girl when admitted, in November, 1898, was suffering from chronic inflammation of the ear, with a disagreeable discharge therefrom. For this she has been taken to the Episcopal Eye, Ear, and Throat Hospital for treatment, and has been helped, but not cured. In this child both sight and hearing are defective.

Each girl is vaccinated upon admission; but in February, during the epidemic of smallpox in the city, upon an order from the health department, each officer and girl in the school was vaccinated and the monthly visiting day discontinued for three months.

Dr. Vale has visited the school and prescribed for such cases as were necessary.

Dr. Brightwell, dentist, has made several visits, examining the teeth of every girl at each visit, and extracting or filling, as was best for each case. We have had few complaints of toothache this year.

The work of the school has gone on as usual, but we are glad to say that the general behavior has been much better this year than before. In October two girls behaved badly, were punished, seemed penitent, and are now among the best in the school, as far as behavior and work go. With these two exceptions, there has been no spirit of mutiny or insurrection shown; but, instead, there seems to be a growing desire to make "our school," "our garden," "our flowers," "our work" in other departments the best possible to attain.

The girls have done all the housework, laundry work, and sewing. Some are learning to crochet and knit, and every girl goes to school a portion of each day. Besides this, they work in the garden in suitable places.

As a reward for good behavior, we have taken several pleasant excursions to the Zoological Park, besides blackberrying, fishing, and nutting parties, and occasional long walks about the neighborhood. The girls on the roll of honor sometimes accompany the superintendent on a trip to town, and always behave well.

In the school, reading, writing, arithmetic, spelling, history, geography, and grammar are taught, and most of the pupils take a decided interest in their studies. A few who, perhaps, never studied much, do not apply themselves as they should, and naturally do not make the progress desired. Very few are beyond the first or second grade when admitted, and some do not even know the alphabet. One girl admitted recently, and mother of a child $2\frac{1}{2}$ years old, did not know a letter before coming here. It is very hard for her to settle down to study, but we hope she may do better in the future.

In the sewing room much patience is required, as very few are able to sew at all when admitted, and many dislike to take the pains necessary to do neat work. But patience is rewarded by the way some girls learn to sew, hem, darn, make buttonholes, and mend. Each girl is required to do her own darning and mending, and part if not all of her own sewing on dresses and underclothing. A total of 508 separate pieces of work have been made, of substantial size and character, including dresses, underclothing, tablecloths, sheets, etc.

In the kitchen and dining room good work has been done. Girls who have a taste for cooking are encouraged and helped and taught all that is possible here in plain cooking of meats and vegetables, bread, corn bread, cookies, pies, and preserving and canning fruits and vegetables.

In the laundry very good work has been done.

Religious services are held every Sunday at 3.30 p. m. by devoted Christian workers from the various churches in Washington. These services are undoubtedly a great help in the work here, and we believe the good seed sown will bear fruit.

A short service, consisting of song, prayer, Bible reading, or memory chapters, is held each morning and evening. We have had a number of enjoyable entertainments—Christmas, Thanksgiving, July 4, and at other times. We had a nice Christmas tree, with several presents for each girl.

Garden, stock, fruit, etc.—Our garden last year was poor, partly owing to the long-continued drought, but we had a good supply of corn, beets, tomatoes, cantaloupes, watermelons, onions, turnips, and pumpkins. The potato crop was almost a total failure. This year we have a much better garden, with prospects of raising enough potatoes to last through the winter. We have had lettuce, radishes, onions, pease, beans, and beets, thus far. We had 12 bushels of peaches from our orchard, and these were preserved for winter use.

This spring we set out 250 blackberry and 650 red and black raspberry vines, which will bear next year. We have 150 young chickens, and have had an abundance of fresh eggs; 4,778 eggs, or 398 $\frac{1}{2}$ dozens. Two hogs, 1 calf, and 100 fowls were slaughtered for meat. We have 18 young hogs and 2 fine heifer calves we are raising.

Improvements made during the year.—New wire screens for windows and doors all over the house. A new 100-foot fire hose, with connections, put in basement, and a smaller hose for washing windows and watering the lawn bought. Twelve (chemical) Byrne fire extinguishers have been put in the house and barn. A water-closet, in the barn, for the use of the men who room there. The barn wired for electric lights two lots, 16 by 18 feet, or twelve graves, in a little Baptist burial ground about 2 miles from the school. The caring for this piece of ground will be one of the duties as well as the pleasure of the oldest and best girls.

For some time we have felt the need of a large shed to shelter the calves, as well as a place to keep all farm implements, cart, and wagon, and now are building a shed for that purpose. This will be a great convenience.

Improvements needed.—All walls in halls, stairways, officers' and inmates' rooms need pointing up and painting. A boiler is needed large enough to supply the entire building with hot water in cold weather.

We have a board fence along the Conduit road and directly in front of the barn. With this exception our land is inclosed only by a bar-wire fence. A board fence would look better, be more substantial, beside being better for the stock.

When we have more inmates we will need more cows for supplying milk, and again we urge the need of more pasturage.

At present the arrangement for removing ashes from the furnace room is very slow and laborious, as two men have to carry out all ashes in a box. A tunnel from the furnace room to the ground outside the playground would enable one man to wheel the ashes out, with much less labor and in less time than this work now takes.

To the physicians in charge of the dispensary of the Episcopal Eye, Ear, and Throat Hospital for treatment and examination of the eyes and ears of several of our girls.

We are indebted to various friends for gifts and substantial remembrances for the girls at Christmas and other seasons.

I wish to call your attention once more to the fact that more than one-third of the girls in this school are between 18 and 21 years of age, and most of them have been here four or five years. Some of these have been out on probation once or twice, and have been returned to be kept here until they reach the age of 21 years, because they are too lazy to do the work they ought to do, or will not keep themselves and clothing neat and clean without constant supervision, and few people care to have such servants in their employ. In keeping such girls as these here so long, many children, who might be benefited by the care and training received here, are kept out.

With one exception (the girl who was admitted in April, the mother of a child 2½ years old and who is said to have been in the company of the lowest women in a bad part of the city for a long time) we have not had to admit to the school any girl over 17 years of age, and this has been a great help to us in the past year; but we hope the age of admission may be reduced to 16 years or under, and the age of dismissal to 18 years instead of 21 years.

I believe that many of these girls who are perfectly willing to be supported here till they are 21 years old would work and do well if they knew that instead of being sent back to this school they should be sent to the jail or workhouse after they are 18. No girl finally released from this school need be unable to earn an honest, respectable living if she will only do her duty.

The school has been visited and inspected regularly several times each month by one or more members of the board, and we know that these visits are very helpful to both officers and inmates, for it shows you see and understand our daily life, and care how the work goes on.

For the duties faithfully discharged and the willing help given by the officers and employees I am grateful. No work of this kind can ever be successful unless each and every one does her whole duty and works cheerfully and helpfully with the others.

In May our efficient engineer, William A. Tubbs, was compelled to resign on account of ill health. We regret parting with him, but the best wishes of every person connected with this school go with him.

To every member of the board, but particularly to the house committee, I wish to express my grateful appreciation for the patience, sympathy, and kindly encouragement always shown me, and hope that our efforts may yet be crowned with success in trying to direct into paths of usefulness, honesty, and industry those intrusted to our care.

Respectfully,

AMY JEAN RULE,
Superintendent.

PHYSICIAN'S REPORT.

The BOARD OF TRUSTEES:

I am very glad to be able to report the continued good health of the inmates of the school. There was one death from pulmonary tuberculosis—contracted previous to the admission of the girl. In order that she might have the best care during the last weeks of a hopeless illness, she was removed to the Washington Asylum Hospital.

During the prevalence of smallpox all the employees and inmates of the school were revaccinated at the suggestion of the health officer of the District.

I have been especially impressed with the interest taken by the superintendent, Miss Rule, in the welfare and management of the institution. This, together with her hospital experience and professional knowledge of nursing, accounts to a great extent for the sanitary condition of the school and health of its inmates.

Very respectfully,

FRANK P. VALE, M. D.

EXHIBIT N.—Report of the warden of the United States jail in the District of Columbia.

UNITED STATES JAIL,

Washington, D. C., November 4, 1899.

SIR: I have the honor to submit herewith my annual report of this jail for the year ending October 31, 1899:

Since our last report the woman's new department has been completed and occupied for several months. Its comparative modern construction is, in our opinion, a decided improvement over the older part of the jail. The superior ventilation and other appointments are decidedly favorable.

Sickness has been of frequent occurrence among the officers during the year, and I desire to commend their conduct in being ready to do double or extra duty to relieve one another during sickness.

I take pleasure in submitting the report of Dr. D. K. Shute, physician to the jail; also tables giving a detailed account of the business of the jail during the year.

I desire to call attention to the fact that it is frequently the case that prisoners are tried for offenses where the penalty is less than one year in jail, but the prisoner may have two or more counts against him, thus aggregating more than one year, and in some instances two, three, and four years. I am of the opinion that the law should be changed so as to allow the court to aggregate the several sentences and send the prisoner to the penitentiary instead of keeping him in jail so long without work. Prisoners committed to jail during the past year for periods aggregating more than 364 days are as follows:

But prisoners have been sentenced to jail for periods of from 1,400 to 1,600 days, one prisoner becoming insane, probably because of his having remained in such close confinement for so long a time.

During the year there have been 362 persons committed to jail under the age of 18, ranging from 8 to 17 years of age. It seems to me that some different action should be taken with reference to sending persons of such extreme youth to the District jail, believing that it is not best for the moral status of these youths.

I have had to ask favors of the police and detective departments of the District of Columbia, and I wish to thank Maj. Richard Sylvester, chief of police, and Inspector Robert H. Boardman for courtesies shown me.

We are indebted to the Department of Justice and to the honorable judges of the supreme court of the District of Columbia and to the United States district attorney for their assistance, and for their promptness in disposing of those cases held for trial.

And I especially wish to thank the officers of each of these departments for their uniform courtesies and pleasant manner always shown me.

Very respectfully,

JAMES H. HARRIS,
Warden, United States Jail.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

PHYSICIAN'S REPORT.

UNITED STATES JAIL,
Washington, D. C., November 4, 1899.

DEAR SIR: I respectfully submit my report for the year ending October 31, 1899, on the medical conduct of the jail.

The prisoners and officers of the jail have suffered to an unusual extent from malarial fever, both in the spring and autumn of this year, due to the proximity of the jail to the Eastern Branch of the Potomac River. At least one-half of the prisoners and officers have had, both in the spring and autumn, severe attacks of malarial fever. The malarial fever has been so very severe this year that many of the officers have been incapacitated for work, even more than in previous years. The officers have had such severe and protracted attacks of malarial fever that at times the management of the jail has been seriously embarrassed for want of the proper number of guards. If the jail is to be permanently located at its present location, I feel that it is my duty to again suggest that the flats of the Eastern Branch should be redeemed, if possible. The miasm emanating from these flats not only seriously embarrasses the health and well being of the prisoners and officers of the United States jail, but it is a breeding point for the spread of malarial miasm through the whole city. Many prisoners who come to the United States jail are already possessed with a broken-down constitution, due to various diseases and personal abuses, and through exposure to the miasm emanating from the flats of the Eastern Branch makes serious inroads upon their health and strength.

During the past year many prisoners, as in former years, have come to the jail suffering with the varied forms of venereal diseases. They have been successfully relieved. During the past year two of the prisoners had such serious surgical diseases that it was necessary to have them removed for the operation to the Emergency Hospital on account of the lack of facilities for performing these operations in the jail. Dr. W. P. Carr, the surgeon to the Emergency Hospital, operated successfully for appendicitis in a prisoner, and also for absolute stricture of the urethral canal. There was one case of measles in the jail, which was successfully isolated, so that no other cases occurred in the jail. One case of severe rheumatism occurred in a prisoner with a successful result. One woman gave birth to a stillborn child. Three prisoners were hanged in accordance with legal enactment. One prisoner died of senile debility. Another prisoner died here from the effects of typhoid fever contracted outside of the jail. Many minor complaints have been treated in the jail with success.

The sanitary condition of the jail, apart from its location near the Eastern Branch flats, has been unusually good. The prisoners of the jail, due to the careful precautions of the warden, have been exempt from any attacks of smallpox, which was largely present in this city at large.

Very respectfully,

Capt. JAMES H. HARRIS,

Warden United States Jail.

D. K. SHUTE,

Physician to the United States Jail.

EXHIBIT O.—Report of the Architect of the Capitol.

ARCHITECT'S OFFICE, UNITED STATES CAPITOL,
Washington, D. C., October 21, 1899.

SIR: I have the honor to inform you that the following improvements and repairs have been made at the court-house, Washington, D. C., during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1899:

Circuit court rooms Nos. 1 and 2 have been painted. Plastering in bailiff's room has been repaired. The jury box in circuit court room has been moved. The plumbing in the ladies' toilet room has been much improved. A new stairway has been erected in basement story, east wing. A new doorway established in office of the recorder of deeds. In the engineer's department a new floor has been laid and two boilers repaired and reset.

The roof of the building has been extensively repaired. A standpipe and fire-alarm box have also been put in the building.

I would most earnestly recommend that the sum of $5,000 be appropriated for the repairs of the court-house for the fiscal year 1901.

The pardons granted for desertion from the United States Navy were upon the recommendations of the Secretary of the Navy.

Under the rules adopted by you and approved by the President, cases in which neither the United States attorney nor the trial judge recommend clemency are not submitted for the consideration of the President, unless it is apparent that the health of the convict will be very seriously impaired by further confinement.

I submit herewith a statement showing the names of persons convicted in the United States courts who were pardoned, or whose sentences were commuted or respited, during the fiscal year. This statement also shows the districts where the convicts were tried, when they were convicted, their offenses, the recommendations made by the Attorney-General, the dates upon which the President acted, and the nature of such action.

Respectfully, yours,

JOHN H. CAMPBELL,
Pardon Attorney.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

| Carter V. Lea..... | North Carolina, eastern. | Embezzling from the mail. | 1 year and 1 day in the North Carolina penitentiary. | May 30, 1898 | I think sufficient grounds are shown to authorize Executive clemency in this case. The facts show that Lea took from the post-office at Winstead, N. C., a watch worth $4.75, and after having worn it a few days sent it to the addressee at Winston, N. C., the watch having gone to Winstead, where Lea was assistant postmaster, by mistake. While this crime in the Indian Territory is common and deserves severe punishment, I think the sentence imposed in this case exceeds all reasonable bounds, and advise that it be commuted to 2 years imprisonment, with all allowances for good conduct. This is a case arising under sentence of an Army court-martial. The Secretary of War having recommended that a pardon be granted, I so advise. | Sentence commuted to 2 years imprisonment. | Aug. 3. |

| Frank Moss | South Carolina | Attempting to rob a post-office. | 3 years in the Reform School, District of Columbia, and fine of $100. | Nov. 22, 1897 | was used in small sums in drinking and treating at a saloon next door to the post-office to which Shoddy habitually resorted. His crime was the result of the drink habit and probably not conscious embezzlement. In the hope that clemency may in connection with the punishment he has suffered induce him hereafter to live an honest and sober life, I advise that sentence be committed to 2 years actual imprisonment. | Parlon granted.... | Sept. 13 |
| Dallas Penny | Iowa, southern | Passing counterfeit money. | 1 year in jail and fine of $400. | Dec. 10, 1897 | Upon the recommendation of the officers of the Reform School, I advise that this boy be pardoned in order that he may be sent home. He is fatally ill with consumption and is only 15 years of age. Prisoner was convicted of passing counterfeit money and sentenced to 1 year's imprisonment and to pay a fine of $400. I do not think the term of imprisonment too long, but inasmuch as he has no property, being merely a farm laborer, and the payment of the fine would only punish innocent persons, I advise that the fine be remitted. | Fine remitted..... | Sept. 13 |
| Leonardo Locovaro | District of Columbia | Carrying a concealed weapon, and violating police regulations. | Concealed-weapon case, fine of $50 and in default 90 days in jail; for violating police regulations, fine of $10 and in default 30 days in workhouse. | July 1 and 2, 1898. | Petitioner, an Italian laborer, was guilty of what is known as disorderly conduct. The police judge sentenced him to 4 months' imprisonment on the two charges which were made. He has now served over 30 days, and in view of the poverty of his family and that his offense was not heinous, I recommend that he be pardoned. The judge who pronounced sentence in this case advises that the term of imprisonment imposed (3 years) be committed to 1 year. While not able to agree with him as to the amount of time that should be deducted, I recommend that the sentence be committed to 2 years' imprisonment, with allowances for good conduct. | Parlon granted .. | Sept. 13 |

| William Hicks and Lillie Hicks. | Indian Territory... | Fornication..... | William Hicks, 6 months in United States jail at Fort Smith, Ark.; Lillie Hicks, 30 days in United States jail at South McAlester, Ind. T. | Apr. 11, 1898 | Hicks, a colored man, married, according to the prescribed forms of law, a white woman about 4 years ago, and in good faith lived openly with her in the family relation of husband and wife until recently. A provision of Mansfield's Digest, in force in Indian Territory where the parties were married and live, makes a marriage between whites and blacks null and void. Hicks was indicted and convicted of fornication with the woman he thus married, and sentenced to 6 months' imprisonment; his wife to 30 days. I think they should be pardoned. | Pardon granted.... | Sept. 19 |
| James William Qualls. | Alabama, middle.... | Perjury..... | 2 years in Ohio penitentiary and fine of $100 and costs. | Jan. 13, 1898 | In view of the doubts expressed by the trial judge as to the substantial guilt of the prisoner (his technical guilt is conceded), I advise that he be pardoned. |do | Sept. 19 |

I advise that the sentence be commuted to 3 years imprisonment with all allowances for good conduct. This man was convicted of obtain- ing goods by false pretenses. The facts indicate nothing more seri- ous than fraudulent conduct in a deal for a horse. The court im- posed a sentence of 5 years' imprisonment. The prisoner ap- pears to have been a man of good conduct and repute prior to this occurrence. The sentence ap- pears to me grossly excessive. The trial judge and district attorney recommend his pardon on the grounds that he has rendered valuable assistance to the Gov- ernment in the prosecution of other offenders. I so advise. Prisoner's offense was very serious, it being no less than deliberate highway robbery. But he was only 18 or 19 years old at the time, has suffered 3 years' im- prisonment, has respectable rela- tives who will care for him, and has contracted consumption. In view of these considerations, I recommend that he be pardoned, to take effect Jan. 1, 1899. |do | Dec. 5 |

All of these offenses were of the same nature, and consisted in getting the loan or deposit of personal property or money to back Stroenider in alleged foot races, which he proposed to run with a man named Stibbs. It is quite clear that the whole scheme was conceived in fraud and was a mere project for getting unlawfully the property and money which he was convicted of obtaining. It appears that Stroenider's associations at the time of these offenses were somewhat disreputable. His previous life seems to have been respectable, with a wife and one child, who are dependent upon him. Stroenider was sentenced only upon the indictment for obtaining $25 and the bicycle, sentence being suspended on the other two indictments. He has now served a year and a half in prison, and very strong representations are made by many reputable gentlemen of Pittsburgh as to his reformation and desire and ability to lead a correct life hereafter. I am not indisposed to give him a trial. Having already endured an imprisonment of a year and a half, I am disposed to listen to the appeals of his friends and of those reputable citizens, and recommend his pardon for the offense for which he is now committed, allowing the other con- | Pardon granted... | Dec. 20 |

| Louis A. Lee..... | Massachusetts..... | Violation of national banking laws. | 5 years in jail at Pittsfield, Mass. | Sept. 20, 1895 | The prisoner, Louis A. Lee, while employed as a clerk in the Hampden National Bank at Westfield, Mass., embezzled at various times within the three years next before his detection moneys of the bank to the amount of $53,440.44. To cover up the embezzlement and deceive the officials, he made false entries from time to time in the books of the bank. Upon being detected, he acknowledged his crime, and upon indictment, plead guilty. The money embezzled had been made good to the bank by his bondsmen, one being his father and the other a director of the bank. It is said that the money taken was lost by Lee in gambling at gaming houses at Springfield. The young man has not been in good health since his confinement, but has suffered quite severely from rheumatism, and has been a good deal of the time in the hospital. This case was considered Feb. 11, 1898, and a pardon was then denied. The ground of ill health then relied on was not deemed sufficient, and I thought the prisoner had not served enough time to expiate his offense and to produce that salutary restraining effect upon others which is one of the prin- |do | Dec. 21 |

principal objects of criminal punishment. Nearly a year has now elapsed; he has served 3 years and 3 months of his term of imprisonment, and I can not be insensible to the fact that he was very young (20 years of age) when he committed this crime; that he was led away by the infatuation of gambling; that he has respectable family connections, and if released will have every opportunity and inducement to begin an honest and useful life. I advise that clemency now be shown to him, hoping and expecting that his sad experience and the mercy shown him, will lead him to become an upright and useful citizen.

In re the twelve Leech Lake Indians sentenced to various terms of imprisonment and fined at the late term of the United States district court for Minnesota, for resisting the United States marshal in making an arrest, I have the honor to recommend that a pardon be granted. The recent outbreak of hostilities at Bear Island between the Leech Lake Indians and the United States forces arose out of the refusal of these Indians to submit to the process of the United States court. The difficulties were adjusted and compromised on the promise of the Indians to surrender the persons for whom warrants were outstanding, which was done, and they were immediately convicted and sentenced to various terms of imprisonment, ranging from 60 days to 10 months. The law has now been vindicated and the power of the Government established by the stern and severe lesson administered. In my judgment, no further punishment is necessary to enforce the respect of the Indians for the authority of the Federal

Cleveland, January 7, 1889. Prior to this occurrence Sorter's reputation had been good as a citizen and peaceful member of society. In reporting upon the case Judge Parker, whose sternness in the punishment of crime was well known, says: "There are moral reasons that may be taken into account by the President in further reducing the punishment. They consist of the fact that the man he killed had made frequent threats of violence, which went to the extent of threats against the life of Sorter; threats that were clearly of a character to lead Sorter to the conclusion that his life was really in danger. While such threats would not alone in law give Sorter any right to kill, they are circumstances that frequently lead men in the Indian Territory to the conclusion that they may kill without waiting for any demonstration of violence on the part of the person who makes the threat. The manner of the killing by Sorter, the suddenness with which he did the killing, shows that the purpose to kill was impulsive rather than premeditated. True that he had gone to the coal bank with his gun, but he claimed while upon the stand that he did this because he had heard of the threats made by Lang, and that he purposed to use his gun if attacked by Lang. Other circumstances seem to point to this as the correct condition. Upon this set of facts I think the pardoning power might well consider this case as one parallel with a case of manslaughter, and might therefore be justified in fixing the punishment of Sorter at what would be a reasonable punishment in a case of manslaughter." With these views of Judge Parker, who heard all the evidence in the case, I concur

Sentence committed to imprisonment for life. | Sept. 22, 1888 | The petitioners, John Washington and Simmons Wolfe, are Indians who were indicted in Kansas, in 1886, for the crime of rape. At that time the prisoners were more boys. They pleaded guilty to the charge and were sentenced to be hanged. The sentence was subsequently—March 1, 1887—commuted to imprisonment for life. There does not seem to have been at any time any thorough investigation of the facts of the case, but the offense was committed upon a married woman, whose husband was a Frenchman, and who appears to have been interested before the United States commissioner in finding out how much money he was to get from the offense committed upon his wife. So far as can be gathered from the facts the woman was not a person of refined or delicate nature, and the assault itself was not committed with any circumstances of violence or brutality. These unfortunate young men have now been imprisoned for this offense nearly 13 years. The question is presented as to whether they shall remain life prisoners as a punishment for their act. Undoubtedly there are instances in which death is the proper penalty for the crime of rape, but as is well known this is a crime which varies infinitely in the degree of outrage and criminality which attach to it. EXHIBIT Q.—Report of the special attorney in charge of matters relating to the Mission Indians.

RIVERSIDE, CAL., November 3, 1899.

Hon. JOHN W. GRIGGS,
Attorney-General, Washington, D. C.:

Pursuant to your request I submit the following report. Under date of May 24, 1899, I had the honor to receive an appointment from your Department as special attorney for the Mission Indians of southern California, and was thereafter by your office directed to confer with and take instructions from Hon. Frank P. Flint, United States district attorney for the southern district of California.

During the few months which have elapsed since my appointment I have proceeded to give attention to such matters as have been referred to me relative to the Mission Indians within this jurisdiction, and in this behalf I have been in cooperation with the district attorney and Mr. Lucien A. Wright, Indian agent of the Mission Tule River Consolidated Agency, having his headquarters at the city of San Jacinto, in this county.

Shortly after my appointment my attention was called by the district attorney to a suit pending in the superior court of the county of Santa Barbara, State of California, in which the Roman Catholic bishop of Monterey, a sole corporation, is plaintiff, against Salomon Cota and others, defendants.

This action is brought by the bishop of Monterey for the purpose of determining and establishing as between the plaintiff and the band or village of Mission Indians, known as the Santa Ynez Indians, the rights of the respective parties in two parcels of land, containing in all 11,500 acres, and being portions of the Canada de los Pinos or College Rancho, situated in the county of Santa Barbara and State of California. A copy of the amended and supplemental complaint in said action is herewith submitted, and sets out the claims of plaintiff in said action, in which action all the Indians of the Santa Ynez band are made parties, both adults and minors, numbering about 75, also Mr. Lucien A. Wright as agent of the United States for the Indians of the Mission Tule River Agency in California.

When this matter was brought to my attention, and the papers in the proceeding referred to me by the honorable district attorney, my predecessor in office, Mr. Frank D. Lewis, had been authorized to appear in said action on behalf of a large number of the adult Indians of said band, and had also been appointed by the superior court of the county of Santa Barbara guardian ad litem of a large number of minors who had been served with summons pursuant to our practice in the State of California.

There was also submitted to me a copy of a contract made between Mr. Lucien A. Wright, as agent of the Mission Indians, and Right Rev. George Montgomery, bishop of Monterey, in which a substantial agreement had been reached between the Indian agent and the bishop of Monterey with regard to the boundaries of the land involved in the litigation, which was conceded to the Indians by the bishop and which he was willing by good and sufficient grant deed to convey to the Secretary of the Interior in trust for this band or village of Mission Indians known as the Santa Ynez Indians.

There was also submitted to me a contract signed by a large number of this band, which, in consideration of the contingent, bishop of Monterey and Los Angeles, Interior to be held in trust by him for the sole that is known as the Santa Ynez band of Mission is generally described in said contract; releasing claim to other portions of the College Rancho, and on town side of the Santa Cota Creek.

In this action is desirous of having the land to be defined and placed under control of the Secretary to the end that the remainder of the tract of land boundaries may also be known and defined, he all times to do what is right by the Indians and and to their satisfaction in this adjustment. By referred to the surveys were to be made and the described made specific.

to be substituted in the proceeding as attorney in place of Mr. Frank D. Lewis, my predecessor, necessary orders made upon the resignation of me guardian ad litem for the minor Indians. I subsequent to my appointment a survey had been the lands referred to in the contract previously Indian agent and the bishop of Monterey, stakes it would be necessary to visit the tract of land signatures of the Indians to the necessary papers examine carefully the boundaries which had been survey for the purpose of ascertaining as to whether to the agreement as made generally between the bishop as plaintiff. For these purposes I visited y and the village of Santa Ynez Indians, in company with A. Wright, Indian agent, leaving Riverside for the first of August last.

This litigation is represented by Messrs. Canfield & at law at Santa Barbara, and while on my way to

I called upon these gentlemen and learned from certain of the defendants in the action upon it made service of process and whom they desired in before a final action could be taken in the case. Santa Ynez that at least one of the Indians made yed counsel in his own behalf who had appeared d answered in the case, and I have been advised has since entered his own appearance by attorney

We expect within the next sixty days to be a decree, which we consider will protect the rights ing to this band both to their land and to the use satisfactory to the band of Indians and to the by advised, both by the district attorney and the band of Indians residing in the Agua Caliente Springs were being trespassed upon and their ter interfered with by a private corporation known as the Palm Springs Water Company, and, at the suggestion of the district attorney, I visited this reservation on the 13th day of October last for the purpose of ascertaining the facts and so advising myself that I might intelligently take the matter up and endeavor to secure some amicable adjustment which would in future avoid the difficulty.

After examining an extended correspondence between my predecessor in office and the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, and an investigation of the ditches and water sources from which the Indians have in times past been supplied on that reservation, together with such facts as I could get by inquiry, I found that matters were much complicated, it being apparent to me that this corporation above named has been gradually attempting to encroach upon the rights of the Indians, greatly to their disadvantage.

I have opened correspondence with the president of this company, have suggested a conference in order that some definite conclusions may be reached and the difficulties for the future avoided, and it is our purpose to press these negotiations until the parties shall fully recognize the rights of the Indians, and to the use of that water which they have been long accustomed to use, and to have these rights so defined in written agreements and recorded that there will be no further controversy in regard to them in future.

These two matters above set forth are the important matters which have been brought to my attention during the six months of my incumbency, except as I have been called upon from time to time to advise the Indian agent with reference to the rights of the Indians in the matter of highways, together with other minor difficulties arising continuously between them and their neighbors with regard to their stock and other interests peculiar to Indians residing upon reserved land.

I have now been residing in southern California about sixteen years, and during that time have been greatly interested in both the former history and present condition of the Mission Indians of this district.

I take the liberty in this report to commend the attitude and policy of the Government with reference to the education of the Mission Indians within this jurisdiction. From what has been accomplished in years past in this regard, I am fully of the opinion that liberal provision for the education of the young people upon the lines carried out in the establishment of the Perris Indian School and others of like character will at no very distant day entirely depopulate most of the Indian reservations of this agency.

As long as the adults live they will still continue to remain upon the tracts of land set apart for them by the Government, but the young men and women now completing their education and being educated in these schools are finding homes and occupations in the enterprising towns and settlements of our own people, and I shall be greatly surprised if they ever return to identify themselves with their former homes. I would therefore suggest that schools for the education of these young people beginning at twelve years old and upward should in my judgment be established upon the reservations, but in southern California at least, as far as their homes, where they can be surrounded by the same social, moral and agricultural conditions, and where, in connection with their secular education, they are taught the methods of irrigation and the proper use of manure, and the necessary cultivation and fertilization of the soil, and the establishment of these schools will enable our people to become interested in the welfare and development of these young people; and, through their interest in them, by the time they are ready to leave school, become industrious in furnishing them employment and placing them in condition to become identified and influenced by our own methods and customs.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

WILLIAM COLLIER,

Special attorney for the Mission Indians of Southern California.

Washington, D. C.

SIR: I beg to recommend that means be taken to secure the construction within the next year, if possible, of the following portions of the proposed new United States Penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., viz: The two interior wings or cell houses; the main corridor and apartments therewith connected, running back from the interior cell houses and including the schoolrooms; the laundry building; one-half the boiler house, and the hospital building.

The completion of the above-named buildings—the laundry and hospital buildings being temporary—will enable us to remove the prison population from its present quarters to the new site. This is demanded by the following considerations:

(1) Sixty per cent of the working time of prisoners employed at the quarry and on the new site is lost in marching between those places and their present quarters—an average distance of $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles—and through delays occasioned by fog, showers, and weather that will not permit us to take the risks of marching, while it would not keep us from work if we were on the ground within the stockade. This will delay indefinitely the construction of the new prison.

(2) Because the temptation to acts of violence in order to escape is naturally present among the prisoners while on the march in much greater degree than when within a stockade. More guards are required to secure the safety of a given number than would be required were it not for the long march.

(3) It is impossible to keep the prisoners from conversing freely with each other during this march. It is also impossible for the guards to march close enough to the prisoners to impose any restraint upon the character of their conversation. Consequently it is not only demoralizing in the extreme, but the opportunity is afforded for concocting all kinds of plots and schemes, which, however futile, serve to keep the minds of the prisoners in a state of morbid and vicious excitement and to effectually defeat such good results as might otherwise be obtained from their imprisonment.

The present system is only evil and that continually, and I feel that I can not too strongly urge upon your consideration the importance, from every point of view, of preparing to transfer the prisoners to the new site at the earliest day possible.

Respectfully,

R. W. McCLAUGHEY,
Warden United States Penitentiary.

NOVEMBER 12, 1899.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

SIR: Regarding the matter of the immediate construction of certain portions of the new United States Penitentiary, at Fort Leavenworth, by contract, as set forth in the letter of Warden McLaughry of the 11th instant, and the reasons for such course as set forth therein, I beg to most earnestly corroborate and fully indorse the recommendations of the warden, and to say that in my opinion his suggestions are entirely feasible. If the plans be put into execution, it would not in anywise interfere with continuing the convicts at work in the manufacture of brick, cutting of stone, grading, and preparing ironwork in the blacksmith shop.

To carry the warden's recommendations into effect would involve an expenditure of $300,000. With the penitentiary once in full operation on the new site, the work of completing the walls, the remainder of the prison proper, and the various auxiliary buildings and improvements could be carried on effectively and continuously, as the policy of the Department might dictate.

Respectfully submitted.

W. S. EAMES, Architect.

EXHIBIT V.—Report on bankruptcy matters.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE, November 1, 1899.

SIR: The act of July 1, 1898, "Establishing a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States," became effective with reference to its voluntary feature August 1, 1898, and three months later so far as the involuntary feature is concerned.

This is the fourth bankruptcy law enacted by Congress pursuant to the constitutional provision authorizing the enactment of a uniform system. The prior laws were: First, that of April 4, 1800, which was limited to five years, but was repealed December 19, 1803; second, that of August 14, 1841, repealed March 3, 1843; and third, that of March 2, 1867, repealed June 7, 1878, to take effect September 1, 1878.

The operation of the present law during the past year has demonstrated that it lacks many of the inherent defects of the previous laws, but has others, which need legislative action for its perfection to satisfy the demands of the commercial world. It may be safely said that the interests of the debtor class have been carefully guarded by the framers of the present law, but in so doing its practical operation has demonstrated that certain opportunities for fraud exist, which Congress clearly never intended, but could hardly foresee.

To the end that compliance might be had with sections 53 and 54 of the law, blanks for semiannual reports were sent to the clerks of the courts of bankruptcy for their own use, and also for the use of the various referees in their respective districts. Such reports have been received from every judicial district in the United States, excepting from the clerks of the courts in southern California and western Louisiana, and while more or less defective, owing to the lack of uniformity in keeping records, much valuable information is disclosed.

As reports have been received from nearly 100 clerks and 700 referees, it may be readily understood that the amount of labor incident to their tabulation and revision has been something enormous, especially when it is remembered that they cover over 22,000 voluntary and involuntary cases. The amount of business under this law may be best appreciated when it is remembered that the total number of civil suits in which the United States was not a party, brought during the past year in the circuit and district courts, is considerably less than one-half the number of bankruptcy cases.

VOLUNTARY CASES.

Advantage of the law has been taken by men of all classes and in all walks of life, and in every section of the country. As might be expected, petitions are more numerous in the localities where population is densest, though there are exceptions even to this rule, as the number filed in Delaware and eastern Pennsylvania seems out of proportion to the population, but may doubtless be attributed to certain local causes.

The States showing the greatest number of petitions filed during the year are, viz, New York, with 1,512 petitions in the northern, 1,394 in the southern, and 336 in the eastern district, making a total of 3,242 for the State; Illinois, with 1,918 petitions in the northern district and 278 in the southern, making a total of 2,196; Massachusetts, with 1,637 petitions; Alabama, with 1,153 in the northern, 380 in the middle, and 36 in the southern district, making a total for the State of 1,596; Minnesota, 880; Ohio, 437 in the northern district and 431 in the southern, making a total for the State of 858; Pennsylvania, with 250 in the eastern and 570 in the western district, making a total of 732 for the State, which is comparatively small for its population.

The smallest number of voluntary petitions were filed in the following States: Nevada, 3; Delaware, 5; Arizona, 6; Wyoming, 7; Idaho, 35, and South Dakota, 52.

The grand total of petitions filed in the United States for the period ending September 30, 1899, is 20,994, exclusive of those for the southern district of California and the western district of Louisiana, of which no reports have been received.

From the reports of the clerks of courts it appears that of the voluntary petitions 19,559 were adjudicated bankrupts, and in only 175 cases were adjudications refused and the petitions dismissed. Discharges were granted in 10,883 cases and were refused in 32. One hundred and sixty-three compositions were confirmed.

LIABILITIES AND ASSETS.

The liabilities in 19,582 voluntary cases reported by the referees amounts to $355,949,336.48, while the total amount of assets scheduled in these cases is $37,863,090.90, which is a little more than 10 per cent of the liabilities; and the total amount of dividends declared is $1,338,660.30. This amount of dividends will be largely increased, as many of the cases here included have not been closed and final dividends declared, and for this reason it is impossible to state with any degree of accuracy the percentage that the dividends bear to the total liabilities.

The summary also discloses the fact that of the petitions filed, in 335 cases the liabilities were less than $100; 1,562 cases between $100 and $500; 1,583 between $500 and $1,000; 6,886 between $1,000 and $5,000; 3,004 between $5,000 and $10,000; 2,179 between $10,000 and $20,000; and in 2,902 cases over $20,000.

The report also shows that in 9,506 cases there were assets and in 10,010 there were no assets.

NATURE OF BUSINESS.

The nature of the business in which the bankrupts were engaged, as disclosed by the summary of the referees' reports shows that 1,915 were farmers, 5,288 wage earners, 5,345 merchants, 430 manufacturers, 572 professional men, and 5,368 contractors, hotel keepers and others of a miscellaneous character.

INVOLUNTARY PETITIONS.

The involuntary feature of the law authorized the filing of petitions commencing with November 1, 1898, so that this report, so far as this class of cases is concerned, is for the eleven months ending September 30, 1899. During this period the clerks' reports show that 1,452 petitions were filed. This discrepancy between the number of voluntary and involuntary petitions may be readily attributed to the present era of business prosperity, hardly equaled in the history of our country. The involuntary petition is more the concomitant of times of financial depression, and it will then doubtless be the popular method for settling monetary obligations.

Of the cases of involuntary bankruptcy, 882 were adjudicated bankrupts while the petitions in but 82 were dismissed. In this class of cases, 52 compositions were entered into by the bankrupts and their creditors, which were confirmed.

LIABILITIES AND ASSETS.

The liabilities involved in the 898 involuntary cases reported by the referees is $23,207,181.77, while the schedules in 593 cases disclose assets to the amount of $11,701,713.43. In 212 there were absolutely no assets, and in a number they were classed as unknown or nominal.

NATURE OF BUSINESS.

The petitions further show that of those adjudicated involuntary bankrupts 1 was a farmer, 29 wage earners, 249 merchants, 76 manufacturers, 7 professional men, and 200 were of a miscellaneous nature.

RULES, FORMS, AND ORDERS.

Early in January the Supreme Court issued the rules, forms, and orders as required by section 30 of the act. Prior to their issuance the courts of bankruptcy were more or less handicapped in the method of procedure, and in about eight of the districts they declined to proceed with the reference and adjudication of the petitions pending the promulgation of such rules. Notwithstanding the care with which they were prepared most of the courts have deemed it necessary to supplement them by others looking more to the detailed execution of the law and to the question of fees and charges.

An unsuccessful attempt was made to secure the adoption of a form for the title page of the record required by section 40 to accompany each case. At present no uniform page is required. For the sake of convenience, uniformity, and the saving of time and expense a uniform title page should be required and a form promulgated by the Supreme Court, in which should be included such résumé of the contents of the record as would readily enable the furnishing of needful data for preparing reports required for the advice of Congress and others.

FEES AND EXPENSES.

In order to the institution of a proceeding in bankruptcy, the petitioner is required to deposit with the clerk of court $25, of which $10 is for the clerk, $10 for the referee, and $5 for the trustee. Pursuant to this requirement these fees were paid in the case of 16,864 voluntary petitions before the petitions were filed, and in 573 cases such fees were paid subsequent thereto. In 2,820 cases the petitions were filed without paying the filing fee, or informa pauperis, pursuant to that provision in the act which permits the filing of the petition of a proposed voluntary bankrupt where it is accompanied by an affidavit stating that the petitioner is without and can not obtain the money with which to pay such fees. Of the number filed without the payment of fees, 1,123 were petitions instituted in the district of Alabama and the balance were about equally distributed throughout the United States.

While an effort has been made to comply with the act calling for a statement of the expenses incident to the prosecution of petitions in bankruptcy, the result has been far from satisfactory, owing to the dual relation borne by the clerks of courts and referees to these fees. The clerk collects the filing fees and has no notice of the charges of the referee or trustee until the record is complete; the referee has knowledge of certain expenses incurred before him, but none as to what may have been taxed by the clerk. Then, again, a case may have been commenced in one year and closed in another, so that without very great labor, owing to the magnitude of this bankruptcy business, it is all but impossible to get even an accurate approximate. Furthermore, these expenses vary in the different judicial districts, as some courts, realizing the insufficiency and disproportion of the fees allowed by the act to the amount of labor required of the referee, are more lenient than others and allow certain minor charges for clerk hire, office rent, receiving and filing of proofs of claims, notices, etc., while in others the act is strictly construed and nothing is allowed beyond that which is specifically authorized by the law. It may be safely said, however, that as a rule the charges for proceedings in bankruptcy under this law are reduced almost to a minimum.

SUGGESTIONS AS TO OPERATION OF LAW.

While the propriety of suggesting amendments to the Federal bankruptcy law by this Department may be questionable, it is perhaps not inappropriate to place before Congress such observations as may have been presented to our attention through contact with those having to do with its execution and that may have been gained from a careful study of its provisions, for such action and consideration that may be deemed expedient. As a rule the present law carefully guards the interests of the debtor class, while the same can hardly be said to be true of the creditors. As was well said by the American Bar Association at its recent meeting, "whatever amendments are made to the provisions of the law relating to voluntary bankruptcy should be in the line of a better protection to the creditors against fraud in the bankruptcy proceedings."

Section 4 provides that any person who owes debts, except a corporation, may become a voluntary bankrupt. Corporations are thus specifically excepted from those entitled to the advantages of this feature of the law. If, under the present conditions, a corporation desires to go into liquidation and have its business closed through the instrumentality of the Federal authorities, it must, by a process of evasion, first commit an act of bankruptcy and then have proceedings instituted against itself for the purpose of being adjudicated an involuntary bankrupt. It seems no more than proper that corporations should be entitled to the same privilege as an individual with respect to the voluntary feature of the law.

Under section 6 bankrupts are entitled to the exemptions "prescribed by the State laws in force at the time of filing the petition in the State wherein they have had their domicile for the six months or the greater portion thereof immediately preceding the filing of the petition."

Upon objection to a similar provision in the act of 1867, on the ground that it lacked uniformity and therefore was unconstitutional, the courts have held that the word uniform as there used referred only to uniformity in administration. A serious question nevertheless arises as to whether the exemption should not be literally uniform in every State. As the law now stands the exemption in one State may be limited to a homestead of a few hundred dollars in value and in another it may be worth several thousand, so that literally speaking there is no uniformity.

While a serious question may arise as to the constitutionality of a provision placing a different limit on the exemptions from that fixed by the States, the attention of Congress is nevertheless called to this matter in order that a final determination may be reached as to whether a uniform maximum limit should not be set upon the amount of this exemption in the various States.

There is, perhaps, no section of the law upon which there is greater unanimity of opinion as regards its amendments than section 14, relating to the discharge of a bankrupt. Under the act of 1867 the assets of the debtor had to bear a certain ratio to his debts in order that a discharge might be obtained. While in some cases this provision might prove efficacious as an aid in preventing fraud, it is a hard rule and largely interferes with the true idea of a bankruptcy law. In our judgment, at the present time the law should not be amended in this respect, though consideration of the subject with this object in view might be quite proper at some later date, after ample opportunity has been afforded the unfortunate of some years past to receive a discharge coextensive with the limits of the United States.

However, whenever a person has demonstrated his inefficiency as a business man and as a result has once taken advantage of the bankruptcy law, he ceases to be worthy of the same consideration as one who has not, and should not be treated as leniently by the law. It is suggested, therefore, that in the case of a person seeking to take advantage of the law a second, third, or fourth time, before granting him a discharge he should be compelled to pay a certain portion of his debts, say one-third or one-half in the case of the second application and with an additional amount in the case of a third or fourth. This would largely remove the incentive on the part of dishonest men to repeatedly and intentionally become bankrupt.

Section 14b of the present law provides that a discharge shall be refused where the bankrupt, "with fraudulent intent to conceal his true financial condition and in contemplation of bankruptcy, destroys, conceals, or fails to keep books of account or records from which his true condition might be ascertained." It has been held that the burden of proof in this case is upon the creditors to show this intent, which is frequently all but impossible. The bankrupt is the one benefited by the discharge, and logically it would seem that the onus of showing that his failure to keep proper books of account was not with the intent to conceal his true financial condition should be placed upon him.

The law specifies certain debts which are not released by a discharge in bankruptcy, but no mention is made of the case where additional credit is obtained through the bankrupt's misrepresentation of the condition of his assets. It would seem that in cases of this character the bankrupt should not only be refused a discharge, but a severe penalty provided for the offense. A creditor must rely more or less upon the debtor's integrity when giving credit, and if through the practice of deception new or additional credit is given, such debts should certainly not be discharged, notwithstanding the fact that judgment has not previously been had upon such debts.

Another provision which should be carefully considered is where the bankrupt has conveyed property for the purpose of giving a preference, with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud his creditors. In this case it seems that the act itself should operate as a bar to the bankrupt's discharge and possibly be made an offense. The simple fact of the right to recover property illegally transferred by a bankrupt, if discovered, is no deterrent to the commission of such act, and therefore it would seem that the best preventive would be to make the act an offense and punishable accordingly. Furthermore, the limit of four months within which a conveyance creating a preference may be set aside, when it is shown that it is lacking in good faith, is insufficient.

Where a man obtains credit, sells stock thus obtained at cost or below to get its equivalent in money into his hands and then squanders it for his own pleasure without any intention of repaying the same, he is certainly unworthy of consideration, and it would seem the court might in all propriety be authorized to deny a discharge.

There is no doubt whatever that the fees allowed under the present law are in many respects inadequate for the services needed. While under the act of 1867 the exorbitancy of the fees and expenses formed a potent factor in its repeal, the present law has gone to the other extreme and reduced the charges to a minimum, and to such an extent as to make them hardly adequate to secure or retain such class of officers as are required to properly execute the law and protect the interests of all concerned. The services required of referees and trustees are extremely exacting and in many instances unusual qualifications are necessary to the proper conduct of a proceeding in bankruptcy and the protection of an estate. While it is perhaps not proper to state wherein the limit should be placed, the matter should receive the thoughtful attention of Congress.

Other amendments might very properly be suggested, but the foregoing seem to be among the most important, and while it is perhaps not incumbent upon this Department to make any recommendations in this matter, we have ventured to present the foregoing merely as suggestions for such consideration as they may warrant.

As might naturally be expected, the innovation in the method of procedure with reference to insolvency has met with criticism favorable and otherwise. The number of applicants for relief under the voluntary feature of the law and the great contrast between the magnitude of the liabilities as compared with the assets has caused unfavorable criticism on the part of some, but a thoughtful consideration of the conditions demonstrates the fact that the vast sums being released through the discharge merely means the balancing of accounts long since worthless and which never would be of value, with the resultant good that those oppressed with the weight of misfortune may start life anew and have an opportunity to redeem themselves. The releasing of nearly 20,000 individuals from their past obligations within the year, many of marked ability in the business world, who perhaps through some misfortune beyond their control have been reduced almost to penury, can have but one result, and that for the good.

That some idea might be furnished Congress upon the question as to the time when these obligations were incurred which caused insolvency, an effort was made by this Department to obtain this information from the referees, but it has proved only partially successful. Sufficient data have been obtained, however, to show that a large percentage of those who are receiving discharges became insolvent during the period of business depression which swept over this country several years since, and some for periods even anterior.

As opposed to the criticism of the law, stands the declaration of the American Bar Association at its meeting in Buffalo during the past summer. The committee on commercial law of that association made the following report:

(a) That a bankrupt law is wise and beneficent legislation; (b) that the general features of the present bankrupt law should have the approval and support of the bar and commercial community; (c) that whatever amendments are made to the provisions of the law relating to voluntary bankruptcy should be in the line of a better protection to the creditor against fraud in the bankruptcy proceedings; (d) that the amendments to the provisions of the law relating to involuntary bankruptcy should be along the lines of a better remedy for the creditor for fraud, actual or contemplated, on the part of the debtor previous to the institution of bankruptcy proceedings.

In line with the foregoing is the declaration of the Commercial Law League of America at its convention at Asbury Park during the past summer, when it placed itself on record as favoring "a national bankruptcy law and approves of the general features of the act of 1898."

This and like favorable comment at other conventions presents the view generally taken with reference to the question of the existence of a permanent Federal bankruptcy law.

Summaries showing the details as to the execution of the law are hereto attached.

Table 1 covers the reports of clerks of courts of bankruptcy, the totals in which vary somewhat from that found in Tables 2 and 3, largely owing to the fact that a number of referees neglected to make report.

Table 2 is a summary of the reports of about 700 referees covering the involuntary cases.

Table 3 is a summary of the referees' reports covering the voluntary cases.

Respectfully submitted.

E. C. BRANDENBURG,
In charge of bankruptcy matters.

Opinions of the Attorney-General

AS TO COLLECTION OF TONNAGE TAX ON VESSELS COMING FROM HAWAIIAN PORTS, DELIVERED TO THE SECRETARY OF THE TREAS-URY JULY 22, 1898.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
Washington, D. C., July 22, 1898.

SIR: You ask my opinion as to whether the tonnage tax should be collected from vessels coming from Hawaiian ports.

The resolution of Congress which, with the corresponding action of the Republic of Hawaii, annexed the Hawaiian Islands to the United States, operated for international purposes to make those islands part of the territory of the United States. But when territory is acquired by treaty or conquest or otherwise, its relations to the nation acquiring it depend upon the laws of that nation unless controlled by the instrument of cession. It may for certain purposes remain foreign temporarily or permanently, and is not presumed to be at once put upon the same footing as all other territory of the nation, but rather the contrary.

When, therefore, Florida had been ceded and fully transferred to the United States, its ports were regarded as foreign within the meaning of our revenue laws. (Fleming et al. v. Page, 9 How., 617.)

This being so, it seems to me we should be able to find some provision in the resolution annexing the Hawaiian Islands indicating an intention to change the relations of our tonnage-tax laws to Hawaiian ports and vessels coming from them, or those relations should be regarded as continuing.

Such an intent I do not find in the general declaration annexing the islands as part of the territory of the United States. That declaration, there having been no treaty, is intended to have the effect of a treaty of cession merely. It is the act whereby the islands become, in a broad sense, subject to American sovereignty. How that sovereignty will regulate their status, with regard to itself and its laws, is not thereby intended to be determined.

Neither do I think that the express declaration that our land laws and certain other laws shall not apply to the islands carries the implication that other laws shall apply to them, upon the principle, often misunderstood, that the expression of one thing excludes another.

On the other hand, the resolution is replete with indications that, temporarily, the relations of the two countries are to continue practically unchanged. Even some of Hawaii's relations with other countries are so to continue; its government is still to exist and collect its revenues; its laws are to remain in force, however at variance with our laws, and the powers, civil, judicial, and military, exercised by its officers, are still to be exercised. It is moreover plainly apparent that Congress regards the establishment of an American government for and the extension of American laws to the islands as matters to be attended to in the future upon a consideration of the wide separation of the two countries in locality and character.

If we should hold the previous relations of the two countries altered as suggested, we should vainly look through the resolution for any adequate provision for enforcing such laws as are supposed to apply to the islands. No arrangement is made for collecting our tonnage tax upon vessels of other countries entering Hawaiian ports, nor is any other tax law or other law of the United States, unless it be the law prohibiting Chinese immigration, expressly or impliedly, furnished with instrumentalities for its execution.

It seems to me that, in view of this general plan and of the express declaration that the existing customs relations, elsewhere spoken of as "the present commercial relations," of the Hawaiian Islands with the United States and other countries are to remain unchanged, it is not going too far to say that Congress has affirmatively indicated its intent that such laws as our tonnage-tax laws are to remain undisturbed by the annexation of the islands until "Congress shall provide a government for such islands," or until a commission shall advise and Congress enact "such legislation concerning the Hawaiian Islands as they deem necessary or proper."

Vessels from Hawaiian ports, therefore, having been from foreign ports within the meaning of the tonnage-tax law, have not ceased, in my opinion, to be vessels from foreign ports within the meaning of that law.

Respectfully,

JOHN W. GRIGGS,
Attorney-General.

The SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

AS TO STATUS OF CHINESE IN HAWAII, THEIR ENTRANCE AND EXIT THEREFROM (JOINT RESOLUTION OF CONGRESS JULY 7, 1898), DELIVERED TO THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY OCTOBER 21, 1898.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
Washington, D. C., October 21, 1898.

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of October 11, with its inclosures, in relation to the status of the Chinese in the Hawaiian Islands, and with particular reference to their entrance into and exit from said islands. In view of the provisions of the joint resolution, approved July 7, 1898, annexing the Hawaiian Islands, you desire my opinion on the question whether or not the restrictions placed by the Chinese exclusion laws upon the admission of Chinese persons of the exempt class, and the regulations made under the provisions of the treaty between the United States and China providing for the departure from and return to this country of registered Chinese laborers, are to be held applicable to Chinese persons applying for admission to the Hawaiian Islands, or to such persons residing there and who may wish to depart with the intention of returning; and in connection with this question you call my attention to a recent law passed by the Hawaiian legislature, a copy of which you inclose, amending the Hawaiian Chinese immigration acts.

I understand generally from the papers submitted, although you do not so state, that in certain respects the Hawaiian Chinese immigration laws are more stringent, and in certain other respects are more liberal, than our own; and I may state here that in due time and in pursuance of constitutional methods Congress may modify, enlarge, or restrict the application of our Chinese laws to the Hawaiian Islands, in view of the special or peculiar circumstances existing there affecting the rights and liabilities of persons of Chinese birth or descent.

But the present question is, How does the case stand now? In an opinion dated July 22, 1898, relative to the collection of tonnage tax upon vessels coming to the United States from Hawaiian ports, I was of the opinion, considering the terms of the Hawaiian resolution and the fact that no language was used therein indicating an intention to change the relations of our tonnage-tax laws to Hawaiian ports and vessels coming from them, that Hawaiian ports were foreign ports within the meaning of those laws, and that the previous relations of the two countries should be regarded as continuing for the present; and upon this question I used the following language:

If we should hold the previous relations of the two countries altered as suggested, we should vainly look through the resolution for any adequate provision for enforcing such laws as are supposed to apply to the islands. No arrangement is made for collecting our tonnage tax upon vessels of other countries entering Hawaiian ports, nor is any other tax law or other law of the United States, unless it be the law prohibiting Chinese immigration, expressly or impliedly, furnished with instrumentalities for its execution.

And I reach the conclusion in that opinion that Congress in respect to this and other questions has affirmatively indicated its intent that our laws (and I may now add the Hawaiian laws) are to remain generally undisturbed by the annexation of the islands until "Congress shall provide a government for such islands," or until a commission shall advise and Congress enact "such legislation concerning the Hawaiian Islands as they shall deem necessary or proper."

With reference to Chinese immigration, however, I find, as indicated in the said opinion, a clear intention on the part of Congress to make that question an exception and to apply at once the Chinese exclusion laws of this country to the Hawaiian Islands. The language of paragraph 8 of the resolution of July 7, 1898, is as follows:

There shall be no further immigration of Chinese into the Hawaiian Islands except upon such conditions as are now or may hereafter be allowed by the laws of the United States; and no Chinese, by reason of anything herein contained, shall be allowed to enter the United States from the Hawaiian Islands.

The question, therefore, of diverse provisions affecting Chinese relative to those islands and of enlarging, modifying, or restricting in relation thereto the privileges and prohibitions of our Chinese exclusion laws must be committed to Congress, and until Congress shall see fit to take further action, I am of the opinion that the foregoing portion of the Hawaiian resolution fully covers the case. If, as is to be inferred from your communication, the laws passed by the Hawaiian legislature, including the recent law which you submit, relative to Chinese immigration to those islands, are inconsistent with the terms of the resolution, they must be held to be so far invalid and inapplicable, either as being thus far supplied by the provision of the resolution or as being thus far totally inconsistent therewith and repugnant thereto.

I therefore respond to your request by stating that in my opinion the restrictions placed by our exclusion laws upon the admission of Chinese persons of the exempt classes, and the regulations made under the provisions of the treaty between the United States and China providing for the departure and return to this country of registered Chinese laborers, are to be held applicable to Chinese persons applying for admission to the Hawaiian Islands or to such persons residing there and who may wish to depart with the intention of returning.

I return the inclosures of your letter herewith.

Very respectfully,

JOHN K. RICHARDS,
Acting Attorney-General.

AS TO COPYRIGHT BY INHABITANTS OF HAWAII, CUBA, AND PORTO RICO, DELIVERED TO THE PRESIDENT DECEMBER 2, 1898.

Washington, D. C., December 2, 1898.

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of November 28, inclosing one from the Librarian of Congress, who desires to know whether the inhabitants of Hawaii, Cuba, Porto Rico, and Manila are entitled to register publications for copyright, and if so, whether as foreigners or as citizens or subjects of the United States.

In answer, I have the honor to advise you as follows:

It appears that the subjects of Hawaii had not, prior to the passage of the resolution of annexation of July 7, 1898, become vested by proclamation with the privilege of copyright in the United States. I have heretofore held, in an opinion, a copy of which is inclosed herewith, that certain laws of the United States relative to tonnage dues upon vessels from foreign ports still applied to the ports of Hawaii, and had not been abrogated by the terms or effect of the resolution of annexation. For the reasons given in that opinion I think that the inhabitants of Hawaii are not at present, in the absence of affirmative legislation by Congress to that effect, entitled to the benefits of our copyright laws.

Porto Rico, Cuba, and Manila have not as yet been formally ceded to the United States. So far as they are subject to the control and government of this country they are ruled under the principle of belligerent right. They have not become entitled to the rights and privileges of citizens of the United States. In my opinion, when they shall have been directly ceded by treaty to the United States, and such treaty duly ratified by the Senate, their respective inhabitants will not be entitled to the benefit of the copyright laws unless the treaty by its terms confers such right, or Congress shall afterwards extend such laws to the inhabitants of those countries.

If any inhabitants of Porto Rico, Cuba, or the Philippine Islands claim the privilege of copyright as Spanish subjects, that right at present is subject to the well-known rule that hostilities between two nations suspend intercourse and deprive citizens of the hostile nations of rights of an international character previously enjoyed. I am of opinion that so long as a state of war exists between Spain and the United States Spanish subjects have no right to the privileges of copyright conferred upon Spanish citizens by proclamation prior to the declaration of war.

When a treaty of peace shall have been finally concluded their rights will be determined either by the provisions of the treaty, or, if the treaty be silent, it will be competent for the United States, through its executive officers, to resume the exercise of such rights and privileges as previously existed and have not been definitely declared terminated. So that if the treaty of peace be silent with reference to copyright, it would, in my opinion, be entirely proper for the Librarian of Congress to admit Spanish subjects after the conclusion and ratification of the treaty to the same copyright privileges that they enjoyed prior to the declaration of war.

Very respectfully,

JOHN W. GRIGGS,
Attorney-General.

The PRESIDENT.

AS TO THE MATTER OF THE CONTRACT OF MICHAEL J. DADY & CO.,
FOR PUBLIC WORKS IN THE CITY OF HAVANA, CUBA.DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
Washington, D. C., January 19, 1899.

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your communication of 17th instant, relative to the alleged claim of Michael J. Dady & Co., as to certain contract relations between them and the city of Havana, relative to sewerage and paving said city. You advise me that a plan of financing said contract was in progress of arrangement between Dady & Co. and the authorities of the city of Havana on December 18, 1898, at which time Captain-General Castellanos, at the request of the United States, issued an order suspending action on the same. You advise me that Dady & Co. have requested the War Department to remove said order of suspension in so far as it applies to them, and before taking action thereon you desire my opinion upon the following questions:

1. Under the plans and specifications which Dady & Co. have submitted to the authorities of the city of Havana, have Dady & Co. the right to have the same appraised? Is Dady & Co. entitled to the amount of such appraisal before the city uses such plans and specifications?

2. In the event of the city of Havana advertising for bids of the work in question, have Dady & Co. the right of taking such work at the price of the lowest bidder to whom it may be awarded?

3. Is the order of December 18, 1898, of Captain-General Castellanos suspending action of the local authorities upon all contracts referring to the sewerage of Havana still operative until removed by the military governor appointed by the United States, or are the local authorities of the city of Havana now free to proceed with the matters under consideration without an order of the military governor repealing such order of December 18, 1898?

The completion of the proposed contract between Dady & Co. and the city of Havana would involve an expenditure for the benefit of that city of $14,000,000, to be secured by an issue of municipal bonds. It is manifest that a matter of such great importance to the city of Havana, its citizens and taxpayers, ought not to be determined without a full and complete understanding of all the facts and a thorough knowledge of the civil law applicable thereto under the system prevailing in Cuba. This Department is not at this time in the possession of the necessary legal knowledge to enable it to answer satisfactorily the questions you propound. I have no doubt that the local authorities of the city of Havana are properly restrained by the orders issued by Captain-General Castellanos in December last. I am equally clear that no removal of the restraint contained in said order ought to be made by the military authorities of the United States at the present time. The importance of the matter involved and the difficulty of understanding the rights and interests of the people of Havana with reference thereto are sufficient and conclusive reasons for such a course. The administration of the United States in Cuba is of a military nature, and merely temporary. No action binding the island or any of its municipalities to large expenditures and continuing debt ought to be made except upon grounds of immediate necessity, which in this case do not appear to be present.

Whether the claims of Dady & Co. are well founded, whether they are sufficiently complete to constitute a contractual relation, and whether the authorities of Havana ought ultimately to recognize and confirm them are questions which ought to be left to the decision of the authorities of Havana—not while that city is in the disturbed and partially disorganized condition consequent upon a recent war and a change of national sovereignty, but when it shall hereafter have resumed its normal functions under such conditions of order and tranquillity as will permit its authorities to deal intelligently and justly with the subject.

I therefore recommend that no action be taken in this matter at the present time, further than the ascertainment of such facts relative to the claim of Dady & Co. as are attainable through the military governor of Cuba or the more immediate authorities of the city of Havana.

Very respectfully,

JOHN W. GRIGGS,
Attorney-General.

The SECRETARY OF WAR.

AS TO CLAIM OF BRITISH EASTERN EXTENSION AUSTRALASIA AND CHINA TELEGRAPH COMPANY, DELIVERED TO THE SECRETARY OF STATE FEBRUARY 1, 1899.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
Washington, D. C., February 1, 1899.

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of 16th instant relative to a claim of the British Eastern Extension Australasia and China Telegraph Company for damages and losses alleged to have been sustained in consequence of the cutting of its cable at Manila during the war with Spain, and asking for an opinion as to whether this Government is in any way liable for those damages and losses.

Your letter is accompanied by correspondence explanatory of the case and an opinion of Sir R. T. Reid, Q. C., M. P., and Mr. Henry Sutton, favorable to the validity of a demand for indemnity to the extent of the amount expended in repairing the cable.

I understand that it is to this demand that the claim in question is limited; that it is not denied that the cable was properly cut as a necessary war measure, and is not pretended that the interruption of traffic over the cable, in the circumstances existing at Manila, is regarded as giving rise to any right of indemnity, since these points are discussed in the opinion referred to and decided favorably to this Government.

It is true, as suggested in this opinion, that a cable is a new and peculiar species of property, and that a precedent based upon the cutting of a cable is difficult to find; but the strict law applicable to the case does not, on that account, become doubtful.

Property of a neutral permanently situated within the territory of our enemy is, from its situation alone, liable to damage from the lawful operations of war, which this cutting is conceded to have been, and no compensation is due for such damage.

It is said, however, that this rule has never been applied to a cable; that the whole utility of the cable over many miles is as much destroyed by cutting it in territorial waters as by cutting it on the high seas, which last act, it is claimed, would undoubtedly entitle the owners to compensation; and that the United States Admiral did not merely aim at preventing the use of the cable by the Spaniards, but also at using it himself.

Do these reasons withdraw this property from the rule which has been stated?

In the first place, that is a rule applying to property of a neutral which he has placed within the territory of our enemy, which property our necessary military operations damage or destroy. It takes no account of the character of the property, but only of its location, and no account of any motives of its owner or of the military officer who finds it necessary to meddle with it in hurting the enemy. He sees it across his path and brushes it away, and the rule cited says that the owner, by putting his property in the country, took the chance of a war against it and of all lawful military acts to carry it to a successful issue.

It argues nothing that cables have not heretofore been the subject of any discussion of this rule. The same might be said of many kinds of property, either because they happened not to be injured or because the rule was so well understood that a discussion was deemed superfluous. It is necessary to show why the cable property is exempt from the rule, and not that the rule has ever been applied to it.

The reasons suggested do not seem to me to bear examination.

It is said that the whole utility of the cable is destroyed for many miles by a cutting within territorial waters; in other words, that the damage extends outside of territorial waters. But is this true? Undoubtedly, the interruption of traffic over it does or may extend for many miles; but the interruption of traffic is not the basis of the claim. When repaired, it was repaired, as it had been cut, within territorial waters, and was then the same as before the injury. It was possible to take up the outer end and operate the cable to Hongkong from the time it was cut; and it was the sealing of the cable at Hongkong, and not the cutting, which prevented this from being done. It seems to me, therefore, that the injury by cutting can properly be regarded as in no way withdrawn from the rule by reason of its supposed extension beyond territorial waters, even if an extension of the injury could in any case alter the rights of the belligerent.

As for the suggestion that there is no difference between a cutting within and a cutting without territorial waters, since the destruction is the same, this might be somewhat varied between a damage and a destruction. That is to say, if the act within territorial waters had effectually and permanently paralyzed the whole cable it might possibly be regarded as one whole thing and not situated in the enemy's country. But this consideration loses all its force, if any it has, when we consider that the parting of a cable is a comparatively insignificant damage, easily repaired, and not unfamiliar in the ordinary working of such a property.

The obvious difference between a cutting within and a cutting without the territorial waters, however it may be equally troublesome to the owner, goes to the foundation of the rule authorizing the destruction of property because it is within the territory. It is equally troublesome to the owner of any property to have it destroyed or injured in or out of the enemy's country. This, however, does not affect the belligerent's rights with regard to his property within the enemy's country.

To say that the American admiral desired to use the cable himself, as well as to prevent the Spanish Government from using it, is but to attribute to him a motive in addition to one which justified his act. This can in no way diminish the right to cut the cable, nor, seeing that he did not use it, can it give rise to any different rule as to compensation.

I am of opinion, therefore, that, upon the law of the case, there is no ground for the claim to indemnity.

Respectfully,

JOHN W. GRIGGS,
Attorney-General.

The SECRETARY OF STATE.

AS TO CLAIM OF DOROTEO CORTES ET AL. FOR RETURN TO THEM OF PROPERTY IN POSSESSION OF MILITARY GOVERNOR OF UNITED STATES AT MANILA, DELIVERED TO THE SECRETARY OF WAR, FEBRUARY 21, 1899.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
Washington, February 21, 1899.

SIR: I am in receipt of your communication of the 20th instant referring to me a certain opinion of the Judge-Advocate-General relative to the claim of Mr. Doroteo Cortes and others for the return of certain property of which they claim to be the owners, now in the possession or under the control of the military governor of the United States at Manila, together with certain papers relating to that subject, upon which you request my opinion on the question therein presented.

I take the liberty of pointing out to you that when an opinion is desired from the Attorney-General, it is requisite that the particular questions of law as to which his advice is desired, should be formulated specifically, and the facts which exist or are assumed as the basis of such questions should also be definitely stated. Waiving, however, for the purpose of this case, the informality of the request made by you, I have the honor to advise you that in my opinion the conclusion reached by the Judge-Advocate-General in his opinion is correct. Not intending to indorse in all respects the reasoning of the Judge-Advocate-General, it appears to me that from the facts taken by him in his opinion to be true, these claimants, so far as the military authorities of the United States are concerned, ought not to have been interfered with in the possession of their property which they had resumed after the abandonment of the Spanish officials. The military authorities of the United States were under no obligation to sustain or support arbitrary proceedings for confiscation of the property of Spanish subjects on the ground of disloyalty, and when proceedings taken for that purpose had resulted, either by abandonment or otherwise, in the original owners coming again into possession of their property, their right of possession was not open to question or inquiry on the part of this Government.

I think the military governor should be directed to return to the claimants all of their property and possessions taken by the United States in pursuance of the order of General Otis which bears date of November 25, 1898.

Very respectfully,

JOHN W. GRIGGS,
Attorney-General.

Hon. GEORGE D. MEIKLEJOHN,
Assistant Secretary of War.

AS TO THE JOINT RESOLUTION OF CONGRESS ANNEXING HAWAII, DELIVERED TO THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY FEBRUARY 21, 1899.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
Washington, D. C., February 21, 1899.

SIR: The joint resolution providing for annexing the Hawaiian Islands to the United States was approved July 7, 1898, and proclaimed in the islands August 12, 1898.

This resolution, while providing that "the municipal legislation of the Hawaiian Islands, * * * not inconsistent with this joint resolution nor contrary to the Constitution of the United States nor to any existing treaty of the United States, shall remain in force until the Congress of the United States shall otherwise determine," and that

"until Congress shall provide for the government of such islands all the civil, judicial, and military powers exercised by the officers of the existing government in said islands shall be vested in such person or persons and shall be exercised in such manner as the President of the United States shall direct," contains the following paragraph:

There shall be no further immigration of Chinese into the Hawaiian Islands, except upon such conditions as are now or may hereafter be allowed by the United States; and no Chinese, by reason of anything herein contained, shall be allowed to enter the United States from the Hawaiian Islands.

On October 21, 1898, in response to your inquiry of October 11, 1898, relative to the status of the Chinese in the Hawaiian Islands, I expressed the opinion that—

The restrictions placed by our exclusion laws upon the admission of Chinese persons of the exempt classes, and the regulations made under the provisions of the treaty between the United States of registered Chinese laborers, are to be held applicable to Chinese persons applying for admission to the Hawaiian Islands, and to such persons residing there and who may wish to depart with the intention of returning.

Following this opinion, you directed Chinese Inspector J. K. Brown to proceed to the Hawaiian Islands and cooperate with the customs officers there in enforcing the treaty, laws, and regulations which govern the admission of Chinese into the United States.

After the arrival of Inspector Brown in the islands, the collector-general of customs of Honolulu, acting under his instructions and in cooperation with him, denied certain Chinese the right to land under permits issued by the former government of the islands. Some of these Chinese were residents of the islands before their annexation and had left them for a temporary purpose, animo revertendi, under the regulations then in force, and upon the faith of permits issued by the existing government entitling them to return to their business and their homes.

The denial to these Chinese of the right to land under permits issued by the former government was followed by the institution of proceedings in habeas corpus before Chief Justice Judd, of the supreme court of Hawaii, to test the legality of their exclusion. The chief justice held that the clause of the annexation resolution providing there shall be no further immigration of Chinese into the islands can not be applied to Chinese seeking to enter the islands under permits duly issued by the former government without giving the resolution a retrospective operation and doing manifest injustice.

On appeal to the supreme court of Hawaii a majority of that court, consisting of Justice Whiting and Circuit Judge Perry (in place of Justice Frear), overruled Chief Justice Judd, and held (the chief justice dissenting) that the provision prohibiting further immigration applies to all Chinese seeking admission to the islands after their annexation to the United States, as well to those returning as to those coming to the islands for the first time.

In your communication of the 31st ultimo, after calling my attention to former letters advising me of the facts I have briefly recounted, you inform me that the Chinese minister has represented to your Department that the enforcement of our laws and regulations in the manner contemplated by Inspector Brown will cause great hardship to Chinese who, having resided in the Hawaiian Islands, departed therefrom under the regulations of the Hawaiian Government, and before the regulations of your Department were put into force and effect, and who now seek to return to those islands. You then state:

It appears from a report dated the 13th instant, from Chinese Inspector Joshua K. Brown, stationed at Honolulu, that the several classes of Chinese persons who were entitled to enter the Hawaiian Islands under the Hawaiian law and regulations, but who have not yet sought admission thereto, are 2,526 in number, as will appear from the inclosed copy of the report referred to.

Of this number it appears from Inspector Brown's report that 1,888 are admissible under the existing regulations as natives or naturalized citizens of Hawaii, being other than aliens. Of the remaining 638, it may be presumed that those who are merchants can prove their right to admission under the provisions of section 2 of the act of November 3, 1893, and that those who are of the exempt classes named in Article III of the treaty with China may secure admission by the presentation of the certificates required by section 6 of the act of July 5, 1884.

In view of the foregoing, you request an opinion as to whether you have authority to admit to the Hawaiian Islands such Chinese persons as departed therefrom under the regulations of the existing government allowing them to return, but who would be excluded by the extension to the islands of the law and regulations now operative within the United States.

The power of Congress to exclude aliens altogether from the United States, or to prescribe the terms and conditions on which they may come into this country, is settled by the adjudication of our Supreme Court. (Chinese exclusion case, 139 U. S., 581, 603; Nishimura Ekin, 142 U. S., 651, 653, 659, 660; Fong Yue Ting v. U. S., 149 U. S., 698, 713, 714; Lem Moon Sing v. U. S., 158 U. S., 545, 547.) The matter for consideration, therefore, is not the power of Congress, but its intention. Congress provided that the existing government of the Hawaiian Islands should continue and the municipal legislation not inconsistent with the Constitution or laws of the United States should remain in force. Congress then used this language, which requires construction:

There shall be no further immigration of Chinese into the Hawaiian Islands, except upon such conditions as are now or may hereafter be allowed by the United States; and no Chinese, by reason of anything herein contained, shall be allowed to enter the United States from the Hawaiian Islands.

It is to be observed that to provide there shall be "no further immigration" is to recognize there has been immigration; and to enact that "no Chinese, by reason of anything herein contained, shall be allowed to enter the United States from the Hawaiian Islands" is to concede that, under the Hawaiian law, Chinese whom our law would exclude obtained a domicile in the islands and are residing there now. In other words, Congress legislated in view of the fact that the immigration of Chinese into the Hawaiian Islands had proceeded on lines distinct from those which obtain in the United States. While the resolution provides that the islands shall be "annexed as a part of the territory of the United States," it also provides that with respect to Chinese the islands are not to be deemed a part of the United States. Under our law a Chinese person lawfully within one of the States or Territories may freely pass into any other State or Territory. The right to be and remain within the United States carries with it the right to pass into any part of the United States. With respect to Chinese domiciled in the Hawaiian Islands at the time of annexation a distinct provision is made. Their right to be and remain in the islands is not denied. The restriction is upon any "further" immigration. But while those rightfully in the islands at the time of annexation are recognized as entitled to remain there, there is an explicit provision denying their right on that account to come into the United States.

I call attention to these things for the purpose of pointing out that it was not the intention of Congress, by this clause, to extend the Chinese exclusion laws of this country in toto to the islands. Special provisions were made. No Chinese, by reason of the annexation, were to be allowed to enter the United States from the Hawaiian Islands; and "no further immigration of Chinese into the Hawaiian Islands" was permitted except upon conditions prescribed by the laws of the United States. What did Congress mean by "no further immigration"?

"The primary and general rule of statutory construction," said Mr. Justice Brewer, speaking for the court in United States v. Goldenberg (168 U. S., 95, 102), "is that the intent of the lawmaker is to be found in that language that he has used. He is presumed to know the meaning of words and the rules of grammar." The word "immigration" means the act of immigrating, and to immigrate is to come into a country of which one is not a native and in which one has not acquired a residence or domicile. The act of immigration is accomplished when the foreigner seeking a new home first comes into the country. After he has gained a residence, with the rights incident thereto, a return to the country of his choice, following a temporary absence, is not regarded as a second act of immigration.

As illustrative of the fact that there is a clear distinction between coming into a country for the first time and returning to it after a temporary absence, a distinction based essentially upon rights acquired by domicile, I call particular attention to the case of Lau Ow Bew v. United States. (144 U. S., 47.) In this case it was held that the provision in section 6 of the Chinese restriction act of May 6, 1882, as amended by the act of July 5, 1884, requiring every Chinese merchant coming into this country to procure and produce a certificate from the Chinese Government, did not apply to Chinese merchants already domiciled in the United States, who, having left the country for temporary purposes, animo revertendi, seek to reenter it on their return to their business and their homes.

Mr. Chief Justice Fuller, speaking for the court, said, page 61:

The section by its terms declares that "every Chinese person other than a laborer who may be entitled by said treaty or this act to come within the United States, shall obtain the permission of and be identified as so entitled by the Chinese Government, or of such other foreign government of which at the time such Chinese person shall be subject, 'the permission and identification in each case to be evidenced by the certificate described.'"

But Chinese merchants domiciled in the United States, and in China only for temporary purposes, animo revertendi, do not appear to us to occupy the predicament of persons "who shall be about to come to the United States," when they start on their return to the country of their residence and business. The general terms should be limited to those persons to whom Congress manifestly intended to apply them, and they would evidently be those who are about to come to the United States for the first time, and, therefore, might properly be required to apply to their own Government for permission to do so, as also to so identify them as to distinguish them as belonging to the classes who could properly avail themselves of such leave.

But by general international law, foreigners who have become domiciled in a country other than their own acquire rights and must discharge duties in many respects the same as possessed by and imposed upon the citizens of that country, and no restriction on the footing upon which such persons stand by reason of their domicile of choice, or commercial domicile, is to be presumed; while by our treaty with China, Chinese merchants domiciled in the United States have and are entitled to exercise the right of free egress and ingress and all other rights, privileges, and immunities enjoyed in this country by the citizens or subjects of the "most favored nation."

This case recognizes that Chinese who become domiciled in this country acquire certain rights with which no unjust interference is to be presumed. A provision directed in terms to all Chinese about to come into the United States was therefore construed so as not to apply to Chinese returning to the United States, although in fact a person can not return to the United States without coming into this country. In other words, an alien resident is not an alien immigrant. Under our alien immigration acts it has been held that an alien who has resided in this country without becoming naturalized, and who departs with the intention of returning, is not to be deemed an immigrant upon his return, although he was an alien immigrant when he first entered the country. (51 F. R., 275; 63 F. R., 437.)

Applying this wholesome doctrine to the case submitted, the Chinese who, under the former Government of the Hawaiian Islands, became domiciled in the islands, acquired certain rights, among which was the right to leave the islands for a temporary purpose and return. It is not to be presumed that Congress, which recognizes the right of such Chinese to be and remain in the islands, intended to interfere with the incidental right of returning to the islands after a temporary absence. Chinese laborers have been for years absolutely prohibited from coming into the United States, yet all the time we have permitted, and now permit, Chinese laborers lawfully within the United States to leave this country for a temporary purpose and return.

Accordingly, in view of the manifest injustice of interfering with a right incidental to lawful residence in the islands the words "no further immigration" should be construed so as to apply only to actual additional immigration into the islands, namely, the coming of Chinese into the islands for the first time after annexation, and not to the return to the islands of Chinese who have a lawful residence there and are simply exercising the recognized right of returning, after a temporary absence, to their business and their homes.

Your question is therefore answered in the affirmative.

Respectfully,

J. K. RICHARDS,
Solicitor-General.

AS TO CONCESSIONS TO BRITISH COMPANIES FOR CABLES AT OR NEAR CUBA OR THE PHILIPPINES, DELIVERED TO THE SECRETARY OF STATE MARCH 17, 1899.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
Washington, D. C., March 17, 1899.

SIR: I have your letters of the 4th and 10th instants, concerning concessions to British companies for cables at or near Cuba and the Philippines.

You say you are awaiting my views as to the subjects in question for communication to the British embassy.

The ambassador says that the considerations submitted with promemoria relating to the Philippine concession apply as strongly to the case of Cuba, and it is upon that he relies.

The promemoria thus referred to says:

The obligations contracted by Spain under those concessions are of a local nature, and it will not be contested, as Her Majesty's Government believe, that they become binding on the United States Government on their taking possession of the islands or assuming effective control of them, whether under a formal protectorate or otherwise. On the faith of those concessions the company has expended vast sums for the benefit of the islands, and the obligations in question clearly belong to that class of local obligations which have always been held to be transferred with the sovereignty and to pass with the territory.

American control of Cuba is essentially and merely that of a temporary military occupant. Our obligations, therefore, are those which arise from that fact. Benefits to the island and obligations local to the island, so far as becoming obligations of the United States, would seem from their very nature obligations of the island or its people, and not of a military occupant entering for a single and temporary purpose.

If a protectorate would make the protector obliged by the concessions, we have not established a protectorate over Cuba, and it is needless to discuss the soundness of such a questionable proposition.

That all the debts which are or may be inherited by the government of Cuba from the Government of Spain are now debts of the United States, payable from the Federal Treasury, logically follows from the argument of the ambassador, and certainly seems to me a conclusion without law or reason or justice in support of it.

That we are wholly free from responsibility with regard to the affairs of the island while temporarily occupying it, is not pretended; but, as I have said, our duty is to do and abstain from those things which a mere temporary military occupant still theoretically at war with Spain ought to do and abstain from, and not the duty of assuming all the executory and other contracts which may belong to the past government or its successor.

Our Government is not such successor, but merely an intervening power arranging the succession. It did not make the contract of concession; it is not the beneficiary receiving the benefits said to accrue to the island from the cables, nor is it the island or locality to which the obligations are said to be locally attached. Neither does it appropriate to itself the revenue of the island.

In discussing the very celebrated decision in the case of debts on hypothecation due to Hesse Cassel, paid to Napoleon, and alleged by the restored Elector of Hesse not to be discharged thereby, Calvo (sec. 2489) remarks that the eminent authors of the decision to the contrary successfully established the distinction between the acts of a transitory conqueror—that is to say, one exercising authority only in virtue of a simple military occupancy and a conqueror whose title to govern permanently is recognized.

Assuming, as we can not but do, that our military intervention and present aims are legitimate, we violate no contract in taking the necessary temporary measures to effectuate those aims. That our military officers should confine themselves to measures consistent with the nature of our occupation is, I suppose, understood by the signal officer referred to by the ambassador, and I am inclined to disbelieve that a permanent telegraph system such as would be used by the French company in regular competition with the lines in question is in contemplation. See my opinion, recently furnished the Secretary of War, concerning contracts of the city of Havana.

It is not suggested that, except in case we are bound by the contract of concession, a telegraph line for our own temporary purpose and governmental use by us in accomplishing it and preventing bloodshed while doing so, would give just cause of complaint by the concessionary. It seems to me probable that whatever is done or contemplated is of that character. If not, you can further advise me.

I think it well to suggest a doubt, however, whether the two concessions constitute a legal and just obligation upon the people and government of Cuba, for the reason, among others, that both of them—one, of 1869, providing for a line from Santiago to Havana; the other, of 1895, a line from Manzanillo to Havana—were manifestly given in furtherance of the suppression of rebellious efforts by the people of the island terminating in its separation from Spain.

Turning now to the Philippine concessions, I find myself insufficiently provided with information. The concessions are not before me and there seems to be lack of agreement as to their terms. So far as definitely stated, however, they give a monopoly of the right to lay cables, not between the different Philippine islands, but from them to other countries. The infraction, however, is alleged as the proposed laying of interisland cables.

I think it is probable that the provision as to cables to other countries is a principal, if not the only, concession, and it seems clear that the interisland cables are projected exclusively for military reasons and as military necessities. I suppose the project is in a state of suspense at present, and therefore that there is ample time to obtain more full and precise information, with copies of the concessions.

We should at least be furnished with some definite knowledge of the terms of a contract alleged to be binding upon us before we can be expected to act upon that theory.

I may add, however, a doubt that promises or obligations in view of the laying of cables from the Philippines to other countries are in consideration of purely local benefits or to be regarded as local obligations that pass with the territory.

These are all merely tentative observations. The ambassador will perceive that the discussion involves principles indirectly affecting our whole course of procedure, present and future, with regard to Cuba and the Philippines, and not merely the private interest of the companies, to which no irreparable injury is threatened.

Requesting fuller information from the British ambassador and War Department, I am,

Very respectfully,

JOHN W. GRIGGS,
Attorney-General.

The SECRETARY OF STATE.

AS TO APPLICATION OF THE COMMERCIAL CABLE COMPANY TO LAND
CABLE IN CUBA AND PORTO RICO, DELIVERED TO THE SECRETARY OF WAR MARCH 25, 1899.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
Washington, D. C., March 25, 1899.

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of a communication from you, under date of February 27, 1899, with which you inclose to me an application made by the Commercial Cable Company of the United States for permission to land a submarine cable in Cuba and Porto Rico, for the purpose of effecting cable communication between those islands and the United States, as to which you request my opinion in respect to the power of the Secretary of War in the premises.

The views of this Department upon the subject of landing foreign submarine cables upon the territory of the United States are fully expressed in the opinion of the Solicitor-General, acting as Attorney-General, under date of January 18, 1898, to which you are respectfully referred. The substance of this opinion is that the grounding of a cable upon the soil of the United States, with the intention of connecting our territory with foreign territory by that means, is a matter which is under the sovereign control of this Government, such control to be exercised by Congress, provided it legislates upon the subject, and, in the absence of such legislation, to be regulated and controlled by the Executive Department of the Government.

Congress having failed to take jurisdiction and pass any statutes governing the subject, the matter has heretofore been regulated by Executive permission, revocable either at the will of the President or by subsequent legislation by Congress.

So far as the application of the Commercial Cable Company for leave to land its cable in the United States is concerned, the matter is properly, under the practice heretofore established, within the jurisdiction and control of the Department of State, acting for the President. So far as the landing of a cable in the island of Cuba is concerned, the subject is under the control of the War Department by reason of the fact that the United States is exercising in the island of Cuba administration under the law of belligerent right, its occupancy being of a military nature and merely temporary.

In all instances heretofore where application has been made to this Government, exercising the temporary control and government of the island of Cuba, for grants or concessions which usually flow from the depositary of sovereign power, the Executive Departments have taken the ground that under the circumstances by which the United States came into temporary administration of affairs in Cuba, and in view of the fact that it is the declared purpose of the United States, when a stable government shall have been there established, to retire from the island and leave the government thereof to the inhabitants, it would be inexpedient to grant such applications except in case of absolute necessity.

In an opinion rendered to you on January 19, 1899, relative to the claim of Michael J. Dady & Co. as to certain contractual relations between them and the city of Havana, relative to sewerage and paving the said city, I said:

The importance of the matter involved and the difficulty of understanding the rights and interests of the people of Havana with reference thereto are sufficient and conclusive reasons for such a course. The administration of the United States in Cuba is of a military nature, and merely temporary. No action binding the island or any of its municipalities to large expenditures and continuing debt ought to be made except upon grounds of immediate necessity, which in this case do not appear to be present.

Whether the claims of Dady & Co. are well founded, whether they are sufficiently complete to constitute a contractual relation, and whether the authorities of Havana ought ultimately to recognize and confirm them are questions which ought to be left to the decision of the authorities of Havana, not while that city is in the disturbed and partially disorganized condition consequent upon a recent war and a change of national sovereignty, but when it shall hereafter have resumed its normal functions under such conditions of order and tranquility as will permit its authorities to deal intelligently and justly with the subject.

By executive order promulgated by the general commanding the United States forces in Cuba all grants and concessions of franchises and similar rights have been forbidden to be made by any authority in the islands except upon the approval of the Secretary of War.

This cautious and conservative policy is sustained by considerations of prudence, and by a proper regard for the reversionary rights of the future government of the island of Cuba. In affirmation of the Executive policy so declared and followed, Congress, by act approved March 3, 1899, directed that no property, franchises, or concessions of any kind whatever shall be granted by the United States, or by any military or other authority whatever, in the island of Cuba during the occupation thereof by the United States. (See act making appropriation for support of the Regular and Volunteer Army for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1900, section 2.)

power to restrain or control the proper exercise of the powers of the Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States, occupying, under the law of belligerent right, foreign territory—a question that may well be open to doubt—yet the expressed will and desire of the Congress, conforming as it does to the previously established policy and practice of the Executive Departments, is entitled to the respect of the Executive Departments, and ought to be followed, unless some high necessity requires otherwise.

You are therefore advised that it would be inexpedient, under all the circumstances, to grant permission to the applicant in this case to land its cable upon the soil of Cuba.

Inasmuch as the permission to land its cable upon the soil of Porto Rico seems to depend upon the grant of a similar right as to the island of Cuba, the same order should be made with reference to that part of the application, although the circumstances under which the United States retains control and government of the two islands are materially different.

The conclusion which I have arrived at renders it unnecessary for me to discuss or decide the objections raised on behalf of the Western Union Telegraph Company, lessee of the International Cable Company of New York, which companies claim an exclusive grant under a concession from Spain made in 1867, which exclusive grant, it is claimed, has not yet expired.

Very respectfully,

JOHN W. GRIGGS,
Attorney-General.

The SECRETARY OF WAR.

AS TO RECONSIDERATION OF ORDER OF GENERAL BROOKE PREVENTING LANDING OF COMMERCIAL CABLE COMPANY'S CABLE IN CUBA, DELIVERED TO THE SECRETARY OF WAR JUNE 15, 1899.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
Washington, D. C., June 15, 1899.

SIR: I am in receipt, by reference from you, of a letter from Mr. Mackay, president of the Commercial Cable Company of Cuba, dated May 31, 1899, asking for a reconsideration of the order made by the War Department to General Brooke on May 27, 1899, directing him to prevent the landing, by the Commercial Cable Company of Cuba, of a proposed cable to Cuba, to connect that island with the United States. You request my opinion as to the power of the War Department in the premises.

On February 27, 1899, application was made by the Commercial Cable Company of the United States for permission to land a submarine cable in Cuba and Porto Rico, for the purpose of effecting cable communication between those islands and the United States. This application was by you referred to me for an opinion in respect to the power of the Secretary of War in the premises. Under date of March 25, 1899, I advised you fully upon the subject, and you are respectfully referred to that opinion and to what is said therein with reference to this subject. Among other things, I said in that communication that the opinion of this Department is and has been that the grounding of a cable upon the soil of the United States, with the intention of connecting our territory with foreign territory by that means, is a matter which is under the sovereign control of this Government, such control to be exercised by Congress, but in the absence of Congressional action to be regulated and controlled by the executive department of the Government.

The same principle is applicable to the island of Cuba, and the grounding of a cable upon the soil of that island, to connect it with a foreign country, can not be done and maintained in opposition to the will of the government which exercises sovereign power in the island. That power at the present time is the United States, and therefore the authorities of the United States have full power, in their discretion, to prevent by all necessary means the grounding of a cable intended to connect the island of Cuba with the United States or any other country. If the Commercial Cable Company of Cuba, in disregard of the instructions of the War Department and against its will, carries out its proclaimed purpose of landing its cable upon the island of Cuba to connect that island with the United States, you would be justified in using such force as is necessary to remove and disrupt it.

The foregoing sufficiently answers your request for my legal opinion as to your power in the premises. There are, however, some observations in the letter of Mr. Mackay which indicate on his part such a misunderstanding of private rights and public duties in connection with this subject that I think it may be useful to refer to some of them.

As tending to justify his intention of creating, either with or without permission, a new line of cable communication between Cuba and the United States, he adverts to the fact that the Western Union Telegraph Company has now and for years has had a monopoly of the cable communication between these countries.

This Department has not assumed to pass upon the validity of the exclusive right which the Western Union Telegraph Company and its leased companies claim. They have formally notified the authorities of the United States of their claim under a concession granted by Spain, alleged to continue for forty years and not yet expired. The mere fact that the Western Union Telegraph Company is enjoying, under a grant of exclusive right, what amounts to a monopoly is no reason of itself why it should be deprived of its concession. It is easy to say that monopolies are odious, but there are concessions which amount to monopolies which are lawful, and can not be disturbed except by a violation of public faith. The laying and operation of cables, especially a quarter of a century ago, were attended with great expense and risk, and it was a very common thing for different nations, including the United States, to grant exclusive concessions for a term of years to companies that would undertake to invest the necessary capital and carry on such enterprises.

With the chances of success the concessionaries took also the hazard of failure and loss. If loss ensued, they bore it; if success and profit, it was deemed proper to secure for a limited period to those who had risked the venture the enjoyment of the fruits of their enterprise, and not to allow other competitors who had not shared the risk to come in and take a share of the benefits. With the wisdom of such arrangements for exclusive franchises the Executive Departments are not concerned. The grants are made in this country by Congress, and in other countries by the constituted sovereign authority. It is the duty of those who administer the Government to deal with the conditions as they find them, and to see that legal rights of every nature are respected.

The granting of such concessions and their operation have, in many instances, been of great advantage to commerce and to the countries from which the concessions were derived. To show the prevalence of this policy among different nations, I quote the following list of exclusive cable rights granted by different sovereignties:

England.—Exclusive rights have been granted or approved for the establishment of cables between Great Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, Germany, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Spain, and Portugal.

Newfoundland.—An exclusive right for landing English cables was granted by Newfoundland and ratified by the British Government.

France.—An exclusive right for the establishment of an Atlantic cable connecting with the island of St. Pierre, off the coast of Nova Scotia. Preferential guaranties and subsidies for French telegraphic traffic to the French cables connecting with the United States, Haiti, and French West India Islands.

Spain.—Exclusive rights for the establishment of cables to the Canary Islands, Africa, and Brazil; also connecting Cuba with the United States, and Cuba with other West India islands.

Portugal.—Exclusive rights for the cables connecting with Great Britain; also Brazil and the Azores.

Brazil.—Exclusive rights for connecting Brazil with the United States; also with Africa, Spain, and Portugal. Exclusive rights covering the whole coast of Brazil.

Peru.—Exclusive rights for cables northward from Peru.

United States of Colombia.—Exclusive rights for the establishment of cables southward from the Isthmus of Panama.

Mexico.—Exclusive rights for the establishment of cables on the coast of the Gulf of Mexico and Pacific coast of Mexico.

Japan.—Exclusive rights for cables connecting Japan with China and Russia.

The United States.—The exclusive right for connecting the United States (coast of Florida) with Cuba and other West India Islands, by act of Congress approved May 5, 1866.

Concessions of this kind, which carry with them exclusive rights for a period of years, constitute property of which the concessionary can no more be deprived arbitrarily and without lawful reason than it can be deprived of its personal tangible assets. In a case in the Supreme Court of the United States (1 Wall., 352), Mr. Justice Field said:

The United States have desired to act as a great nation, not seeking, in extending their authority over the ceded country, to enforce forfeitures, but to afford protection and security to all just rights which could have been claimed from the government they superseded.

If, therefore, the Western Union Telegraph Company has an exclusive grant applicable to Cuba for cable rights, which grant has not expired, it would be violative of all principles of justice to destroy its exclusive right by granting competing privileges to another company.

It is suggested, however, in Mr. Mackay's letter, that the grant which the Western Union Telegraph Company now holds, by lease or assignment, was obtained by fraud practiced on the Government of Spain, and that for that reason its grant is void.

Such an allegation can not be fairly and justly tried upon a proceeding like this. Neither the War Department nor the Department of Justice has power to summon witnesses or to give a judgment upon this question. It is essentially a question for judicial examination and decision, and to determine such a matter in a proceeding of this kind would not only be irregular, but contrary to the ordinary rules and procedure practiced in such cases. Vested rights which are property ought not to be taken from anyone, even upon charges of fraud, except by due process of law. Executive action by the War Department applied to subjects like this is not due process of law.

Mr. Mackay further submits that "the tremendous power of the Government should not be exercised against us." It is the function of the Government to prevent, so far as possible, all infringement of the vested rights of others. Mr. Mackay, through his company, proposes to set up a competitive cable line, which he concedes will greatly injure the business of the Western Union Company, and although the latter company produces a grant which, on its face, gives it an exclusive right for a period which has not expired, he requests this Government to stand idly by while he does, with the acquiescence of the United States, the very thing which the Government of Spain, our predecessor in the sovereignty of Cuba, solemnly agreed not to do or permit to be done.

I do not think that controversies as to grants and franchises derived from Spain, but exercisable within the island of Cuba, or other islands derived by the United States from Spain, ought to be precipitated to a decision in the present unsettled condition that prevails in those islands. It is better to preserve, in all cases of doubt and difficulty, the present status until the full restoration of the civil régime and the establishment of permanent governments under which the rights of all can be duly and deliberately determined.

Very respectfully,

JOHN W. GRIGGS,
Attorney-General.

The SECRETARY OF WAR.

AS TO TRAMWAY CONCESSIONS, HAVANA, CUBA, DELIVERED TO THE SECRETARY OF WAR JULY 10, 1899.

JULY 10, 1899.

SIR: By letter of May 13, 1899, you referred to me the petition of one Juan M. Ceballos, concerning a certain alleged concession or franchise for the construction of tram railways in the city of Havana, in the island of Cuba, therein specifically described. The petition sets forth that the concession for the construction of these tramways was obtained by proceedings in due and regular form of law, and after due and proper fulfillment and performance of all the conditions and requisites of the law of Spain and island of Cuba applicable to street railways. It is represented that application for this concession was made in the year 1892 by petition, in the manner prescribed by Spanish law, and that proceedings followed, resulting in the public sale of the concession in 1893, at which the franchise was awarded to one de la Torre. Subsequently, de la Torre having died, further proceedings were had in the name of one Pla, the assignee of the de la Torre interests, so that finally a deed was duly executed by the alcalde of Havana, by the direction of the city authorities, definitely granting the concession to Pla on December 10, 1898. The petition of Ceballos, the assignee of said Pla, at the time of the petition, was the owner of said concession. It appears that a corporation known as The American Indies Company was entitled to have by assignment the concession in question. Following order of the President the major-general commandant in Cuba:

of public or corporate rights or public works, such as tramways, gas works, electric-light lines, etc., shall be made by any municipality or other local governmental authority or body in Cuba, except upon the approval of the major-general commanding the military forces of the United States in Cuba, who shall, before approving any such grants or concessions, be so especially authorized by the Secretary of War.

The owners of the Torre concession, after the cessation of Spanish sovereignty in the island, applied to the new municipal council of Havana for permission to go on with the construction of their railways, which permission the municipal council granted, subject, however, to the approval of the military authorities.

At this point a competing company, known as the Ferro Carril Urbano y Omnibus de la Habana (Havana City Railway and Omnibus Company) intervened, and objected to the military authorities against the granting of such permission to the owners of the Torre concession, upon the ground that the Omnibus Company was possessed of an exclusive and prior right to build tramways through the streets contemplated by the Torre concession. General Ludlow, commanding the department of Havana, reported that it was impossible for the administrative officers to determine, in view of the present status of this matter, as to whether Mr. Ceballos really owns the original Pla concession, or what rights the Omnibus Company has in respect of the same; that the contestants both claim validity of title to the concession, and both are asking for authority to proceed thereunder; that there was no means by which the legal rights could be ascertained other than by adjudication in the courts. He accordingly declined to approve the permission granted by the municipal council; and the owners of the Torre concession, being thus prevented by the military authorities from prosecuting the construction of their tramways, have now presented their petition, as aforesaid, to the Secretary of War.

You ask me to investigate and report upon the case, stating, as your official opinion, that after having looked over the situation, Havana needs street railway facilities badly, and if under any franchise such works can be done and the money distributed in compensation for labor, the city would have the benefit of a modern system of railroads, which would be an excellent thing for the city.

By reference to the order of December 24, 1898, it will be perceived that the things prohibited were grants or concessions. It was directed that no municipality should, unless otherwise ordered, make any such grant or concession. This applied to the future, and did not, and was not intended, to apply to grants or concessions previously made in due form of law. If the concession of one or the other of these grants was completely made before the issuing of the order of December 24, then that order did not affect it. It was, and still is, undoubtedly within the lawful power of the military authorities to direct the municipal authorities to suspend public works and improvements for proper public reasons, even where such suspension interferes with rights that have previously vested. In view of the unsettled condition of affairs in Havana, consequent upon the war and the change of rule, it was most proper that the military authorities should look carefully into every work of a public or a quasi-public nature which affected public right. (See my opinion in the matter of the claim of Michael J. Dady & Co.) In this case, however, the concession and the work to be done thereunder only indirectly affect the public interest, being prosecuted by a private corporation for private benefit, in no wise at public expense, and in accordance with your opinion, it appears, with great beneficial results to the city. There seems, therefore, to be no public reason why a grant of this kind, if complete and vested, should not be exercised. The only reason given by General Ludlow for withholding the necessary permission to proceed under the Torre concession is his doubt as to the conflicting claims of the two claimants. This is a matter relating in its effect solely to the interests of two private concessionaries. In a public sense it is immaterial which one of them constructs and carries on the works, as in either event the city and the general public will receive the benefit arising from such improvements.

The question, therefore, presented is, whether either of these claimants has such a prima facie, vested, and regular concession as to entitle it to be permitted to proceed and build the railways. This renders it necessary to consider what is disclosed by the papers with reference to the grants claimed by each. I have already set forth, in a general way, the claims of the owners of the Torre concession. Its rival, the Omnibus Company, claim under a royal decree granted February 5, 1859, under which they were authorized to construct certain city railways. By this decree the Government reserved to itself the power of granting new concessions, either as extensions or branches of those granted to the original concessionary, and contained this clause: "If the concessionee wishes to construct said extensions or branches, he will have the right or preference under equal conditions."

The following facts seem to be admitted on both sides: When the original application was made in 1892 by Torre for his concession, the Omnibus Company objected to the grant. This objection was overruled and the concession confirmed. Subsequently the concession was advertised at public auction, but the Omnibus Company failed to appear or make any bid and the concession was sold to Torre. Torre having died, the municipal council of Havana, on December 4, 1895, recognized Pla as the owner by assignment of the Torre concession. On December 13, 1895, the municipal council resolved to notify Mr. Pla that he should make the requisite deposit in the municipal treasury, and that the work should be begun at once. Owing to the state of hostilities then existing in the island, notice of this resolution was not served on Mr. Pla, and the deposit was not made until November, 1898. Work, to a greater or less extent, was begun in December of that year under the Torre concession, which work was ordered to be suspended by the Spanish civil governor because of the unsettled condition of the country at that time, and perhaps by reason of the order of the President, above quoted.

By a decree of December 7, 1898, one Dolz, secretary of public works and communications, assumed to make a decree by authority of the autonomist government, authorizing a company called Empresa del Ferro-Carril Urbano de la Habana, which I understand to be a company in the same interest as the Omnibus Company, to avail itself of the original concession of 1859, with rights identical to those granted by the municipal authorities to Mr. Pla.

There are various matters of disputed fact alleged between the parties which it is impossible to determine and decide specifically. But the facts which appear to be conceded on both sides seem to go to the effect that the Torre concession was granted in due form of law, against the protest of the Omnibus Company, which would seem to indicate that the municipal authorities did not regard the reservation in the decree of 1859 as standing in the way of a valid grant or concession to another concessionary, at least where the Omnibus Company failed at the time to bid for the concession or to move to be substituted in place of the highest bidder. I think this fact gives to the owners of the Torre concession a prima facie right to proceed under their concession. The decree issued by Dolz on December 7, 1898, is subject to some suspicion, because it was through this same Secretary Dolz that the public sale of almost all conceivable public franchises in Cuba was advertised to take place in the latter days of December, just prior to the possession of the island by the United States forces, a scheme so obviously conceived in fraud as to have compelled the military authorities to put a stop to it.

It further appears from the papers that the Omnibus Company, or some of their representatives, have so far recognized the validity of the Torre concession as to set up a claim that they are the equitable owners of it by purchase, attacking the title by assignment acquired by Mr. Ceballos. This would seem to justify still further the opinion that the Torre concession was valid and valuable, and that it is so known and understood by the claimants of the Omnibus Company's concession. The questions raised by some of the papers as to whether Mr. Ceballos obtained the assignment, which he undoubtedly possesses, by fraudulent conduct is one which it is not necessary or proper to consider here, as whatever he may do under a fraudulent assignment will be done for the benefit of the equitable owner, and the courts can hereafter do justice between the parties in this respect.

Upon the whole, I am of opinion that the rights disclosed by the owners of the Torre concession are such as entitle them to be permitted, under the permission of the municipal authorities, to proceed with the beneficial work which they desire to construct, without the injunction of the military authorities. This will not interfere with an adjudication in the courts of the ultimate and final rights of the parties. The action of the military authorities in withholding permission to proceed with the work is tantamount to a preliminary injunction in a court of law. Applying the same principles that would be applied in such a case if it was in a court of equity, I can see no reason why the owners of the Torre concession should not be permitted, at their own risk, to proceed with the work which they desire to construct, and I so advise you.

Very respectfully,

JOHN W. GRIGGS,
Attorney-General.

The SECRETARY OF WAR.

AS TO THE CONSTRUCTION OF SEWERS AND PAVEMENTS IN HAVANA
(DADY & CO.), DELIVERED TO THE SECRETARY OF WAR JULY 10, 1899.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
Washington, D. C., July 10, 1899.

SIR: Under date of June 16, 1899, you submitted to me the draft of a proposed order to the military governor of the island of Cuba relative to the construction of a system of sewers and the paving of the streets of Havana by a contract to be entered into by said municipality pursuant to the provisions of the Spanish law, and you request my opinion on the following questions:

1. Are the Spanish laws and regulations of municipalities in the dependencies of Spain now in force in Cuba as they existed at the time the island was relinquished by Spain?

2. Are the provisions of said laws and regulations, which required the assent and approval of the officers of the Crown of Spain to the various acts of the municipal authorities, now in force in Cuba?

3. Did the authority and power of said officers of the Crown of Spain, under said laws and regulations, pass to the officers of the United States now in charge of the government of civil affairs in said island, and may such authority now be exercised by said officers of the United States?

4. What direction and control over the action of the municipal authorities of Havana in the matter of engaging in the construction of public works for said city, by contract, may properly be exercised by the officers of the United States now discharging the functions of civil government in Cuba?

5. Have Michael J. Dady & Co., a corporation under the laws of West Virginia, any rights under the proceedings of the authorities in Havana relating to the matter of constructing said works according to plans and specifications prepared by said corporation and adopted by said municipality?

6. If said Michael J. Dady & Co., a corporation, has such rights, what are they, and are they preserved by the late treaty with Spain?

By well settled public law, upon the cession of territory by one nation to another, either following a conquest or otherwise, those internal laws and regulations which are designated as municipal continue in force and operation for the government and regulation of the affairs of the people of said territory until the new sovereignty imposes different laws or regulations. Those laws which are political in their nature and pertain to the prerogatives of the former government immediately cease upon the transfer of sovereignty. Political and prerogative rights are not transferred to the succeeding nation. Such laws for the government of municipalities in said territory as are not dependent on the will of the former sovereign remain in force. Such laws as require for their complete execution the exercise of the will, grace, or discretion of the former sovereign would probably be held to be ineffective under the succeeding power. So that any inchoate rights or grants made by a municipal body in Cuba while under Spanish sovereignty, which for their completion required the assent or approval of the Crown or of the Crown officers, would, in the absence of such assent or approval made prior to the treaty of cession, be ineffective and incomplete. The authority and power of the Crown and of the Crown officers in such instances did not pass to the officers of the United States, because the royal prerogatives and political powers of one government do not pass in unchanged form to the new sovereign, but terminate upon the execution of a treaty of cession, or are supplanted by such laws and rules as the treaty or the legislature of the new sovereign may provide.

Cuba, however, is now under the temporary dominion of the United States, which is exercising there, under the law of belligerent right, all the powers of municipal government. In the exercise of these powers the proper authorities of the United States may change or modify either the form or the constituents of the municipal establishments; may, in place of the system and regulations that formerly prevailed, substitute new and different ones. Upon this line the same authorities, exercising sovereignty over the island, have the power to provide the methods, terms, and conditions under which municipal improvements, which relate entirely to property belonging to the municipality or held by it for public use, may be carried on. The old provisions of the Spanish law may be adopted, so far as applicable, or they may be entirely dispensed with, and a new system set up in their place. The municipal authorities of Havana, in the matter of engaging in the construction of public works, may be permitted to proceed under such law as is now applicable, if that be adequate, or they may, at the will of the military commander, be restrained from engaging in any such works, or from permitting any such works to be carried on, although inchoate or even completed contracts therefor have previously been entered into.

I do not deem it proper, nor am I able, to answer definitely your question as to whether Michael J. Dady & Co. have any rights under the proceedings of the authorities in Havana relating to the matter of constructing works according to plans and specifications prepared by said corporation and alleged to have been adopted by the municipality. If Michael J. Dady & Co. had, at the time the treaty of Paris was signed, any rights under their alleged contract which can properly be called vested rights, those rights are undoubtedly preserved by the terms of the treaty.

My view of the claim of Michael J. Dady & Co. has not changed from that expressed in my former opinion, under date of January 19, 1899. The practical question for the military authorities in Havana is whether it is advisable, as a public matter, and having in mind solely the public interests, to permit a contract, which is concededly inchoate, which involves the expenditure of as much as $13,000,000, and which involves the tearing up and disturbance of the streets of the city in a manner which may greatly endanger the public health, to be carried on at the present time. If the authorities were convinced that Michael J. Dady & Co. had a vested right or a complete contract, it would be within their lawful province to suspend its execution, if they thought the public health or other interests required. Of course such an interference with the exercise of a vested contract right would involve the payment hereafter of legal damages on account of such interference, but the public good would be the higher law and would justify the interference.

No one has a right to insist upon the specific performance of a contract for the improvement of streets of a municipality. A city may suspend or entirely abandon a project, although covered by a valid contract, subject only to the right of the contractor, if damaged, to recover just compensation.

This matter, as now presented, seems to be one for administrative decision by the War Department. It might tend to elucidate the situation and guide the Department in its action if the commander in Cuba were directed to refer the subject to the civil authorities of the city of Havana, with directions to investigate the present status of the claim of Dady & Co., to determine whether it is for the interest of the city that the improvements contemplated by the plans of Dady & Co. should be carried out in the immediate future or whether the project should be abandoned. In the latter case the civil authorities might be directed to further report whether, in the interest of the city, it was proper and advisable that the value of any rights which Dady & Co. have under the Spanish law should be appraised and paid to them. When the facts and the opinion of the civil authorities were thus obtained, the War Department could direct action to be taken in such manner as might seem at the time to be most advisable. In case you determine it advisable that the matter should be referred to the civil authorities in the manner above suggested, I recommend that the form of an order which is herewith inclosed be sent to the military governor of the island of Cuba.

Very respectfully,

JOHN W. GRIGGS,
Attorney-General.

The SECRETARY OF WAR.

AS TO APPLICATION OF FREDERICK W. WEEKS TO CONSTRUCT WHARF, ETC., AT PONCE, PORTO RICO, DELIVERED TO THE SECRETARY OF WAR, JULY 26, 1899.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
Washington, D. C., July 26, 1899.

SIR: I am in receipt of your letter of this date inclosing an application from Frederick W. Weeks for permission to construct and maintain a wharf or pier upon which warehouses and superstructures may be erected and the business of carrying on wharfage, storage, and shipping may be conducted in the port of Ponce, in Porto Rico. You ask me to give you my views as to whether there is legal objection to granting such permission.

If constructed, the pier or wharf will be upon the public domain of the United States. I understand that under Spanish law, lands under tide water to high watermark in ports and harbors in the Spanish West Indies belonged to the Crown. As Crown property, they were by the treaty of cession transferred by Spain to the United States of America, and are now a portion of the public domain of that nation. I do not know of any right or power which the Secretary of War or the President has to alienate in perpetuity any of the public domain of the United States, except in accordance with acts of Congress duly passed with reference thereto.

There is no legislation by Congress made for or properly applicable to the public domain in Porto Rico. The power to dispose permanently of the public lands and public property in Porto Rico rests in Congress, and in the absence of a statute conferring such power, can not be exercised by the executive department of the Government. Undoubtedly it will be within your lawful power to make temporary use of the Government domain in Porto Rico during the period of occupancy by the military forces of the United States; and if it conserves the interest of the Government and its administration of affairs in the island, to grant leave or license to an individual to make temporary use of portions of the public domain; but any privilege of this kind should be limited in its extent to the period of military occupation, and should not be extended so as to continue as a vested right against the United States when Congress shall have imposed some other form of government upon the island.

As a matter of policy, I would also advise you that no license or privilege of this kind, even of the temporary nature above designated, should be granted except to some person owning the abutting lands from which the proposed pier or wharf is to be projected.

I therefore advise you that the grant of a right or privilege to exist in perpetuity or as long as the conditions of the grant are fulfilled is beyond your power, and ought not to be made. Whether a temporary license shall be granted is a matter of administration, to be determined by the War Department upon the principles above pointed out.

Very respectfully,

JOHN W. GRIGGS,
Attorney-General.

The SECRETARY OF WAR.

AS TO APPLICATION OF RAMON VALDEZ Y COBIAN FOR RIGHT TO USE WATER POWER OF THE RIVER PLATA, IN PORTO RICO, DELIVERED TO THE SECRETARY OF WAR, JULY 27, 1899.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
Washington, D. C., July 27, 1899.

SIR: I am in receipt of your communication of July 20, 1899, forwarding to me the application of Ramon Valdez y Cobian for a concession of the right to use the water power of the River Plata, in Porto Rico, together with accompanying papers. You request my opinion as to whether your Department has authority to approve or disapprove of the concession which the applicant seeks and desires to use.

By the papers submitted, it appears that under Spanish law, which prevailed in Porto Rico prior to the going into effect of the treaty of Paris by which the island was ceded to the United States, the Crown of Spain was the owner, for public use, of the proprietary rights of the natural beds or channels of rivers, both navigable and unnavigable, to the extent covered by the waters in their ordinary greatest swells. The Spanish law of waters applicable to Porto Rico provided in article 218, page 52, as follows:

In navigable streams, and those which are not navigable, it is within the power of the governor of the province to grant authority for the erection of mills or other industrial establishments, or any buildings situated near the banks to which the necessary water is conducted by canal, this water afterwards being returned to the stream. In no case shall this authority be granted prejudicially either to the navigation of the stream or to existing industries. To obtain the authority it is an indispensable requisite that whoever solicits it shall be the owner of the ground on which the building is to be erected or shall be thereto authorized by the owner thereof.

My opinion is based upon the assumption that these statements as to the law of waters that prevailed in Porto Rico prior to the cession of the island are correct. This may fairly be assumed, because the application of Señor Valdez purports to be made in compliance with the provisions of the Spanish law, article 218, above cited.

The River Plata is not a navigable stream. In the brief of counsel for the applicant a distinction is sought to be made between those waters of rivers which belong, by the law of Spain, to the State or Crown and those which belong to the public of Porto Rico. For practical purposes, in the disposition of this case, I can see no difference. Whatever property or property rights belonged to the Crown of Spain or to the indefinite body known as "the public of Porto Rico" were, by the treaty of Paris, transferred to and became the property of the United States of America.

It is well-settled law, and only needs to be stated to be understood, that when public property is ceded by one nation to another its disposition and control are thereafter regulated and governed not by the laws of the ceding nation, but by the laws of the new owner. If, therefore, any substantial act remains to be done, resting in the grace, favor, or discretion of the Government to secure to an applicant or alleged concessionary a franchise or right in public property thus ceded by one nation to another, such additional action must be obtained in accordance with the laws of the present and not of the former owner. If at the time the treaty of Paris took effect the applicant had a completed and vested right to the use of the waters of the River Plata, that right will be respected by the United States. If, however, his right had not been completed by the action or assent of the Crown authorities of Spain, then his right is not vested but inchoate, and can not be made vested by the completion of those requisites prescribed by Spanish law.

The general rule in respect to vested private rights in cases of change of sovereignty is stated in Ely's Administrator v. United States (171 U. S., 220, 223):

In harmony with the rules of international law, as well as with the terms of the treaties, upon cession the change of sovereignty should work no change in respect to rights and titles; that which was good before should be good after; that which the law enforced before should be enforceable after the cession.

The converse of the latter proposition is undoubtedly true, namely, that which the law before the cession would not enforce will not be enforceable, as a matter of right, after the cession.

Distinctions have been made in all laws passed by Congress for settling legal and equitable titles to lands in Spanish territory ceded to the United States under former treaties, between perfect or complete grants, fully executed, and inchoate incomplete grants, where a right has been sought to be acquired under or by color of local law or authority, but needed some act of the Government to be done to complete it. (United States v. Arredondo, 6 Peters, 691, 717. See also Ainsa v. United States, 161 U. S., 208, 233; United States v. Santa Fe, 165 U. S., 675, 714.)

Those laws of the former government which have for their object a certain governmental public policy, of which character are laws for the disposition of the public domain and the granting of quasi public franchises, rights, and privileges to private individuals or corporations, ceased to have any force or effect after the sovereignty of the former government ceased. (Harcourt v. Gailliard, 12 Wheaton, 523.)

If in the granting of a right or privilege the sovereign has retained an iota of authority which may affect its untrammelled exercise and enjoyment, the right is not of the nature of an absolute one, but wholly of an inchoate and imperfect quality. As to inchoate, imperfect, incomplete, and equitable rights, the succeeding sovereign is the absolute dictator. They can not be exercised against his sovereignty, but only by his grace, and his affirmative exercise is necessary to the validity of the concession.

It appears from the papers submitted in the case that the applicant had not obtained authority from the governor of the province for the use of the River Plata, which he desires to make. He had only complied with the preliminary requisites (whether all of them or not I am unable to say), which, under Spanish dominion, would have qualified him to apply to the governor of the province for a grant of authority for the erection of the proposed works. Before such authority was granted the power of the Spanish governor and the efficiency of the Spanish laws were terminated, so far as public property in the island is concerned.

The question, therefore, is whether the War Department or the executive department of the Government of the United States, represented by the President, now has power to grant to the applicant the use of this public stream which he desires. In my opinion it has not.

By the Constitution the power to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States is vested in Congress. Congress has conferred no authority of this nature upon the Executive, and in the absence of such power conferred by Congress, the President can no more dispose of this particular portion of the public property of the United States than he can dispose of the public grounds, buildings, and other property ceded by Spain to the United States.

In the report made to you by your law officer upon this subject I find it stated that inasmuch as this application was filed October 4, 1898, in accordance with the Spanish law providing for such concessions, if this law was in force in that locality on that date this application, when duly filed, segregates this portion of the Plata River from the public domain, and the effect of the filing of the application, by analogy, is similar to that produced by a homestead entry or preemption right, filed in accordance with law, upon the public domain in the United States. I am unable to agree with this view of the case. The citation from the Spanish law of waters above made indicates clearly that the granting of such a concession, even after all the preliminaries are complied with, is a matter of discretion, resting in the judgment of the governor of the province, who was the royal representative. The article quoted uses this language: "It is within the power of the governor of the province to grant authority, etc. In no case shall this authority be granted prejudicially, either to the navigation of the stream or to existing industries." Clearly the grant of the concession under Spanish law rested in the discretion of the governor, and could not be asserted, upon compliance with preliminaries, as a right.

What I have said is not intended as a decision upon the question as to whether the applicant has or has not any equitable rights which will entitle him hereafter to the favorable action of Congress, either by special or general legislative action. In dealing with inchoate and incomplete claims, especially to land, where the rights of the claimants were not fully vested, but were such as are usually denominated "equitable," it has been the custom of Congress to provide special tribunals of a judicial character to ascertain and determine both the legal and equitable rights of the claimants. So far as I know, the exercise of such powers has never been intrusted to the executive departments.

Very respectfully,

JOHN W. GRIGGS,
Attorney-General.

The SECRETARY OF WAR.

AS TO TRAMWAY CONCESSIONS, PONCE, PORTO RICO, DELIVERED TO THE SECRETARY OF WAR JULY 28, 1899.

Washington, D. C., July 28, 1899.

SIR: By letter of June 29, 1899, you transmitted to me certain papers in behalf of Messrs. Vicente and José Usera, of the city of Ponce, Porto Rico, relating to an alleged concession for the construction of a tramway from Ponce to Port Ponce, claimed to have been heretofore lawfully granted to Messrs. Usera, and in connection therewith you request my opinion as to whether, under the evidence submitted, a lawful concession to construct such tramway had been granted to them, and if so, whether it is proper for your Department to confirm that concession. As the basis of my decision, the following facts are submitted, which I am, for the purpose of this opinion, to assume to be correct:

Prior to November 24, 1896, proceedings were had of such kind and character as to induce the Crown of Spain, then possessing full and complete sovereignty in Porto Rico, to grant, by royal decree, a permit for a franchise or concession for an electric tramway according to plans submitted by Messrs. Vicente and José Usera. This royal grant does not confer the concession upon Messrs. Usera, but simply permits the construction according to the plans submitted by these gentlemen. Under the Spanish law in Porto Rico a tramway is a railroad constructed on public highways. While the entire territory to be traversed by this proposed tramway is within the limits of the municipality of Ponce, yet the proposed tracks will occupy a State highway for a large portion of, if not its entire extent. It is therefore subject to the following provisions of the Spanish law:

ARTICLE 73. The concession of tramways belongs to the secretary of the colonies when the works are to occupy the highroads of the State or shall simultaneously traverse highroads of the State and highways of the province and municipalities.

ARTICLE 76. Tramway concessions can not be granted for more than sixty years, and shall be subject to an auction in regard to the maximum schedule of rates and to the duration of the concession.

From the "Regulations for the execution of the railroad law of the island of Porto Rico," promulgated January 27, 1888, the following is quoted:

ARTICLE 93. The secretary of the colonies, who has the power to grant the concession in the cases specified in article 73 of the law, shall immediately advertise the auction of the works for the period of two months on the basis of the approved plan.

The auction shall take place in accordance with the provisions of article 76 of said law respecting the schedules of rates, the equality of the propositions as to the duration of the concession, and with the understanding that in all cases the right of legal preference shall be reserved at the auction to the author of the approved plan, and if the latter should not take advantage of the preference the successful bidder shall pay him within one month the value of the plan, in accordance with the appraisal made.

The term "approved plan" as used in the foregoing article means as follows:

The person desiring to secure a concession allowing the construction of a tramway on a State highroad prepares the plans and details comprising the general project and submits the same to the secretary of the colonies. The plans are examined by certain specified officers, engineers, and boards, who report thereon to the secretary of the colonies, who considers their reports and approves or disapproves the plan. Among other reports is one showing the estimated cost of constructing the tramway. If the plan is approved, its price or commercial value is fixed by appraisal—that is, the value of the work performed in preparing said plan is fixed. Thereupon the right to carry out the general project in accordance with said approved plan is sold at auction, in accordance with the provisions of article 93, as above quoted. In order to secure the right to bid at said auction a deposit of 1 per cent of the estimated cost must be made by the prospective bidder.

From the documents on file herein it clearly appears that the plan prepared and presented by the Messrs. Usera became an "approved plan" for the construction of the proposed tramway, and that said Messrs. Usera made the required deposit of 1 per cent of $100,000, the estimated cost of construction.

They therefore owned the plan and were qualified to bid at the auction to be held in accordance with article 93 of regulations. It does not appear that said auction was ever had or dispensed with. By royal decree the provincial government in Cuba might exempt the letting of contracts for public works of extraordinary urgency from said requirement, but no such provision is known in regard to tramways in Porto Rico. The Spanish law of railroads in Porto Rico provides a means of securing the right to build a railroad of the kind contemplated herein without a public auction. That method is as follows (Regulations of Railroad Laws):

ARTICLE 20. In the case to which the preceding articles refer, namely, when it is a question of a petition for a concession without subsidy, and for which only one proposition shall have been presented, said concession shall be granted without the formalities of public auction, but always by means of a law, as provided for in article 27 of the Law of Railroads.

To this end, the secretary of the colonies shall present to the Cortes the proper form of law, accompanied by all the documents mentioned in article 25 of the Law of Railroads, and in the corresponding articles of these regulations.

ARTICLE 21. The law to which the preceding article refers being passed, and the bond of 3 per cent of the amount of the estimate being deposited within the time fixed by article 16 of the Law of Railroads, there shall be issued to the interested party, or to the company which may have solicited the concession, the proper instrument, making the contract a public document, and including in it, verbatim, the document of general conditions, the special law of concession, the special and economic conditions, and schedule of maximum rates.

No such special act for the benefit of Messrs. Usera as is referred to in article 20, above quoted, was ever passed.

It therefore appears that the concession claimed by the Messrs. Usera is not a complete and vested right or franchise, but is inchoate and incomplete, lacking certain public action necessary to be taken by the public authorities representing the Crown of Spain before it could go into effect as a complete grant or concession of that Government.

In conformity with the views expressed in the opinion of July 26, 1899, relative to the application of Frederick W. Weeks for permission to construct and maintain a wharf at the port of Ponce, and the opinion of July 27, 1899, relative to the application of Señor Valdez for a concession of the right to use the water of the River Plata, in Porto Rico, I have the honor to advise you that the Messrs. Usera have not a complete and vested franchise or concession for the construction of a tramway from Ponce to Fort Ponce, and that the War Department is without power to exercise the prerogatives of the Government to grant or complete such concession.

Very respectfully,

JOHN W. GRIGGS,
Attorney-General.

The SECRETARY OF WAR.

AS TO POWER OF LOCAL AUTHORITIES OF THE HAWAIIAN ISLANDS TO DISPOSE OF PORTIONS OF THE PUBLIC DOMAIN, DELIVERED TO THE PRESIDENT SEPTEMBER 9, 1899.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
Washington, D. C., September 9, 1899.

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge receipt by reference from you of a communication addressed to you by the Acting Secretary of the Interior, dated August 24, 1899, calling attention to the fact that the local government of the Hawaiian Islands are about to dispose at public auction of portions of the public lands of Hawaii, and suggesting that in view of the provisions of the resolution of annexation, approved July 7, 1898, such action on the part of the Hawaiian authorities is without legal warrant or authority, and that the matter be submitted to the Attorney-General with a view to an expression of his opinion upon the question, to the end that the existing government of the Hawaiian Islands may be advised as to their power and duty in the premises. The letter of the Acting Secretary is accompanied by several letters in the nature of protests against the contemplated action of the Hawaiian authorities and a copy of the proposed conditions of sale of the lands referred to. An inspection of the conditions of sale indicates that a very large quantity of land, in 50-acre lots, was to be disposed of on Saturday, September 2, 1899, at the Hilo court-house, and that it is the understanding of the authorities that they can convey to such purchasers a good and valid title to any and all lands that may be sold in accordance with the advertised conditions.

I have given attentive consideration to the question raised by these papers, and have no hesitation in advising you that the officers of the existing government in said islands have no authority to sell or otherwise dispose of the public lands in the Hawaiian Islands, and that any such sales or agreements to sell will be absolutely null and void as against the Government of the United States.

It is only necessary to refer to the language of the resolution and to the well-understood principles of public law which govern the subject of territory ceded by one government to another to reach the easy conclusion that the public lands in the Hawaiian Islands, upon the approval of the joint resolution of cession, became the property of the United States, and could thereafter be disposed of only in accordance with such special laws as Congress might thereafter enact. The preamble of the resolution declares:

Whereas the Government of the Republic of Hawaii having in due form signified its consent, in the manner provided by its constitution, to cede absolutely and without reserve to the United States of America all rights of sovereignty of whatsoever kind in and over the Hawaiian Islands and their dependencies, and also to cede and transfer to the United States the absolute fee and ownership of all public, Government, or Crown lands, public buildings or edifices, ports, harbors, military equipment, and all other public property of every kind and description belonging to the Government of the Hawaiian Islands, together with every right and appurtenance thereunto appertaining.

That said cession is accepted, ratified, and confirmed, and that the said Hawaiian Islands and their dependencies be, and they are hereby, annexed as a part of the territory of the United States and are subject to the sovereign dominion thereof, and that all and singular the property and rights hereinbefore mentioned are vested in the United States of America.

This language expressly recites the cession and transfer to the United States of the absolute fee and ownership of all public, Government, or Crown lands, and all other public property of every kind and description belonging to the Government of the Hawaiian Islands.

The resolution of annexation further provides:

The existing laws of the United States relative to public lands shall not apply to such lands in the Hawaiian Islands; but the Congress of the United States shall enact special laws for their management and disposition: Provided, That all revenue from or proceeds of the same, except as regards such part thereof as may be used or occupied for the civil, military, or naval purposes of the United States, or may be assigned for the use of the local government, shall be used solely for the benefit of the inhabitants of the Hawaiian Islands for educational and other public purposes.

The effect of this clause is to subject the public lands in Hawaii to a special trust, limiting the revenue from or proceeds of the same to the uses of the inhabitants of the Hawaiian Islands for educational or other public purposes. This merely restricted the uses to which the proceeds of such lands could be put, but did not in anywise affect the previous provisions of this clause, which conferred upon Congress the sole and absolute authority to provide for the management and disposition of these lands. The effect of the language quoted is to vest in Congress the exclusive right, by special enactment, to provide for the disposition of public lands in Hawaii. Possibly such would have been the effect of the resolution even if this language had not been inserted. But the language having been expressly inserted, there can be no doubt whatever but what the effect of the resolution is to deprive the local government of Hawaii of all authority to dispose of these lands in any manner whatever, except by virtue of special laws enacted by Congress.

The fact that Congress has failed up to this time to legislate on the subject has not reinvested the Hawaiian government with its former power of disposition. That power ceased upon the cession. The lands then became the property of the United States, and could be disposed of only in accordance with the laws of Congress. Until Congress passes laws in conformity to the provisions of the resolution providing for the sale or disposition of these lands they must remain undisposed of. That clause of the resolution of annexation which directs that "Until Congress shall provide for the government of such islands all the civil, judicial, and military powers exercised by the officers of the existing government in said islands shall be vested in such person or persons and shall be exercised in such manner as the President of the United States shall direct," does not refer to or affect this subject. It relates only to the ordinary internal administration of civil, judicial, and military affairs, and does not cover in any degree or in any aspect the disposition of public lands, which is elsewhere provided for in the resolution.

The general principle of public law which governs and controls this subject is concisely stated in the case of Harcourt v. Gailliard, 12 Wheaton, 523:

Those laws of the former Government which have for their object a certain governmental public policy, of which character are laws for the disposition of the public domain and the granting of quasi public franchises, rights, and privileges to private individuals or corporations, ceased to have any force or effect after the sovereignty of the former Government ceased.

I have the honor to advise you that the local head of the existing government in Hawaii should be notified that such government has no power to make any sale or disposition of the public lands in the islands; that all proceedings taken or pending for such sale or disposition should be discontinued, and that if any sales or agreements for sale have been made since the adoption of the resolution of annexation, the purchasers should be notified that the same are null and void, and any consideration paid to the local authorities on account thereof should be refunded.

Very respectfully,

JOHN W. GRIGGS,
Attorney-General.

The PRESIDENT.

UPON THE QUESTION OF A RECONSIDERATION OF THE EXECUTIVE ORDER OF SEPTEMBER 11, 1899, AS TO THE DISPOSAL OF PUBLIC LANDS IN THE HAWAIIAN ISLANDS.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
Washington, D. C., November 21, 1899.

SIR: By an Executive order bearing date of September 11, 1899, you directed—that all proceedings taken or pending for the sale or disposition of public lands in the Hawaiian Islands shall be discontinued; and that if any sales or agreements for sale of said public lands have been made since the adoption of the resolution of annexation the purchasers shall be notified that the same are null and void and any consideration paid to the local authorities on account thereof shall be refunded.

This order was issued in conformity to an opinion rendered to you by myself on September 9, 1899, wherein the power of the local government of Hawaii to make sale and disposition of the public lands in the Hawaiian Islands was considered and the conclusion was reached that upon the approval of the resolution of annexation those lands became the property of the United States and could be disposed of only in accordance with the laws of Congress.

I am now put in possession by you of a communication, with accompanying documents, from Hon. Alfred S. Hartwell, Special Agent of the Government of the Republic of Hawaii in Washington, wherein he requests, on behalf of President Dole, a reconsideration of your Executive Order of September 11, 1899. You have requested me to examine and hear for you the questions involved and the views of the representatives of the local government of Hawaii, and to advise you thereon.

There are several grounds of objection to the legality and propriety of the order of September 11, 1899, which are raised on behalf of President Dole. I will state them and consider them in the order in which they are offered.

In the first place, it is contended that the provisions of the resolution of annexation, taken in connection with the failure of Congress up to the present time to pass any special laws concerning the management and disposition of the public lands of Hawaii, show that it was intended by the two governments that, pending Congressional legislation, the existing government of the Hawaiian Islands should continue to administer its public-land laws. This contention is based principally upon that clause of the resolution which declares that the "municipal legislation of the Hawaiian Islands not enacted for the fulfillment of the treaties so extinguished, and not inconsistent with this joint resolution, nor contrary to the Constitution of the United States, nor to any existing treaty of the United States, shall remain in force until the Congress of the United States shall otherwise determine."

This contention was adversely disposed of by me in my opinion of September 9, 1899, an appropriate portion of which I here repeat:

It is only necessary to refer to the language of the resolution and to the well-understood principles of public law which govern the subject of territory ceded by one government to another to reach the easy conclusion that the public lands in the Hawaiian Islands, upon the approval of the joint resolution of cession, became the property of the United States, and could thereafter be disposed of only in accordance with such special laws as Congress might thereafter enact. The preamble of the resolution declares:

"Whereas the government of the Republic of Hawaii having in due form signified its consent, in the manner provided by its constitution, to cede absolutely and without reserve to the United States of America all rights of sovereignty of whatsoever kind in and over the Hawaiian Islands and their dependencies, and also to cede and transfer to the United States the absolute fee and ownership of all public, government, or crown lands, public buildings or edifices, ports, harbors, military equipment, and all other public property of every kind and description belonging to the government of the Hawaiian Islands, together with every right and appurtenance thereunto appertaining."

And the resolution following this preamble resolves:

"That said cession is accepted, ratified, and confirmed, and that the said Hawaiian Islands and their dependencies be, and they are hereby, annexed as a part of the territory of the United States and are subject to the sovereign dominion thereof, and that all and singular the property and rights hereinbefore mentioned are vested in the United States of America."

This language expressly recites the cession and transfer to the United States of the absolute fee and ownership of all public, government, or crown lands, and all other public property of every kind and description belonging to the government of the Hawaiian Islands.

The resolution of annexation further provides:

"The existing laws of the United States relative to public lands shall not apply to such lands in the Hawaiian Islands; but the Congress of the United States shall enact special laws for their management and disposition: Provided, That all revenue from or proceeds of the same, except as regards such part thereof as may be used or occupied for the civil, military, or naval purposes of the United States, or may be assigned for the use of the local government, shall be used solely for the benefit of the inhabitants of the Hawaiian Islands, for educational and other public purposes."

The effect of this clause is to subject the public lands in Hawaii to a special trust, limiting the revenue from or proceeds of the same to the uses of the inhabitants of the Hawaiian Islands, for educational or other public purposes. This merely restricted the uses to which the proceeds of such lands could be put, but did not in anywise affect the previous provisions of this clause, which conferred upon Congress the sole and absolute authority to provide for the management and disposition of these lands. The effect of the language quoted is to vest in Congress the exclusive right, by special enactment, to provide for the disposition of public lands in Hawaii. Possibly such would have been the effect of the resolution even if this language had not been inserted. But the language having been expressly inserted, there can be no doubt whatever but what the effect of the resolution is to deprive the local government of Hawaii of all authority to dispose of these lands in any manner whatever, except by virtue of special laws enacted by Congress. The fact that Congress has failed up to this time to legislate on the subject has not reinvested the Hawaiian government with its former power of disposition. That power ceased upon the cession. The lands then became the property of the United States, and could be disposed of only in accordance with the laws of Congress.

I referred in my opinion to the language of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Harcourt v. Gailliard (12 Wheaton, 523), as expressive of the general principle which governs and controls this subject.

I can not but think that the representative of the Hawaiian government has failed to appreciate the fact that the Hawaiian Republic as a separate and sovereign power ceased to exist when the resolution of annexation took effect. It existed as an organized government only for purposes of municipal legislation within the well-accepted meaning of that phrase, and for such special purposes besides as were expressed in the resolution, the sale and disposition of the public lands not being one of the latter class.

In a case involving the question of a grant made by Spain after the date of a treaty ceding territory and prior to the ratification of the treaty, the Supreme Court of the United States, discussing the effect of the signature of treaty conventions and the date when they took effect and the power of the ceding country over public lands pending ratification, expressly limits the meaning of the term "municipal legislation" to that class of laws that relate solely to the internal affairs of the country and the relations of the people to each other, and declares that the exercise of sovereignty by the ceding country ceases after the signature of the treaty "except for strictly municipal purposes, especially for granting lands." (Davis v. The Police Jury of Concordia, 9 Howard, 280-289.)

Similar language is commonly used in expressing the legal conditions in a country conquered by arms. It is commonly said that in such cases the municipal laws governing the people in their relations with each other remain in force, subject to the will of the conqueror, but that the power and authority of the former sovereign, either to make laws, exercise dominion, or grant rights or privileges or make conveyance of public property, are terminated.

The existing government of Hawaii very clearly, by the resolution of annexation, parted with all ownership of the public lands of Hawaii. Indeed, it is scarcely an adequate expression of the fact to say that it parted with the ownership, because that government, as a sovereign power, was dissolved and ceased to exist. Its public property, including lands, became vested in the United States, and only by the authority or direction of the United States could those lands be disposed of. If there is any authority left in the officials exercising government in Hawaii to grant to purchasers and others good title to lands which by the resolution were conveyed to the United States, it must be by reason of some delegation in the nature of agency, and that delegation must be found in the resolution of annexation, because there has been no other legislation by Congress on this subject. But, as I have previously decided, and as I have herein pointed out, no such authority is contained in the resolution, but the reasonable and natural construction of its language is opposed to such a contention. The case may be summed up by the statement that whatever right, title, interest, or property the Republic of Hawaii had in public lands at the time the resolution of annexation took effect were transferred thereby to the United States and thenceforth the officials of the Hawaiian Republic were without any power whatever to convey by any kind of grant or concession the legal or equitable title of the United States.

Second. It is suggested that the Executive order of September 11, 1899, should be modified so as not to apply to sales or agreements for the sale of public lands made between the date of the approval of the resolution and the 12th day of August, 1898, which was the date on which the ceremonies took place at Honolulu evidencing the formal taking possession by the United States of the Hawaiian Islands. Exactly what these ceremonies were I am not informed, except that they comprised the lowering of the Hawaiian flag and the running up of the flag of the United States in the presence of the former diplomatic representative of the United States in Hawaii and of the officials of the Hawaiian Republic.

Our Supreme Court, speaking with reference to this particular subject of international jurisprudence and construction, has said:

All treaties, as well those for cessions of territory as for other purposes, are binding upon the contracting parties, unless when otherwise provided in them, from the day they are signed. The ratification of them relates back to the time of signing. (Vattel, B. 4, c. 2, sec. 22; Mart. Summary, B. 8, c. 7, sec. 5.)

It is true that in a treaty for the cession of territory its national character continues for all commercial purposes, but full sovereignty, for the exercise of it, does not pass to the nation to which it is transferred until actual delivery. But it is also true that the exercise of sovereignty by the ceding country ceases, except for strictly municipal purposes, especially for granting lands. And for the same reason in both cases; because, after the treaty is made, there is not in either the union of possession and the right to the territory which must concur to give plenum dominium et utile. To give that there must be the jus in rem and the jus in re, or what is called in the common law of England the juris et seisinæ conjunctio. "This general law of property applies to the right of territory no less than to other rights, and all writers upon the law of nations concur that the practice and conventional law of nations have been conformable to this principle." Puffendorf par Barbeyrac, lib. 4, c. 9, sec. 8, note 2. (Davis v. The Police Jury of Concordia, 9 Howard, 289.)

The reasons for this doctrine, as given by the courts, are that if the ceding power were to be permitted to make grants and concessions of land, privileges, and franchises between the date of the signature of the treaty and the day of ratification the concessionary might be deprived of a very valuable portion of the estate which it had contracted to receive. So far does the doctrine go that it is declared that before the signature of the treaty, but after negotiation has begun for cession of territory, grants of land can not be made in it without being subject to confirmation by the sovereign to whom transfer is to be made. It is too manifest to require anything more than statement that if a sovereign could exercise the power of alienation of the public domain after a treaty had been signed and before its ratification he might change materially the relations which the people of the ceded territory had to each other and establish a different condition than that which had been contemplated when the agreement was definitely concluded. "The law of nations does not recognize in a nation ceding a territory the continuance of supreme power over it after the treaty has been signed, or any other exercise of sovereignty than that which is necessary for social order and for commercial purposes and to keep the cession in an unaltered value until a delivery of it has been made." (Davis v. Police Jury of Concordia, supra.)

I do not think that the difference in the method of cession employed in this case requires a different rule of interpretation from that which would have been employed if the cession had been by treaty. The reasons that are applicable in the one case are equally applicable in the other. The language of the resolution is in the present tense. It declares that "the said cession is accepted, ratified, and confirmed, and that the said Hawaiian Islands and their dependencies be, and they are hereby, annexed as a part of the territory of the United States and are subject to the sovereign dominion thereof, and that all and singular the property and rights hereinbefore mentioned are vested in the United States of America."

This resolution follows a preamble in which it is solemnly stated that the Government of the Republic of Hawaii had, in due form, signified its consent, in the manner provided by its constitution, to cede absolutely and without reserve to the United States of America all rights of sovereignty, etc. If the ceremonies that were performed on the 12th of August, 1898, were necessary as evidencing the ratification of the agreement between the two Governments, and if the Government of Hawaii can be considered to have participated in those ceremonies, then, unquestionably, their action made the effect of the resolution relate back to the date of its adoption and required that it should be given effect in accordance with its language, which related to the date of its adoption rather than to the date of the subsequent ceremonies. Nothing is said in the resolution as to any formal delivery or any further solemnity for the purpose of transferring absolutely the title to the United States. The resolution assumes that the annexation was complete with the adoption of the resolution by which the assent of the United States to the offer of the Republic of Hawaii was given.

I therefore advise you that, in my opinion, with respect to the public lands, the resolution took effect as of the date of its approval, to wit, July 7, 1898.

Third. The special agent of the Hawaiian government refers to certain correspondence between Mr. Sewall, the special agent of the United States at Honolulu, and the Department of State at Washington, as establishing a justification for the exercise of the power of sale by the government of Hawaii subsequently to the annexation. At the request of the Hawaiian government, the following question was submitted to the Department of State on August 6, 1898: "Should not President Dole continue to execute land patents and deeds in the ordinary dealing with government lands under the Hawaiian land laws?" To which it was answered by Mr. Sewall, in conformity with his instructions, as follows: "Resolution provides that land laws of the United States shall not apply to public lands in Hawaii and that municipal legislation of Hawaii generally shall remain in force."

The Hawaiian authorities regarded this answer as tantamount to a declaration of opinion on the part of the Department of State that the were authorized to make grants of public domain in the absence of any legislation by Congress to the contrary.

It will be observed that, taken by itself, this response to the question of the Hawaiian government does nothing more than recite two unquestioned provisions of the resolution, neither of which by itself, in my judgment, was pertinent to the question or decisive of it. It is impossible to say that the special agent of the State Department intended by this reply to answer the question in the affirmative, although it is perhaps natural to infer such an intention. But the question is one involving naked power—a power to dispose of the lands of the United States, which, under the Constitution, can only be disposed of in conformity to the will of Congress. It is not a question of the good faith of the Hawaiian officials, for that is unquestioned. A wrong inference as to the meaning of the answer forwarded by Mr. Sewall could not effectuate the exercise of an unauthorized power of sale, nor vest in a grantee title to lands which the Hawaiian government, under a careful consideration of the law, is decided to have been without power to convey.

Fourth. It is represented that there are large numbers of sales of public lands which were made by the Hawaiian government to carry out its own agreements concerning the same, made prior to August 12, 1898. I understand this class of cases to comprise those where conditional sales or entries were made by purchasers or entrymen prior to the resolution of annexation, and where the conditions entitling the purchaser or entryman to a grant have been subsequently complied with.

What I have said as to the cessation of the power of the Hawaiian government to make original sales and conveyances subsequently to the cession, applies from a legal point of view to this class of cases. The difficulty is that the power of the Hawaiian government as a sovereign possessed of sovereign right to make conveyances and grants of land ceased, and all its powers and sovereign rights in this respect were transferred to the United States. This was the same with reference to lands under conditional agreements or under lease as in the case of lands unaffected by any equitable interest. Undoubtedly the Government of the United States can be trusted to do justice to all persons having just claims of this nature. Doubtless Congress will, by legislation, provide means and instruments for vesting and confirming such titles. The only question for my decision is whether such power now exists in the Hawaiian government, and I think it does not.

Fifth. Attention is called to the fact that the Executive order under consideration directs that any consideration paid to the local authorities on account of lands sold subsequently to the adoption of the resolution of annexation shall be refunded to the purchasers, and there is no provision of law which authorizes or permits the use of any money in the Hawaiian treasury for that purpose. If this be true, then that portion of the order will be ineffective. I assume it was not intended that payment should be made contrary to the local law and regulations of Hawaii, or that money should be provided by any arbitrary or unnatural means, but only that in due course of law the money should be appropriated and applied for that purpose.

Very respectfully,

JOHN W. GRIGGS,
Attorney-General.

The PRESIDENT.
